HEAT KILLS ELEVEN; MANY OVERCOME

Men and Women Drop in the Streets from the Long-Continued Strain.

CHILDREN FALL TO DEATH

Three in Brooklyn Alone, Seeking Relief on Fire Escapes—Thousands Sleeping in the Parks.

New York suffered another day of sizzling heat yesterday, which brought death and discomfort. Eleven deaths were reported in the city as directly caused by the heat. Twenty-seven persons were overcome by the heat in Manhattan and the Bronx, and twenty-one in Brooklyn, according to the police records. All of the latter were taken to various hospitals, and many of them were reported in a serious state.

FINNS, GENEIVA, infant, 330 West Thirty-seventh Street; died at home.

Thousands Sleep in Parks.

The long-continued heat is causing real suffering in the city now, and unless the daily promises of showers materialize soon the conditions are certain to grow serious. The wearying story of the day is best told by the record of the mercury.

The minimum temperature, which was recorded at 5 A. M., was 74 degrees. The maximum mark was reached at 3:40 o'clock, when the mercury had climbed to 90. At 8 A. M. the temperature was 77, and the humidity at the same figure. By 9 o'clock the mercury had climbed 5 points, but humidity had dropped to 63 per cent. At 10 o'clock the mercury stood at 84, and at noon it was 88. After that it advanced a degree an hour, to the maximum. The humidity fell meanwhile to 41 per cent.

From every part of the city reports of suffering came in to the police. Last night, as on previous recent nights, thousands sought relief in the parks. Park Commissioner Smith said that, while no general order granting permission to the public to sleep in the parks had been granted, there will be no objection to sufferers during the hot spell seeking a measure of comfort by sleeping in the city's breathing spots.

"I wish I could impress upon those who take advantage of the parks as a place to sleep the task of keeping the parks in good condition," said the Commissioner. "Many persons take newspapers to sleep on, and leave them in the morning littering up the park. Other thoughtless persons tear down branches of trees and destroy the plants and shrubbery."

Central Park and Battery Park were the resting places of thousands. More than 4,000 persons slept in the Battery Park on Wednesday night, and as many more last night. All over the lower east side the people flocked to the open spaces, and by midnight park benches were at a premium. Many of the park sleepers were the homeless ones, but still more were those who had fled from stuffy little east side flats.

Policemen were detailed to guard the park sleepers and prevent disorder. Thousands spent the night at seashore resorts also.

Casualties Due to the Heat.

The heat is supposed to be responsible for the queer actions of Ella Chisholm, colored servant of Miss Marguerite Clark of 8 West Sixty-seventh Street. The servant was sent to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue yesterday. According to Miss Clark, who is the actress and co-star with Jefferson de Angelis, the girl began to act queerly in the morning, but when she took a seat on the gas stove in the kitchen and waved a carving knife, Miss Clark became alarmed and telephoned to Bellevue. Ella had always been quiet and industrious before, Miss Clark said.

Six-year-old Clara Dennis was killed yesterday morning by falling from the fire escape at the sixth floor of her home, 92 Hopkins Street, Williamsburg. The girl had pleaded with her parents on Wednesday night to allow her to spend the night on the fire escape, and they consented. Early yesterday morning a neighbor found the child dead at the foot of the wall. She had fallen the sixty feet while asleep, and had been dead for hours when her body was found.

Nathan Rock, 7 years old, was mortally injured by falling from the fire escape of his home, 75 Monroe Street. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital.

Animals suffered greatly, and while men and women were able to seek cooling drinks and the breeze swept spots, the streets were full of tired looking, overburdened horses, toiling through the hot thoroughfares. In many instances the hydrants were opened and the horses given cooling shower baths. Along West Street, where the congestion of traffic compels the trucks to wait in the hot sun for their turn on ferryboats and piers, the conditions were very bad.

A little yellow dog, a neighborhood pet, supposedly crazed by the heat, ran up to the uptown elevated station at Third Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street and jumped to the street below, breaking it's legs. A policeman shot the dog.

Despite the heat, the managers of excursion boats regularly running to near-by beaches and resorts report that the boats are not doing as much business as last year. The explanation given by one man was, "No money to spend this year." Hundreds did, however, seek this method of escaping the heat yesterday.

Hot Wave Widespread.

The area of the hot wave is widespread. It extended yesterday morning from the Lower Mississippi Valley southward to Texas and eastward to the Atlantic Coast. Reports of intense suffering come from Pittsburg, Washington, Baltimore, Chicago, and other cities.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is making active preparations for the care and protection of horses during the warm spell. Thirty-two additional water stations were opened this week. The water is taken from fire hydrants and served to the animals by

CHESTON SIMMONS HURT.

Walks Out of the Window in His Remodeled Home at Seabright, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., June 24.—Cheston Simmons, stepson of Washington E. Conner, and a member of the stock brokerage firm of Simmons & Slade of 35 Nassau Street, New York, is slowly recovering in his home on the Rumson Road, about three miles from here, from a severe fall. Late on Tuesday night he fell from the window of his bedroom on the second floor of the house to a gravel walk below. The fall broke Mr. Simmons's jawbone and caused concussion of the brain.

The broker, according to his mother and step-father, has been known before to walk in his sleep, and the fact that in his lucid moments since his fall he has asserted that he received his injuries in an automobile accident, leads his family to believe that he fell, this time, while sleep walking.

The Simmons home was recently remodeled, however, and Mr. Simmons slept for the first time on Tuesday night in his rearranged room. The window from which he fell occupies the same position relatively as a door in his old room, and it is possible that he walked through the window, mistaking it for the door while only half awake.

The accident was discovered by Mrs. Simmons, when about to retire at 11:30 o'clock. Finding that her husband, who had preceded her by an hour or two, was not in bed, she looked out of the window and saw what looked like a white bundle on the gravel walk below. It was Mr. Simmons, and Mrs. Simmons, with the help of her maid and a private watchman, managed to carry him into the house.

The chauffeur was sent for Dr. George Grey Ward, Jr., and the physician came immediately. Yesterday Dr. McKibbon, a specialist, was summoned from New York, and two trained nurses were employed. It was said to-night that Mr. Simmons was improving as rapidly as could be expected.

He is prominent in society here, and is a member of many clubs here and in New York.

HARD WORDS FOR DR. AKED.

Rockefeller's Other Pastor in Cleveland Says He Is Not a Good Baptist.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 24.—The Rev. Dr. W. W. Bustard, new pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, of which John D. Rockefeller is a member, has startled his congregation by outspoken denunciation of the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York, of which Mr. Rockefeller is an attendant and supporter.

"I am a Baptist minister, an Orthodox Baptist minister," Dr. Bustard told the Baptists of Cleveland at a reception tendered to him.

"If John D. Rockefeller has two pastors they are about as far apart as possible in their ideas of what John D. Rockefeller's church, the Baptist Church, stands for," said Dr Bustard.

"I consider the pastor who calls himself a Baptist minister yet preaches doctrine contrary to the Baptist Church dishonest.

"Dr. Aked, the other pastor, appears to consider it honest to preach heterodoxy from a supposedly orthodox pulpit. For instance, he is receiving into his New York church members of other denominations not requiring immersion. The Baptist Church believes in immersion as the only form of baptism recognized or intended by Christ. Dr. Aked, I understand, welcomes to the communion table all members of this Church, all members of any other Church, and all persons present, whether they be church members or not.

"The Baptist Church, I say to Dr. Aked, does not offer the communion to non-believers. I would not eat the bread of Christ and drink His wine with an infidel; I suppose Dr. Aked would.

"In regard to the case of Prof. Foster of the University of Chicago, Prof. Foster denied the divinity of Jesus Christ. This is a fundamental principle not only of the Baptist Church, but of Christianity. And yet Dr. Aked appears to think in expelling Prof. Foster the Baptist Conference did wrong."

SNOWBALLING IN HARLEM.

Being a Veracious Tale of Two Sleuths Who Were Sent to a Man's Rescue.

"Better send a couple of men up to 130th Street and Broadway," was the message which came over the telephone from Police Headquarters to Lieut. McDermott in the West 125th Street Police Station just before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the heat was most oppressive. "There's a fellow there says a couple of kids are snowballing him. He must be crazy."

McDermott called Detectives Wolf and Fraser from the backroom where they were sitting in shirt sleeves, with collars off.

"Get your clothes on, boys, and go up to 130th Street," said he, and he told them of the man and the snowballs.

The detectives went, but soon came back without a prisoner. McDermott looked surprised, and he felt even more so when Fraser said wearily:

"It's all right. We chased the boys away."

Wolf nodded assent to this, and the detectives started for the rear room. McDermott watched them and then called the doorman.

"Both of 'em overcome by the heat," he told that official.; "We'll have to be careful with 'em."

The doorman went back to look the detectives over. Presently he same out to the desk laughing.

"They're all right," he told McDermott. "Don't you remember those packing houses up there in Broadway. Well, they cleaned out the refrigerating pipes and some youngsters really were making snowballs out of the frost that came off the pipes."

GOOD READING FOR TO-DAY.

Florizel's Skipper Tells of Passing 1,000 Icebergs More or Less.

A glance at the log of the Red Cross liner Florizel, which got in yesterday from St. John's, would interest those who are suffering from the present hot spell.

Up in the neighborhood of Nova Scotia the vessel passed close to some 1,000 icebergs. This is the number estimated by the skipper, Capt. Clark, who counted fifty-six bergs in a minute, and then got tired and estimated the number in view. Some of the bergs were about 200 feet high and 1,000 feet long, this again according to the skipper's estimate.

The strange story of a wise whale was told by Daniel Webster, a passenger. Mr. Webster said that the Florizel sighted a school of whales on June 22. Five playful ones followed the vessel all day. They were lost in the fog that came up in the evening, and next morning only one was playing about the vessel. It continued in the ship's company until later in the morning, when the Florizel sighted a vessel that looked like a whaler. The whale sighted the vessel at the same time, and immediately made off for safer parts.

"He was a knowing whale," said Mr. Webster, who added, "I do believe he winked at us as he headed away from that whaler."

OSCAR LEWISOHN REPORTED KILLED

Said to Have Met His Death in Auto Smash Between Vienna and Berlin.

BROTHER HAS NO NEWS

Husband of Edna May Wrote Recently of Motor Trips, but Mentioned No Plans to Visit Continent.

BERLIN, June 24.—A report reached Berlin to-night that Oscar Lewisohn, the husband of Edna May, the former actress, was killed in an automobile accident between Vienna and Berlin to-day.

SYRACUSE, June 24.—Edgar C. Pettie, father-in-law of Oscar Lewisohn, expressed the opinion to-night that his son-in-law was not touring Europe. A letter received to-day from Mrs. Lewisohn gave no intimation that her husband was to take a trip. He was at his home at Virginia Water, near London, when the letter was written.

Mr. ePttie things the man killed in the automobile accident may be Jesse Lewisohn, a brother of Oscar.

At his home in Elkwood Park, N. J., Frederick Lewisohn said last night that he had received no word of any accident to his brother. Oscar Lewisohn and his wife had been living in London for the last two years. He was not engaged in any business.

A letter was received from him three weeks ago, saying he was enjoying himself in automobiling and other amusements. Nothing was said in the letter of any prospective trip to the Continent.

Frederick Lewisohn sent a cable message of inquiry last night to his brother, Jesse Lewisohn, who has been in Europe for the last four months and who, when last heard from, three weeks ago, was at Aix-les-Bains, France. Frederick Lewisohn said that he did not believe that either of his brothers, Oscar or Jesse, was touring in Germany or Austria. Albert Lewisohn and his wife also went to Europe last May, but when last heard from were in England.

Oscar Lewisohn's father was the late Leonard Lewisohn of New York, who made his fortune in copper. He and his brother Jesse are supposed to have inherited more than $1,000,000 from their father.

Oscar Lewisohn was born in 1883 and was graduated at Harvard. After he left college he spent his time largely in traveling. He married Edna May on June 4, 1907. He was her second husband, her first having been Fred Titus, the professional bicycle rider, from whom she was divorced.

Miss May decided to leave the stage after her marriage, and her last appearance was made in "Nellie Neil" at the Aldwych Theatre, London, in April, 1907, when she was presented with two loving cups and numberless floral pieces.

The Lewisohns motored in Germany, France, and Italy during their wedding trip, and when they returned to England Mrs. Lewisohn said:

"I shall never dream of returning to the stage. I am enjoying too much the sedate joys of married life, and am too perfectly happy as Mrs. Lewisohn ever to be Edna May again."

TWO SWIM TO A BOY'S RESCUE.

One Loses His Temper Because Some One Stepped on His Hat.

Seven-year-old Robert Wood of 112 Greenwich Street was fishing yesterday for drift wood off the sea wall near the Barge Office when he lost his balance and fell overboard.

Jacob Milleager, a stoker on the Municipal ferryboat Nassau, who lives at 40 Harrison Street, Brooklyn, saw the lad fall in. He jumped in after him and was having hard work getting him ashore when Michael A. White, a Battery character, went to his assistance. White assisted the stoker and the boy back to the sea wall, and they were hauled ashore.

After they got the water out of the boy, Dr. Curtin took him into the Barge Office, where his clothing was taken off and he was wrapped in a blanket. Robert's only anxiety was that his name would get in the papers. Everybody about the place went to see him. Before he went home Dr. Curtin slipped a coin into his hand and said he hoped he would be a good boy and keep away from the water.

After the rescue Milleager walked quietly away. White was angry because while he was in the water some one stepped on his new hat. He has a number of rescues to his credit. A reporter asked him about his latest feat.

"Oh, quit your kidding," he said as he walked away, holding his broken hat.

PICNICKERS SEE BOY DROWN.

His Comrades Supposed He Was Shamming, but He Had Cramps.

Within sight of some 2,000 picknickers, many of them children who attended the outing of the Bushwick Avenue Methodist Church, Brooklyn, at Valley Grove, on Huntington Bay, L. I., yesterday, 16-year-old Henry Kauling of 310 Marion Street, Brooklyn, drowned in seven feet of water. He was taken with cramps while swimming with about 100 other boys and girls, but everyone thought that he was fooling when he called for help.

At last his body was pulled from the water, and every means was tried in vain to resucitate him.

SUTRO WILL OVERTHROWN.

California Millions to be Distributed Among Heirs of Late Adolph.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The Supreme Court invalidated to-day the will of the late Adolph Sutro, and ordered that the estate valued at millions, and consisting of the Cliff House property in this city and the San Miguel ranch, be distributed among the heirs.

Under the terms of the will the estate was to be held in trust until the last surviving child should die, after which the lands were to be sold and the proceeds given to charitable and educational institutions in this city.

The heirs contested the will in order to enforce a division now.

'TOBY, M. P.,' PINERO AND TREE KNIGHTED

King's Birthday Honors Include Many Noted in Art, Science, and Literature.

C. V. O. FOR J. HUBERT WARD

F. J. Campbell, Instructor of the Blind and a Native of Tennessee, Is Made a Knight.

LONDON, June 24.—The King's birthday honors comprise a long list of appointments and promotions, and include a number of knighthoods bestowed upon representatives of art, science, and literature. Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the actor and proprietor of His Majesty's Theatre, and Arthur Wing Pinero, the dramatist, are among those knighted, as are also Henry W. Lucy, who is "Toby, M. P.," of Punch; Francis Gallon, the explorer and writer on scientific subjects; Joseph Larmor, educator, and F. J. Campbell, Principal of the Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind.

The Hon. John Hubert Ward, whose wife is a daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, is appointed a Commander of the Victorian Order.

The new Sir Henry W. Lucy will probably continue to be better known as "Toby, M. P.," for Englishmen have had for many years a great liking for the articles he has contributed to Punch on the proceedings of Parliament. Most Americans would fail to understand their humor and satire, but not his countrymen, with whom "Toby, M. P.," has become almost an institution.

Mr. Lucy, who is 64 years old, started in life as a merchant's apprentice, but at 19 became a reporter, and, after studying languages and literature in Paris, found a place in London in 1870. He was first on The Pall Mall Gazette, but in 1873 he became the chief Parliamentary reporter for The Daily News, a place he has held ever since, except in 1886-7, when for a year he was editor of that newspaper. He took it over to the support of Mr. Gladstone's home rule policy, and many readers were lost, with the result that he went back to his former work.

Besides creating "Toby, M. P.," Mr. Lucy has written many books on Parliament, an intimate study of Mr. Gladstone, and some novels. He has traveled widely, once circling the world. He visited the United States in 1903-4 and wrote critical observations, and also a series of articles for THE NEW YORK TIMES on European politics. His latest book, "Sixty Years in the Wilderness," gives his life experiences in detail.

Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the actor and manager, was born in London on Dec. 17, 1853. He made his first appearance on the stage in 1878. In the jubilee year he became manager of the Haymarket Theatre, where he brought out some of the most elaborate productions ever seen in England. He continued these productions as manager of his Majesty's Theatre, in which capacity he has since served. His recent production of "The School for Scandal," with an all-star cast, was a striking revival. Mr. Tree holds the third class order of the Prussian Crown.

Arthur Wing Pinero, the leading dramatist of England, is 46 years old. He was born in London, and after being educated at private schools went before the footlights when he was nineteen years of age. He continued as an actor for seven years, after which he turned to dramatic writing. Among his works are "Sweet Lavender," "The Amazons," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Iris," "His House in Order," and "The Thunderbolt," which was published last year.

Joseph Larmor is one of the most noted English educators. He has been a Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, since 1880. He has served as Professor of Philosophy at Queen's College, Galway, and in Queen's University, Ireland. From 1885 to 1903 he served in the capacity of Professor of Mathematics at Cambridge University. He is an honorary member of the American Academy of Boston and the United States National Academy of Sciences.

F. J. Campbell is principal of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind. He was born near Winchester, Franklin County, Tenn., on Oct. 9, 1832. He was educated at the school for the blind in Tennessee and at the University of Tennessee. He studied music at the Boston Conservatory and at the conservatory in Leipsic. From 1858 to 1869 he was associated with Dr. S. G. Howe as Resident Superintendent and Musical Director at the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Boston. Together with the late Dr. T. R. Armitage and the late Duke of Manchester he founded the Normal College for the Blind in London.

John Hubert Ward was already a member of the Victorian Order, and by his promotion yesterday becomes a Commander. He is the second son of the first Earl of Dudley and a brother of the present Earl. He is 39 years old, and was married to Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Ambassador Reid, just a year ago yesterday. At the time of his marriage he was an Equerry in Waiting to King Edward.

CURTISS FLIES 1,500 YARDS.

Steers His Aeroplane Over the Length of Morris Park Race Track.

Glenn H. Curtiss gave an illustration yesterday of how easy it is to fly in the air provided the aviator has a good machine. He made half a dozen flights at Morris Park with his new aeroplane late in the afternoon after the wind had gone down. On two of them he covered the entire length of the track on the west side, each fully 1,500 yards.

Mr. Curtiss first flew from the lower end of the clubhouse straight up the track and, coming to land easily, turned the machine around and flew back to the starting point. He then followed these long flights by four smaller ones, testing his engine at different speeds.

Mr. Curtiss seemed able to maintain his machine on practically a level course.

Mr. Curtiss arrived in the city yesterday morning from Hammondsport, N. Y. After the exhibition of the Aeronautic Society to-morrow he will attempt to make a long flight over the Morris Park grounds.

Several other machines were out on the track yesterday, but the only one to get in the air was W. J. Martin's big glider, which will be one of the features of the exhibit.

MORGAN RETRIEVING PARIS STEEL DEFEAT

His Efforts Bid Fair to Overcome Obstacles to Listing American Stock on Bourse.

ADVERSE RULING HELD UP

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 24.—J. Pierpont Morgan arrived in Paris day before yesterday and immediately took up personally the matter of the listing of United States Steel on the Bourse. Mr. Morgan's pride is believed to be much hurt by the apparent failure of the plan. He has now spent two days of masterful activity with surprisingly fruitful results.

It appears that he has induced M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, to withhold the announcement of his decision for the present and to listen to the views of M. Sergent, Under-Controller of the Currency, who believes he has found a means of reaching the legal difficulties through a new decree interpretative of the abonnement law, without waiting for new legislation.

Simultaneously efforts have been directed toward the steelmakers of France, whose protest to the Ministry a fortnight ago was effectual. W. E. Corey, President of the United States Steel Corporation, is interesting himself in this direction in a practical manner. The idea is that this opposition might be withdrawn if the Steel Trust promised to keep out of the markets for French steel, particularly in North Africa. The doubters ask why the Steel Trust, nine-tenths of whose shareholders have no interest in the sale of the stock in Paris, should accept such a handicap.

The other source of opposition, namely, the champagne and other interests which want to keep up the bars against American securities in order to wrest tariff concessions from the United States, are also being argued with.

Altogether these new efforts are sagacious and effective and they may be successful after all. The original plan has already been much modified, however. The company undertaking the payment of the French taxes would not be asked to make an indefinite commitment, but will assume the taxes for a limited period. It is also probable that the idea of issuing certificates in New York will be abandoned in favor of some Paris bank.

Doubt was expressed in well-informed quarters yesterday that the United States Steel Corporation would consent to enter into any trade agreement for the purpose of facilitating the listing of its stock on the Paris Bourse, but it was said that the negotiations looking to the listing of Steel in Paris were again moving smoothly. The Steel Corporation itself is in no wise a party to the listing proposal, it was pointed out again yesterday, and for this reason, if for no other, its entering into a trade agreement to facilitate the listing of its stock is improbable, it was said.

MAY DROP PANAMA SUITS.

Government's Action Depends on What Mr. Wise Learns in Paris.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Attorney General Wickersham, referring to the trip to be made to Paris by Henry A. Wise, United States District Attorney at New York, for the purpose of examining the records of the French Panama Canal Company, with a view to getting additional information bearing on the libel suits instituted, at President Roosevelt's suggestion, against The New York World and The Indianapolis News, declared that this action did not necessarily mean that the suits would be pressed. It is believed that the future course of the Government will depend on the information gained by Mr. Wise.

Ever since the Taft Administration came in there has been doubt as to its intention regarding the suits, even though Charles P. Taft, the President's brother, was one of those whom President Roosevelt got to make the complaints upon which the suits was started by the Federal authorities. It has been intimated that President Taft did not think much of the plan of suing the proprietors of the two newspapers and that he would probably drop the cases.

John E. Lindsay, who represents The New York World, is also going to Paris to examine the records. It is understood that the attorneys on both sides have reached a point where they find it necessary to gather evidence directly from these records. Most of them are of a nature that precludes the possibility of their being given up by the French Government, hence the necessity of the attorneys going abroad.

TUG FOR A BABY VOYAGER.

Also a Basket to Hoist It Aboard—Ship Missed at the Pier.

Mrs. John Gunderson of 126 West Thirty-third Street, with a three-months old baby in her arms, arrived just too late to go on board the Scandinavian-American liner Hellig Olav at her Hoboken pier at noon yesterday. The steamer was already gliding past her pier.

Port Capt. Lassen signaled to Capt. Holst, on the Hellig Olav, to wait for a passenger in the river. Mrs. Gunderson, her baby, and her baggage were placed on a tug and raced to the liner. Before the woman would climb a ladder to the steamer she insisted that her baby be put on board.

In a few minutes a seaman appeared at the side with a large basket. This was lowered on a line, and in it baby Gunderson was lifted in safety to the deck of the Hellig Olav. The mother then followed by way of the ladder.

PARIS, June 24.—The famous Hope diamond went for only $80,000 at the sale of the Habib collection to-day. The collector paid $400,000 for it.

It was bought to-day by Louis Aucoc, the leading diamond expert of France, presumably for a customer.

HARRIMAN IS BENEFITED.

Will Prolong His Stay at Semmering, Then Go to Marienbad.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 24.—Owing to the beneficial effects already received from the cure at Semmering, E. H. Harriman has decided to prolong his stay there for two weeks.

At the end of his stay at Semmering Mr. Harriman will go to Marienbad.

GOOD TARGET RECORD MADE.

Five Hits Out of Six Shots with Big Ten-Inch Disappearing Rifles.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 24.—According to information given out to-day at Fort Rosecrans yesterday's target practice with the great ten-inch disappearing rifles resulted in five hits out of six shots, one of the best records ever made at the fort. The firing was at 4,500 yards, with the target traveling at the rate of ten miles an hour.

Forty-eight seconds was the time averaged in loading, aiming, and firing.

THIRTEENTH BABY LUCKY.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Offer to Clothe Her Until She Is 21.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—The Yates thirteenth baby, born on the 13th of the month, is still attracting attention. A couple who said they were Mr. and Mrs. William Morris of Morristown, N. J., came to the Yates home to-day in an automobile and offered to clothe the baby completely until she reached the age of 21 if the parents would name her Mary Ellen Morris Yates, the first of the name being that of Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Yates says she has the offer under advisement, and thinks well of it, because the Morris people do not wish to deprive her of the youngster.

SMITH SUSPENDS McLENDON.

Railroad Chairman Refused to Order Roads to Reduce "Port Rates."

ATLANTA, Ga., June 24.—Gov. Hoke Smith, who retires from office on Saturday, to-day suspended from office Chairman D. G. McLendon of the State Railroad Commission. The suspension was because of McLendon's recent decision in refusing to order the State railroads to reduce rates between Savannah and Atlanta, known as the "port rates."

Gov. Smith said McLendon was suspended because he was opposing the platform upon which the Governor was elected and was pursuing a course which the Governor thought detrimental to the interests of the State.

CURRIE GAVE UP $1,000,000

Besides $90,000 of His Wife's, Attorney Says, to Save Firm.

DETROIT, June 24.—Cameron Currie and Louis H. Case, partners, and Michael J. Bourke, a customer, appeared in police court to-day on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the customers of the defunct brokerage firm of Cameron Currie & Co., which failed last Summer with liabilities of $1,500,000. All three respondents stood mute and were released on bail.

Attorney Frazer, representing Cameron Currie, to-day issued a statement in behalf of his client, asserting that Currie turned over to the firm prior to the failure $1,000,000 in stocks and securities owned by him personally, and $90,000 held in the name of his wife, in an effort to stem the impending failure, and that all were lost.

GOVERNMENT MAKING ICE.

Cost Reduced from $7.65 a Ton to 65 Cents for One Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Government is contemplating a new venture, the manufacture of ice for the use of the various departments. The Post Office Department already has a complete ice-making plant installed, and is turning out more than it can use. Secretary MacVeagh heard of this and promptly put in a requisition for the surplus. As a result the Treasury Department's bills for ice will now be pared down.

The amount of ice used by the Government is large. The Treasury Department alone uses one ton every twenty-four hours in the water coolers throughout the big building. Bought from private dealers this ton costs the Treasury $7.65. The Post Office Department plant provides the ice at cost, which is 65 cents a ton. The saving to the Treasury in a year approximates $2,300.

SAVED HIS $1,000 DOG'S LIFE.

Owner Wouldn't Let a Policeman Kill It for Biting a Boy.

An excited crowd gathered in Riverside Drive, at 104th Street, last evening, when a bulldog belonging to Leonard Gerraur of 614 West 136th Street bit twelve-year-old John Plump of 1,728 Amsterdam Avenue in the right arm. Policeman Wasserman wanted to shoot the dog when some in the crowd declared that it had rabies, but Gerraur insisted that the animal was simply overcome by the heat and that as it was worth $1,000 he would not consent to its being killed.

So while the Plump boy was sent to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, where it was said that his injury was insignificant, the policeman and Gerraur took the dog to the West 125th Street Station and soused it in a pail of cold water. The dog revived immediately, although before it had been frothing at the mouth, and Gerraur was permitted to take it home in a taxicab.

GAGE'S WARD SLAIN; SUSPECT TRAPPED

Mrs. Woodill Murdered While on a Visit in Maryland—Newspaper Writer Accused.

HASTILY WED A YEAR AGO

Stolen When a Child and Husband Vainly Sought Parents—Gage Interested in Her Musical Talent.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. MICHAELS, Md., June 24.—Mrs. Edith May Thompson Woodill, wife of Gilbert Woodill, a well known automobile dealer in Los Angeles and long a ward of Lyman J. Gage, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, was the victim of a murder committed several days ago. Her body was found in Back Creek, leading to the Choptank River, near St. Michaels, yesterday, and was identified to-day.

Emmet Roberts, a newspaper correspondent, is suspected of the murder and has been sought all day. Word reached here late to-night that Roberts had been surrounded in the house of John B. McQuay at Coyman, seven miles from here and about one and a half miles from the bungalow where the murder was committed. A posse left here in automobiles at midnight. Roberts is believed to be heavily armed. McQuay noticed a skulker near his home late last night and called to him. He came to the house and asked for water. Recognizing him as Roberts, McQuay invited him into the house and sent his wife, secretly, to notify neighbors, by whom the house was surrounded.

Mrs. Woodill came here with her husband recently to visit her foster-father, Col. Charles H. Thompson, who lives a few miles from here. She was well known socially in Baltimore and along the Eastern shore. Her husband went home and she was to have returned soon. Recently she had been seen much in the company of Roberts, whom she had met before. Roberts was a comparative stranger in Talbot County. He came here last Fall and bought a little farm near the Thompson place, where he had a bungalow. He described himself as a writer and newspaper correspondent.

Mrs. Woodill went to Easton last Saturday and had some dental work done. When she left Capt. Thompson's she said that Roberts would see her safely home, as he was going in the same direction. Roberts met her at Royal Oaks Station with a horse and carriage, and the pair drove to St. Michaels, where they embarked on Roberts's launch and headed for the little creek that passes their homes. The last seen of Mrs. Woodill alive was soon after the little launch left the St. Michaels wharf.

Misleading Tale Told by Roberts.

Mrs. Woodill was missed at Capt. Thompson's home that night. Answering inquiries, Roberts said that she had gone to Baltimore. He sought to allay the fears of the foster father by telling him she would return in a few days. Roberts went to Baltimore himself on Tuesday, and at that time a letter was received by Capt. Thompson which purported to be from Mrs. Woodill. It was mailed in that city and said she would be back home in a day or two.

Roberts returned, found that the letter had been received, and then said: "I told you so."

Capt. Thompson was not satisfied. He interested some of his neighbors in the matter, and began search. The body was found by two boys who were crabbing yesterday. It was nude. The skull had been crushed in from a blow, apparently delivered from behind, and the face was disfigured. The body had been weighted with an iron pot containing half a dozen bricks.

It appears that when Mrs. Woodill went to Easton on Saturday to have her teeth treated she had an appointment to meet Roberts at Royal Oaks Station. Roberts got as far as this place in his launch, and then, missing a train, hired a team and drove to Royal Oaks, where he met Mrs. Woodill and drove back to St. Michael's, avoiding the main street and making directly for the pier where his launch was tied.

Last Seen in Launch.

Miss Cora Dodson saw the couple from the porch of her home nearby. After they had pushed off from the pier they were passed by Mr. Orem, one of the jurymen at the inquest to-day, which decided that the young woman had come to her death as the result of foul play.

The presumption is that the couple next went to Roberts's bungalow. Roberts had evidently been there. Constables went to the bungalow to-day and found an arsenal of arms of the first class, enough to keep off a regiment of soldiers.

No blood stains were found until they were ready to leave, when they found a sheet on the bed with a large blood stain, as though the head had rested there. A pair of corduroy trousers like those Roberts is said to have worn when last seen, were also found, and contained this letter in Mrs. Woodill's handwriting and dated June 16:

> Dear Wobby: Can't come down, haven't even had my morning's ablutions, and I know how men hate waiting. Why, I'd be afraid you'd wear out the parlor rug plus your temper if you tried it. Its only an intermittent delirium anyhow, and you'd better go and "wash your dishes." Even without an imagination you must know that I'll be thinking of you. DOLL BABY.

Portions of a woman's clothes, partly burned, were found in the bungalow. These have been identified as having belonged to Mrs. Woodill. The woman was said to have had a large sum of money with her and wore diamond ornaments when she left home on Saturday. These had disappeared. There were evidences of a struggle in the bungalow.

Crabbers who were working in the creek Monday night said they saw a boat pass not far from them and a heavy object was raised and tossed into the water with a loud splash. The body was evidently borne by a strong westerly current to the opposite shore, where it was found by the boys. The cord with which it was tied was new window cord, and was evidently taken from a window in Roberts's new bungalow.

Let Roberts Get Away.

After the body had been found yesterday and suspicion began to point to Roberts he visited a livery stable here kept by Justice of the Peace C. E. Willey and A. H. Radcliffe and tried to hire a team. Radcliffe remarked to his partner that the applicant for a team was under suspicion, but Willey did not feel justified in detaining him at the time.

Later last night, however, he telephoned to the boarding house of George Taylor, made inquiries about Roberts, and mentioned that he was suspected of the murder of Mrs. Woodill. Roberts was beside Taylor during this conversation and, upon learning of the suspicion against him, remarked:

"If that is the case I will not go to Baltimore."

A few minutes later he was found to have disappeared, and it was afterward discovered that he had taken Taylor's skiff. An alarm was sent out in all directions, and all day a search has been made of the swamps and woods. Police of Washington and Baltimore also watched railroad stations and docks.

Roberts is about 50 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, stout, smooth shaven, with abundant, bushy hair and a ruddy complexion. He limps and wears a brace on one leg. He claimed to be a magazine writer and general correspondent of newspapers. He was always extremely polite, said he had no bad habits, and was rather in favor with the residents of St. Michael's.

Where and under what circumstances he and Mrs. Woodill met is not known. Mrs. Woodill was at the St. James Hotel in Baltimore with her husband on June 7. He left that afternoon for Detroit. She remained several days and told Mr. Samani, the proprietor, that her husband had written her to join him in Detroit, but that she preferred to stay in Maryland.

Gage's Interest in Her.

Ex-Secretary Gage was much interested in Mrs. Woodill when she was a student in music at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore in 1906, before her marriage. He had heard her play in Washington, and frequently came to Baltimore to see her. She had an excellent musical education in this country and Europe, and she is said to have sung in the White House before President McKinley.

Mrs. Woodill is said to have been previously married to a physician of New York City, whose name, however, could not be learned to-night. There is a mystery about her parentage. Capt. Thompson says she was 22 years old and was adopted by him when 2 years old, coming from the family of a poor street car man in Minneapolis.

NO TROUBLE WITH HUSBAND

So Brother Declares—Attempt Made to Trace Mrs. Woodill's Parentage.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 24.—News of the murder of Mrs. Gilbert Woodill in Maryland was received here this afternoon. Her husband was in the office of the Woodill Auto Company, of which he is President, when told of it. He fainted and has been confined to his bed at the home of his mother since. His physicians permit no one to see him, and he is said to be in a serious condition.

"There was absolutely no domestic trouble between my brother and his wife," declared H. S. Woodill, his brother. "They seemed to be the happiest couple that I ever saw. Just a few minutes before my brother received a telegram telling of his wife's death he received a letter from her. It was written five or six days ago, and was in a cheerful tone and contained many terms of affection. They were married a year and a half ago. A month since they went East to visit Mrs. Woodill's relatives, and, as planned, my brother returned alone, leaving her to make a more extended visit. He had been here about a week. Mrs. Woodill, according to their plan, was to have started for Los Angeles in the company of her foster-father before this time."

Mrs. Woodill was 20 years old and was a talented vocal and instrumental musician. She was a blonde of petite type, and a brilliant conversationalist. She was lost or stolen from her parents in Chicago when she was about two years old, and was adopted by Col. J. H. Thompson of Maryland. She was well known among Baltimore society people. Lyman J. Gage, when Secretary of the Treasury, became interested in her talents when she was a child and aided her. As Miss Thompson she visited the family at Point Loma.

Miss Thompson met Mr. Woodill in Chicago a little more than a year ago, and they were married after a courtship of only five days.

On last March 18 this advertisement inserted by Gilbert Woodill in the Chicago papers roused widespread speculation:

"Would like to communicate with people who had a girl named Pearl stolen in Chicago eighteen years ago. Address P. O. Box 441, Los Angeles, Cal."

Mr. Woodill, when brought to admit that the advertisement was his, refused to say anything more than the facts behind the advertisement, known only to three people in the world, would be immensely interesting. His brother said to-day that he was inquiring in this way for the parents of his young wife. She was 20 when he married her, and she had been stolen at the age of two from her family in Chicago.

The advertisement did not lead to a solution of the mystery of the girl's parentage, and the Woodills were always rather reticent regarding her early childhood. It is generally supposed that the two other persons besides Mr. Woodill, who knew the facts behind the advertisement were Col. Thompson, who adopted her and gave her his name, and Lyman J. Gage.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 24.—Lyman J. Gage, former Secretary of the Treasury, to-day said that Mrs. Woodill, who was murdered in Maryland, had been his ward for years, and had visited him here about a month ago. When a correspondent told him of a report that she was his daughter he said emphatically "no."

"I must decline also to say anything more about her relations to me," he went on. "Beyond a message saying that my former ward is dead, I have had no direct news of the sad occurrence."

Mr. Gage, who is one of the most prominent supporters of Katherine Tingley and her Theosophical Society, has lived for several years at the Theosophical homestead on Point Loma, but recently moved across the bay to San Diego, where he contemplates the erection of a $500,000 residence.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Mrs. Eli A. Gage, daughter-in-law of ex-Secretary Lyman J. Gage, when informed to-night of the murder of Mrs. Edith M. Woodill in Maryland, said:

"My father-in-law first became interested in this girl when he was Secretary of the Treasury. The girl came to Washington with her mother, and in some way Mr. Gage met her. She was then 12 or 13 years old. Mr. Gage noticed her musical talent, and sent her to a school to be educated. I do not know how long he kept up this interest in her, but she never was his ward. There never was any mystery about her identity, and the news that she was stolen when a baby is new to me."

DEAF EAR TO MATRIMONY

In the Suffragette Camp Unless the Man Will Work for the Cause.

Those unmarried New Yorkers who contemplate matrimony had better think twice before asking a suffragette. The edict has gone forth in the suffragette camp that from this time forward the unmarried members shall refuse to wed unless the husband-to-be shall promise, in addition to the regulation vows, that he will from the day he enters into double harness become an advocate of the cause. Further than this, he must not alone advocate the cause, but he must openly work for it with no faint heart.

This action was taken at a mass meeting held in the headquarters of the Progressive Woman's Suffrage Union, 228 East Twenty-third Street. A resolution drawn by the local head of the organization was unanimously adopted. It set forth that men were not giving sufficient attention to the cause, and in order to bring them to time some such drastic action as refusing to marry them must be taken. Then this agreement was drawn up:

> We, the undersigned, hereby agree that we will not indulge in matrimony with any man who is not willing to sign an agreement that he will not only lend his moral support but suffrage, but will work patiently and hard toward its support and success.

The agreement had harly been drawn before some score or more young women were scrambling around the table to sign it. The Chairman was unable to learn whether or not this haste was due to the fact that these young women were engaged to be married, and wanted to bring somebody to time, or whether they were not engaged and wanted to get even with men in general. However, one after another signed their names, after her own signature had been placed there to start it off.

Those who added encouragement to the list of formidable names were Miss Josephine Casey, leader of one of the Suffrage Unions in Chicago; Miss C. H. Marshall of 102 West Ninetyfifth Street, Miss Sophie Brown of Jersey City, Miss Maude B. Hubley, Dr. Emma Ganz, Miss Emma Moesch, Miss Mary Hart, Miss Susan Jenkins, and others. The Secretary declined to give out the complete list for the present, because it was said that to do so might be inadvisable.

CORPORATION HEADS MAY BE IMPRISONED

Taft's Tax Plan Also to Carry Fines for Fraudulent Returns of from $1,000 to $10,000.

REPORT EXPECTED TO-DAY

Machinery for Enforcement of Law Practically the Same as Now in Use.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The corporation tax amendment will be reported to the Senate to-morrow, according to the confident assertion of a Finance Committee member this afternoon. There was a final meeting of the committee at noon to-day over the final details of the publicity and penalizing features, at which the Attorney General and Senator Root were present. At that meeting it was decided to meet opposition to the measure from certain quarters on account of the alleged weakness of the measure's publicity clauses by preserving those clauses in the full strength already announced and to impose a triple penalty, far in excess of anything that had been anticipated, though in perfect accord with the announced wishes of the President.

For the officers of corporations signinf fraudulent or misleading sworn statements of the activities and resources of their corporation, imprisonment not to exceed one year is provided, with fines of from $1,000 to $10,000. The penalty directly levied at the corporation for its mismanagement will be the flat doubling of the assessed tax. As a matter of fact, the fines of the officers will be paid by corporations too, but the provision for individual imprisonment of all the officers personally offending is believed to be adequate to keep them in line provided the machinery for the enforcement of the new tax should prove effective.

Severity of the Penalties.

The severity of the proposed penalties is pointed out in the fact that they may all three be directed against the same corporation for the same offense. Indeed, if the offense be grave enough to warrant the imprisonment of the signatory officers, it is practically certain that the fines and double tax will also be imposed.

One of the important objections to the proposed levy was the enormous and complicated machinery its enforcement would necessitate. That objection is partly answered in that the amendment will carry practically no other machinery than that already in use for the collection of internal revenue. The whole enforcement of the levy will be in the hands of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, though it is realized that the force at his disposal will have to be increased as time goes on, and efforts to evade the law make a larger force of expert investigators necessary.

Internal Revenue Collectors will be required to send to Washington lists of corporations in their districts and the sworn statements of corporations will in the same way be gathered in this city and filed as public documents. The tax then to which each corporation is liable will be assessed from Washington, though the actual collection will probably remain in the hands of the Revenue Collectors on the ground.

As now understood, expert examiners will be sent out into the field when there is presumptive evidence of fraud.

Cite the Spreckels Case.

In several quarters it is declared that the President has again been singularly unfortunate in his selection of precedents in his legal comments on the questions before him. The Spreckels case has been cited by the Administration freely as one directly bearing on the constitutionality of an "excise tax" of the sort proposed in the corporation levy, but this contention is flatly denied by several of the insurgents.

To their minds the Spreckels case is entirely irrelevent.

An evidence of the kind of activity that will make things interesting when the bill reaches conference came out to-day in the efforts Mr. McCumber made to interest the President in the hide schedule. A report has been abroad for some time that in conference the New Englanders of the committee would insist either on the material reduction of the duty of 15 per cent. or on its total abolition. Mr. McCumber, who is interested in the retention of the duty, called on the President to-day and asked him, should the duty be dropped, that he insist on the dropping of all compensatory duties accorded finished leather on the basis of the increased cost of their raw material. The President listened with his usual attention.

Most of the day went by in general debate. Mr. Beveridge returned to the subject of the renewal of the war taxes on tobacco to prevent the mulcting of the Treasury by the trust which persists, he declared, in the sale of small war packages, though the taxes which in the first place justified the reduced packages have long since been repealed.

Bailey Flays Trust Magnates.

The rest of the afternoon was occupied by Mr. Bailey of Texas in an effort to defend his votes for protection on raw materials. He based his arguments on the revenue phase of the subject, though he went, as usual, after the trust magnates and declared that he would refuse to give them the advantage of free raw materials while they received the full benefit of exorbitant protection.

Late in the afternoon the committee's compensatory rate of 10 per cent. on sole leather—an increase of 5 per cent. over the House rate to make up for the duty imposed on hides—was adopted. Another amendment increasing on the same grounds the duty on shoes and leather from 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. was adopted by a vote of 32 to 24.

SING SING FOR A CHAUFFEUR.

Two Years for Unauthorized Use of Machine—Others Go to Jail for Speeding.

Frank H. Roland, the chauffeur, who, on April 29 last, took the machine belonging to his employer, Charles B. Church of 205 West Fifty-seventh Street, and, after gathering a number of friends, rode about the country for ten days, pleaded guilty yesterday to grand larceny in the first degree. He was sentenced by Judge Swann in General Sessions to serve not less than two years nor more than three years in Sing Sing.

In sentencing the prisoner Judge Swann said:

"Evidently you wanted to shine in the eyes of your girl friends by pretending that the machine was your own. You have talents, but you have chosen to waste them."

Roland's last address was 168 West Forty-sixth Street.

John J. Carroll of 241 West Forty-sixth Street, chauffeur for John Murphy, a brother of Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, pleaded guilty yesterday in Special Sessions to speeding as a third offense. He was sentenced to serve one day in the Tombs and to pay a fine of $100. He was arrested on June 3 for going 20 miles an hour on the West Drive in Central Park.

Mr. Murphy, his employer, and several friends went to the Criminal Court Building in the car with the idea of paying a fine and going on to the race track. When the chauffeur was sent to the Tombs the car was left outside and the party went home in a trolley car.

William F. Foley, a chauffeur of 987 Sixth Avenue, who was arrested on June 17 for speeding in Ninth Avenue near Fiftieth Street while driving his employer's machine without permission, pleaded guilty yesterday in Special Sessions to petit larceny for stealing half a gallon of gasoline, valued at 10 cents, which was the amount used in the course of the ride.

The complainant, Judson S. Todd, a lawyer at 45 West Fiftieth Street, said in court that in view of the fact that a new law had made it a felony for a chauffeur to take his employer's machine without permission, he would only press the petit larceny charge. He said that $500 damage had been done to the car through a collision.

Foley was remanded for sentence until June 29, pending investigation.

Frederick W. Saltzeider, another chauffeur, living at 952 Eighth Avenue, was convicted of speeding, as a third offense, and was sentenced to serve one day in the Tombs and to pay a fine of $100.

KILLED IN RUNAWAY AUTO.

Mrs. John Matthews Thrown Against a Tree When Car Upsets on Hill.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—Mrs. John Matthews, wife of the director of the sales department of the Du Pont Powder Works at Wilmington, Del., was instantly killed in an automobile accident on Delavegne Hill, near Amenia, in the Pawling Mountains, last night.

Mr. Matthews, his wife, his stepdaughter, Lucille MacVeagh, aged 15, and two young stepsons, Franklin and Ezra MacVeagh, were taking a pleasure trip in a large touring car through the Berkshires. Mr. Matthews left Poughkeepsie yesterday afternoon and was hurrying to reach Lakeville.

Delavegne Hill is a long and steep decline, and a part of the way down Mr. Matthews's car got beyond control. Isaac Wheaton's farm hand, named Liner, saw the car tearing down the hill. On a curve the rear wheels skidded and one of the tires exploded. At the same time the car turned on its side. Mrs. Matthews was thrown against a tree and her neck broken. Mr. Matthews was hurled against a fence and seriously bruised. Franklin MacVeagh's left arm was broken. The other children were uninjured.

Mrs. Matthews's body was removed to Amenia and later taken to Wilmington by the members of the family.

KNOWING WHERE YOU STAND

Consider what it would mean to you if you could have each month a clear, comparative statement of every significant condition and tendency in your business.

Such a statement should include:

(1) An Operating Statement, showing exact conditions and results in each department of a business—whether manufacturing or trading—with weaknesses, bad tendencies, abnormal costs or expenses, brought out, without digging through records or making a physical examination.

(2) A Financial Statement, showing exact conditions of a business under every head, in dollars and cents, providing an analysis of working capital, and a complete and accurate interpretation of every financial resource.

All these at the end of each month instead of end of season—enabling you, if there is something going wrong, to stop it before it has done serious harm.

SUES TO DISTRIBUTE INSURANCE SURPLUS

Newark Man Demands That $16,693,690 of the Prudential's Money Be Apportioned.

CRITICISM FOR DRYDEN

Says the Company's President Has Ruled the Company and Kept Down the Dividends.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—Declaring that $2,000,000 surplus is enough money to protect the interests of the policy holders, and charging gross extravagance in management, and also alleging that for years ex-United States Senator John F. Dryden has dominated the affairs of the Prudential Insurance Company so that the other Directors have been forced to acquiesce in his schemes for promoting interests antagonistic to the stockholders of this corporation, Leon F. Blanchard of Newark late to-night filed a suit in the Court of Chancery here charging that there is $16,693,690 of unassigned surplus in the coffers of the company which should be divided among the stockholders, and he seeks an order dividing this sum.

The bill is a mammoth affair, in which the petitioner recalls the testimony of Mr. Dryden before the legislative Investigating Committees both in New York and New Jersey, and charges that this evidence conclusively proved that Mr. Dryden in every way has sought to cut down the dividends of the stockholders to the lowest possible margin.

Mr. Blanchard alleges that the company has been extravagantly managed, that thousands have been spent on meeting rooms for Directors, that the salaries of officers have been excessive, and that these things are not consistent with the payment of 10 cents a week from the poor people who contribute their mites to this extravagance in paying on their policies.

The officers of the Prudential are set forth as follows: President—John F. Dryden; Vice Presidents—Leslie D. Ward, Forrest F. Dryden, Jacob E. Ward, and Wilbur S. Johnson; Treasurer—Edward Kanouse; General Counsel—Richard V. Lindabury; Actuary—John F. Gore; Directors—Theodore C. E. Blanchard, Frederick C. Blanchard, Jerome Taylor, William T. Carter, Anthony R. Kuser, Uzual H. McCarter, and three State Directors appointed by the Chancellor under a recent law, as representatives of the policy holders—Edward J. Ill, Edwin A. Stevens, and Isaac F. Roe.

Policy Holders Not Informed.

The bill goes on to say that in pursuance of the law in 1907 the Directors communicated with the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, stating that non-participating policies only would be issued by the company. The complainant says he had no means of knowing the amount of insurance outstanding as divided between participating and non-participating business in force at the time the resolution took effect, except that set out in the statement furnished to the Banking and Insurance Commissioner in 1907.

According to this statement he says there was outstanding a total insurance of $1,345,053,122, of which $840,291,172 was under industrial policies and $504,761,950 was under ordinary policies. The non-participating policies amounted to $43,084,056 and participating policies, $901,969,066.

Contrary to the provisions of the law, Mr. Blanchard says, the company transferred from the unassigned surplus account and placed to the credit of participating policy holders, and that on the basis of the previous annual statement the company's surplus on Dec. 31, 1907, was $22,079,704. He then sets out in the bill in detail the resolution adopted by the company on Feb. 10, 1908, wherein the surplus then divisable, amounting to $8,016,716, was to be apportioned between the deferred dividend policy holders and the stockholders in the following manner:

"To the policy holders 90 per cent., to the stockholders 10 per cent."

The resolution also provided that $801,671 to be apportioned to the stockholders be held and added to the contingency surplus of the company, "and be not paid out to the stockholders in the form of dividends or otherwise, except by the future action of the board."

Mr. Blanchard then charges that in making the annual statement to the Banking and Insurance Department the company failed to comply with the law in continuing to carry in its unassigned surplus money to which the deferred policy holders were entitled.

Says Dryden Dominates.

The bill goes on to show that most of the Directors now in office have served many years, and "that for more than twenty years last past John F. Dryden as President of said corporation has absolutely dominated and controlled its management and policy, and that during recent years such management and control has been in the interests and to the advantage of the policyholders and not in the interests of the stockholders; that the President has denied the rights of the stockholders in its surplus accumulations and has demanded and received the support of his fellow Directors in promoting policies and measures antagonistic to the interests of the stockholders, even to the extent of absorbing for the policyholders the accumulated gains once declared to belong to the stockholders."

The bill then refers in detail to the testimony given by President Dryden before the Armstrong investigating committee of New York and the Senate investigating committee in this State in connection with life insurance business.

After reciting in detail the policy of the company in dealing with stockholders Mr. Blanchard says: "The money so paid to the policy holders, in your orator's view, has been taken from the profits of the stockholders without warrant of law."

Mr. Blanchard also charges that Mr. Dryden and other Directors control the succession to themselves and that the stockholders are unable to get relief in the election of other Directors.

In conclusion the bill asks that the Directors be compelled to make a complete accounting, and forthwith declare a dividend to the stockholders in such amount as in the judgment of the court may at this time be safely distributed, and that the company be enjoined from the payment of further dividends to the policy holders, except as their policies may require, pending the termination of this suit, and that the company be restrained from hereafter diverting further profits of the company in salaries or other expenses in excess of the just requirements of the economical administration of its business.

LAKE GEORGE RESORT BURNS.

Fort William Henry Hotel Is Destroyed with $250,000 Loss.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., June 24.—The main building of the Fort William Henry Hotel at Lake George, owned by the Delaware and Hudson Company, was destroyed by fire early this morning, entailing a loss estimated at $250,000, and covered by about $150,000 insurance. Fortunately, there were no guests in the hotel, which was to be opened for the season June 27. The surrounding structures were saved, the fire being confined to the main building.

The fire apparently started in the servants quarters under the dining room and spread rapidly. The building destroyed was being remodeled at a cost of $30,000.

The Fort William Henry was originally built in 1856, but since the Delaware and Hudson Company assumed control it has been extensively remodeled. The hotel accommodated about 500 guests and was handsomely furnished.

The Street Railway Association of the State was scheduled to hold its annual convention here next Tuesday and Wednesday, but owing to the fire it will meet at the Hotel Champlain at Bluff Point.

attendants paid by the society, who also spray such horses as seem to need it. This is the fourth Summer that the society has maintained these drinking places, and they have done much to reduce the mortality of horses.

A donation of $2,000 a year by F. Augustus Schermerhorn and the courtesy of Water Commissioner O'Brien in allowing the hydrants to be opened have made this service possible. In addition to these temporary watering places the society has erected and maintains nearly fifty permanent drinking fountains.

The Weather Bureau holds out no promise of immediate relief except the perennial promise that showers are expected. The forecast is still "fair and warmer."

3 CHILDREN FALL TO DEATH.

Seeking Relief from Heat on Fire Escapes—Another Mortally Hurt.

The excessive heat was responsible for the deaths of three children and fatal injuries to another in Brooklyn yesterday, three of the children falling from fire escapes and the fourth out of a window. The dead are George Anderson, Jr., 2 years old, of 156 Court Street; Clara Dennis, 6 years old, of 92 Hopkins Street, and Theodore R. McKee, 7 years old, of 191 Atlantic Avenue.

The fourth injured child is Alexander Razborski, a baby, of 707 Third Avenue, who is in a critical condition in the Norwegian Hospital, suffering from a fracture of the skull and other injuries.

The Anderson baby climbed upon a window sill in his parents' home, lost his balance, and fell to the street. He died in the Seney Hospital an hour later. The little Dennis girl was asleep on the fire escape of her father's flat on the sixth floor when she fell off.

The McKee child also fell from a fire cape, and died soon after being taken to the Long Island Hospital. The Razborski boy also fell from a fire escape. At the hospital little hope for his recovery was held out.

HEAT KILLS THREE IN NEWARK.

Policeman Up on Charges Dies in a Turkish Bath.

Three deaths from heat prostration were reported in Newark yesterday.

Patrolman Thomas Duffy of that city's police force, who was to have been tried by the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon on charges of delinquency, took a Turkish bath, hoping to get relief from the heat, and died in the baths of a Newark concern. He was 29 years old, and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

Justin P. Skinner, 80 years old, of 16 Elizabeth Avenue, was overcome on the street and died soon after he was taken home.

Frederick Krayl of 59 Belleville Avenue died in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, after collapsing at home. He was a journeyman jeweler.

The hospitals have several heat patients in each.

TWO SUCCUMB IN ORANGE.

Alonzo Hyde and Mrs. David Meyers Victims of the Heat.

Two deaths in East Orange, N. J., the last two days were due directly to the hot weather. Alonzo Gree Hyde, for thirty-three years a leading citizen, died yesterday morning of heart disease, aggravated by the heat. He left home to go to business, but was so weak when he reached the Lackawanna station that he had to take a carriage home. He died soon after reaching his house at 56 Westcott Street.

Mrs. Ann Augusta Myers, wife of David Myers of 192 North Grove Street, though 94 years old, had enjoyed splendid health until the hot wave set in. She, too, died suddenly yesterday.

Mr. Hyde was born in New York City. His grandfather, Major David Gilman, was one of the aids of Gen. Washington in the Revolutionary war. For forty-two years he had been Treasurer of the Herald Publishing Company of New York. He leaves a widow, three sons, and a daughter.

Mrs. Myers was the daughter of Benjamin Ellison of Jericho, L. I. Six years ago she and Mr. Myers celebrated their golden wedding. She leaves also a son and a daughter.

PROMOTER ARRESTED ON A FRAUD CHARGE

William S. Mitchell Taken Here by U. S. Marshal at Request of the British Government.

WANTED FOR A MINE DEAL

Canadian Politicians, Including King Edward's Cousin, Sir Augustus Fitz-George, Among His Accusers.

William S. Mitchell, who says he is a promoter, was arrested yesterday afternoon near his home, 373 West Ninety-seventh Street, by United States Marshal Pinkley and a private detective at the request of the British Government, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Mitchell's alleged offense is said to have taken place in Canada, and he will be extradited as soon as the necessary papers arrive.

Inspector of Criminal Investigations Joseph E. Rogers of the Province of Quebec, who made the complaint upon which Mitchell was arrested, alleges that in January, 1907, Mitchell, with Alexander C. Ross, an Ottawa member of the Canadian Parliament, and others, said to be prominent in Canadian politics, formed a syndicate to obtain an option on a mine known as the "Sinclair Claim 3434" at Coleman, in the Nipissing District, Quebec.

Mitchell is alleged to have reported to Ross and the other members of the syndicate that he had secured the option on the mine from William Stone Thomas, a Director of the Bank of Quebec, for $130,000, to be paid in installments, and that in part payment the owner had agreed to accept $30,000 in fully paid stock of the company that was to be incorporated to work the mining property and known as the Airglod Cobalt Mining Company.

Believing these representations to be true, so Inspector Rogers says in his affidavit, Ross, on Sept. 19, 1907, paid Mitchell $5,000, but it was subsequently discovered that Mitchell had obtained the option for $85,000 instead of $130,000.

Mitchell was taken before United States Commissioner Alexander, who committed him to the Tombs until to-day, when he will be allowed to appear as a witness in the State court in a suit which he brought some time ago against a London banking company. Charles E. Littlefield appeared as counsel for Mitchell, and Charles Fox represented the British Government.

Besides Mr. Ross the other members of the mining company are said to include Col. Sir Augustus Fitz-George, a cousin of King Edward VII.; W. C. Strahan, a member of Parliament from Montreal, and Senator William Mitchell, an uncle of the prisoner.

Others who are said to be connected with the case and who will appear against Mitchell are said to be Senator L. Melville Jones of Toronto, William R. Asquith of Ottawa, the Hon. Jacques Bereau, Solicitor General of Ottawa; the Hon. S. Young of Manitoba, and Senator Templeman of Vancouver.

Mitchell is said to have been at one time a member of the Consolidated Exchange here, and to have been in the brokerage business in Boston. While living at Medford, Mass., it is said, he married a daughter of Frank C. Pitcher, a prominent resident of that city. Sir Augustus Fitz-George is now in London, but it is said he will appear as a witness against Mitchell at his trial, which is due to take place at the Criminal Assizes in Ottawa in September.

TAKE CHONG SING TO MURDER SCENE

Sigel Suspect Repeats His Story in the House in Which the Girl Missionary Was Killed.

HIS TESTIMONY UNSHAKEN

Police Had Hoped for a Confession—New Evidence of Leon Ling's Jealousy of Chu Gain.

Chong Sing, the Chinaman held as a "more than material witness" in the investigation into the murder of Miss Elsie Sigel, the girl missionary, was taken by Central Office detectives yesterday afternoon to the chop suey house at 782 Eighth Avenue, where the crime was committed. The Chinaman was made to go over his story of the murder and explain, step by step, what he did on the noon of June 9, when Elsie Sigel was killed.

It was an entirely unexpected expedition for Chong Sing, and the police hoped that the Chinaman would break down and make a full confession of everything he saw at the time of the murder. They felt that he had not told all he knew at his previous examination.

Chong Sing, far from breaking down, appeared to be perfectly at ease as he led the detectives around the den where Elsie Sigel was put to death and then tied in a trunk. Chong was in ignorance of the purpose of the detectives when they called at his cell late in the afternoon and told him they wanted him to take a trip with them.

Chong Glad to Get Outdoors.

"Sure, me go," responded the Chinaman with alacrity. Chong, in truth, was elated at the chance to get out of his stuffy cell and breathe some fresh air, and it made not much difference to him, he told the detectives, where he went. Chong's nervousness that was manifest at his previous examination had left him, and he looked really quite content as he trudged out of the House of Detention with a detective on each side.

The detectives took Chong to the chop suey house in an Eighth Avenue surface car. When they left the car at Forty-seventh Street, a block below the scene of the murder, Chong smiled broadly.

"Me know where you going with Chong," quoth the Chinaman, winking his eye. "Me going to Leon's room."

Chong did not hesitate for an instant when the house was reached. The detectives told him to walk up the dingy, creaky stairs ahead of them and Chong led the way at such a brisk pace that the detectives had to hurry to keep up with him. He turned right into Leon Ling's room, on the top floor, where the girl's body was found in the trunk, and then paused for some word from the detectives.

The detectives told him to point to the spot where he had last seen Elsie Sigel. Chong jerked a thumb over toward the bed, with its canopy of tawdry yellow cloth and said:

"There where I see Elsie when Leon Ling call me from my room. She are lying there all quiet, with handkerchief over her face."

Chong showed where Leon's trunk had stood, at the foot of the bed, when Leon asked him to help him put Elsie Sigel's body in it. He pointed without a quiver to the spot on the floor where he had seen the girl's blood. Leon told him, he said, that Miss Sigel had bit her tongue and that this made the spot on the floor.

The Chinaman was then ordered into his own room, next to Leon's, and was told to go through his every action from the time that, as he had said, Leon knocked at his door, telling him that Elsie Sigel was dead. Chong pointed to his bed, and said he was lying there when Leon tapped at the door. He indicated the washstand, and told the detectives that he washed his hands there before going into Leon's room. Then the Chinaman walked out of his room into the hall and into Leon's room and stood by the bed. He showed, taking the hand of one of the detectives, how he had felt Miss Sigel's hand to see if the body was warm.

"Me go out after that," said Chong. "Me no wait when Leon ask me to tie up the trunk with him."

For more than an hour the detectives kept Chong going through the same performance, plying him, all the time, with questions in an effort to draw some further confession from the Chinaman, but Chong clung to the story he had told on Wednesday. He looked at the key hole in the door between Leon's room and his and laughed as he remarked that he was mistaken when he said, on Tuesday, that he had peered through it and seen the girl's death struggles.

"Me no see Elsie killed," the Chinaman kept repeating.

Chong was taken back to the House of Detention, and on the way he smoked three cigarettes.

The police admit that Chong puzzles them. They have been unable to get him to admit that he saw any part of the actual murder. The police are sure he knows much more than he has confessed, but how to get it out of him is a problem that causes them some concern.

New Theory of the Crime.

A new theory as to the murder of Elsie Sigel has presented itself to the police as a result of Chong Sing's widely conflicting stories. Some of the detectives have been wondering whether or not Chong himself might not have killed Elsie Sigel and then put Leon Ling to death, disposing of Ling's body. The basis of this theory is that Chong may have been in love with Elsie Sigel and jealous of Ling.

When Inspector McCafferty, Chief of the Detective Bureau, was asked as to this theory, he said:

"Every imaginable thory has been discussed in the investigation of this murder. I don't think Chong killed Leon for the simple reason that I believe Leon is alive. As to whether Chong might have helped kill Elsie Sigel, that is a different matter. I cannot discuss that. We are looking for Leon Ling as the actual murderer."

The District Attorney's office is working upon the theory that Leon Ling killed Elsie Sigel because of the discovery by Ling that Miss Sigel had given her affections to Chu Gain, the Mott Street restaurant proprietor, and this, too, is said to be the belief of Deputy Commissioner Woods, in charge of the police investigation. In support of that theory it was said yesterday by an official who has been working on the murder that Elsie Sigel's mother was anxious for her to drop Leon Ling from her affections and to marry Chu Gain, who, as a thrifty Chinaman, has quite a snug fortune.

Elsie Sigel fell in love with Leon Ling, as is indicated in her letters to him, and wanted to marry him, but the match was frowned upon by the girl's mother after Miss Sigel became acquainted with Chu Gain. The young missionary worker's father about six months ago forbade her to have Leon Ling call at the house, and it appears, according to the police, that Elsie Sigel after that met and wrote to Leon Ling clandestinely. This is borne out by the letters in the hands of the police. One of these, written by Elsie Sigel to Leon Ling shortly after Leon was forbidden to call on her, reads:

> My Dear Willie: I am writing this while mother is away from home. She would not let me if she knew it. Don't think, Willie, that I will give you up. I will always remember the dear times we had together. I will see you soon. With love, ELSIE.

After that Miss Sigel wrote many letters to Leon, and, from what the police have learned, she met the Chinaman at various times. Gradually the tone of her letters changed, and it became apparent from missives which she was sending at the same time to Chu Gain that the girl missionary had lost her erstwhile liking for Leon Ling. The love letters to Chu Gain which the police found in the Mott Street chop suey restaurant, after Gain was arrested, are filled with phrases of deep affection.

As weeks passed and Elsie Sigel's love for Leon Ling became colder and she saw him only at long intervals, the discarded Chinaman grew desperate, the police think. The police have verified the writing in two anonymous letters sent to Chu Gain, threatening his life, within three weeks before the murder as that of Leon Ling. These letters were turned over to the District Attorney yesterday by M. Jesse Henry of 120 Centre Street, acting as Chu Gain's lawyer. In both letters Chu Gain was warned that he would be killed if he did not cease his attentions to Elsie Sigel, and threats were made that she, too, would be murdered.

One of the letters reads:

> Chu Gain: You know what will happen to you if you are seen with Elsie again. You will be killed and the girl, too. The word has been given.

This letter, as the one that followed it a few days later, was signed "Ah Tai." This is the Chinese term for "The Chief."

Threats Against Chu Gain.

From what the police have learned, the first of these letters was sent to Chu Gain after a dinner at Miss Sigel's home in Wadsworth Avenue, to which Chu Gain had been invited. Leon did not receive an invitation, but he learned that Chu Gain was at Miss Sigel's home. Ling called at the apartment about 11 o'clock that night and demanded to see Miss Sigel. When she came to the door, Leon Ling angrily declared that if she did not give up Chu Gain there would be trouble. Miss Sigel told him to keep away from the house, as she did not wish to see him again.

Chu Gain told Miss Sigel of the threatening letters and later of Leon Ling's visit to his restaurant, when they came to blows. Miss Sigel sent for Leon and told him that it was wrong to act that way. She assured Leon that she still held a high regard for him, but that she would dislike him and put him forever out of her mind if he made any more such demonstrations against Chu Gain. She told Ling he should not have written the threatening letters. Ling denied having done so.

A day or so after that Leon Ling went to Chu Gain's restaurant with a friend of Ling's, living at the Hotel Bristol, in West Forty-ninth Street, and Chu Gain was induced to sign statements, written in both English and Chinese, declaring that he did not believe Leon Ling wrote the threatening letters. In his talk with the police early this week Chu Gain said that he did not want to sign those statements, but that he felt he ought to do it o save furher trouble.

Leon Ling, with another Chinaman, called upon Chu Gain about three lays after that, and Ling told Chu Gain that he had forgiven him for having stolen the affections of Miss Sigel. Leon asked Chu Gain to go to the Eighth Avenue chop suey house some night and talk it over. Chu Gain, in telling this to the police, said:

"I was too smart to go to Leon's room. I know what he would have done. There wouldn't have been any Chu Gain left. It would have been for me just what happened to Elsie Sigel. I stayed away."

To placate Leon Ling, the police say, it appears that Miss Sigel allowed him to call on her after the night that she scolded him for having sent the threatening letters to Chu Gain. The police say they believe Miss Sigel had no idea of resuming her love affair with Leon Ling, and that she would have compelled him after a while to stop his visits altogether.

Leon Ling called on Miss Sigel the night of June 8 to urge her to go to Chinatown with him. Ling wanted to show Chu Gain that he had re-established himself in the girl's affections. Miss Sigel would not go. While they were talking in Miss Sigel's parlor, Chu Gain appeared. Gain became angry and refused to enter the girl's home, although Miss Sigel urged him to go in. That night Miss Sigel wrote her last letter. It was addressed to Chu Gain, and read:

> My Dear Friend: I don't want you to feel badly because Willie was here to-night. You known that I love you and you only and always. Don't mind Willie. Although he is nothing to me, I had to see him. I did not send for him. Your ever loving ELSIE.

Elsie Sigel left her home the next morning to go to the home of her grandmother, but the police believe Leon Ling met her in the street and induced her to go to his room in Eighth Avenue, perhaps to talk to her over the disappointment he felt in having lost her love.

It was learned definitely by the police yesterday that Leon Ling on the night of the murder was in Washington. Ling, according to the deductions of the police, made from the story told by Chong Sing, murdered Elsie Sigel early that day. He disposed of the girl's clothes and fled the city that afternoon, reaching Washington early in the night.

Leon Ling was the one, the police have learned, who sent the telegram from the National Hotel that night to the father of Elsie Sigel, saying "Don't worry. Will be home Sunday noon." The telegram was signed "E. J. S.," the initials of the murdered girl. The fact that Ling sent the telegram was established by Detective Van Wagoner of the Central Office, who has been in Washington since the day following the discovery of the murdered girl's body. Detective Van Wagoner obtained the original draft from which the telegram was sent, after Assistant District Attorney Baker of Washington had served a court order on the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, over whose line the message was sent.

The handwriting of the original draft has been compared by an expert with the writing of Leon Ling, and he has told the police that it is the same. Besides this, Detective Van Wagoner has obtained a description of the man who gave the telegram to the office at the National Hotel, and it tallies with Ling.

Detective Van Wagoner has gone through the Chinese quarter at Washington with local detectives searching for some trace of Leon Ling, but without success. The detective notified Police Headquarters yesterday that he had found that Leon Ling was in Washington as late as June 10, but after that all trace of him in that city was lost.

Ling Seen Here After the Murder.

The police have been informed by an habitué of Chinatown that Leon Ling appeared there, wearing a false queue and a blouse, on the Sunday after the murder. Leon Ling is a member of the Lee clan, and the police have been told that members of that society hurriedly raised $400 for him, thus providing the funds by which he was able to resume his flight. If this information is correct, the police say, it is probable that Leon Ling took passage on a steamer leaving this city and that he is now in some foreign land. They think that Ling went aboard the steamer, if he went at all, employed as a cook.

Capt. Michael Galvin of the Elizabeth Street Police Station has made a thorough search of the dark dens and crannies of Chinatown in an effort to ascertain if Leon Ling, by any possible chance, is still there. He has had "stool pigeons" at work, but has been told that Leon is not there.

Detectives Scrivanni, Mondo, and Guido of the Italian Bureau saw a Chinaman sneaking into a house at 11 Mott Street yesterday afternoon and arrested him. The Chinaman, at Police Headquarters, said his name was Lee Wah, a laundryman, of 35 West Ninety-ninth Street. When he was searched the police found a revolver in his blouse. The arrest was thought to have some connection with the Sigel murder, but the police would not discuss it.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
Bulletin.
THE ALASKA-YUKON-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.
The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, now open in the City of Seattle, Wash., is attracting much attention in the East, and many from the Atlantic Seaboard will undoubtedly avail themselves of the remarkably low railroad fares to take a trip to the Pacific Coast at a minimum cost.
Fifty years ago, Seattle was a settlement of a few hundreds. Prior to 1852, it was but a meeting place for Indians; to-day it is the centre of a large and growing trans-Pacific shipping trade and one of the most attractive and prosperous cities on the Pacific slope.
The discovery of gold on Bonanza Creek in Alaska in 1896, and at Cape Nome in 1898 and 1899, and the wonderful growth of the Northwest, are amply illustrated in this latest Exposition, which also serves to bring out the marvelous development of Seattle itself.
The Pennsylvania Railroad Company now has on sale, excursion tickets to Seattle and other cities of the Northwest, good going and returning direct via any of the authorized transcontinental routes, at greatly reduced rates, and via San Francisco and Los Angeles at a slightly higher cost.
These tickets are good returning until October 31, enabling passengers to devote the entire Summer to the trip if they so desire.
The excellent train service of the Pennsylvania Railroad to Chicago and St. Louis, in connection with the fast trains of the western lines, afford a direct and convenient service.

REPORTS TO THE POLICE

Whose Blotter Says He Accused Her of Firing Two Shots at Herself—Rumors of Trouble.

Some mystery surrounds the sudden departure for Europe of Alfred Richardson, the Brooklyn hotel man. The mystery, which involves a tale of pistol shots, is made deeper by the steadfast assertion of his wife that he has not gone to Europe at all.

His wife is Mrs. Mary Richardson, owner of the largest hotel at Bath Beach, the Fort Lowry. Her husband, who was on the passenger list of the Hellig Olaf of the Scandinavian-American Line, and who rode to the dock yesterday in a touring car, with a detective beside him to see him safe aboard, owns the Montauk, Manhattan, and Bijou Hotels in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Richardson, her husband said, did not want him to go to Europe. In fact, before sailing, he himself said that he and she had had a disagreement over this, and that he had had difficulties in sailing against her will. It is also said that she watched him vigilantly during the last few days.

Mrs. Richardson says that there was undoubtedly shooting in the neighborhood of her hotel, but that it had nothing to do with herself or her husband. She says she is inclined to think it had to do with rats.

At all events, at about 1 A. M. yesterday the lodgers in Fort Lowry Hotel were awakened by the sound of two pistol shots. They seemed to come from the older part of the hotel, across the street—the part where Mr. and Mrs. Richardson lived.

Shortly after the shots the police of the Bath Avenue Station were startled by the appearance of Mr. Richardson, evidently in a state of trepidation. What he said led to this entry on the blotter:

> Alfred Richardson reported that his wife had fired two shots at herself in her room and that the room was locked, and that he wished an investigation as he thought she might have harmed herself.

The Lieutenant sent Detective Dowling to the hotel and detained Richardson. When Dowling got there he found Capt. Michael Devaney already on the scene. Devaney, half a block distant, had heard the shots. When he met Dowling he went to Mrs. Richardson's door and tried to get in. The door was locked and Mrs. Richardson didn't want to open it. The Captain said that if she didn't he would kick it open. She then unbolted the door.

He found no revolver and smelled no smoke. He sent Dowling back to the station to release Richardson, who came back pale and troubled. He refused flatly to see his wife. He said he was in the front room when the shots were fired, and supposed his wife had fired at herself, but that he acted in excitement and hurried to the station. The Captain suggested that some charge be made, but Richardson wouldn't hear of it. He said that, anyway, he was in a hurry, and went away.

Evidently he had made elaborate plans for an escape, though his wife says he had nothing to escape from. However, the touring car was waiting for him in front of his hotel, the Montauk, and in it were two friends and a detective—they saw him unscathed aboard his ship.

Mrs. Richardson said the whole story was ridiculous; that there had been no trouble at all between herself and her husband, and that he would be home last night. However, at two of his hotels it was said that he had sailed.

THREE DETECTIVES INDICTED.

Saloon Keeper Charges Inspector Herlihy's Men with Assault.

Indictments charging assault in the third degree were found by the Grand Jury yesterday against George F. Zimmerman, Joseph H. Kennedy, and John J. Houlahan, all detectives, attached to Inspector Herlihy's staff. They were taken before Judge Foster in General Sessions, where they pleaded not guilty to the charges, and were released on $500 bail each.

The complainant against the men is Fritz Lindinger, ex-President of the Liquor Dealers' Association, who owns a café at 105 Broad Street. According to his complaint, the detectives went to his place on the afternoon of June 16, and started a disturbance, declaring that the café was a poolroom, and threatened to arrest the men in there at the time.

One of the men, he said, tried to grab a $1 bill, with which a customer was paying for drinks, to use as evidence. A fight started, in which the detectives were ejected from the place. They returned later, however, with other men and arrested Lindinger on a charge of keeping a poolroom.

The case was dismissed by Magistrate Crane in the Tombs Court for lack of evidence. Lindinger then wrote to Commissioner Bingham, but receiving no satisfaction, brought his case to the attention of Assistant District Attorney Murphy. The indictments followed.

Mr. Lindinger said that, owing to a mistake in address, his place had been carried on the police lists for a number of years as a suspected poolroom. He wrote to Commissioner Bingham several years ago, asking that something be done to remedy this, even if it were necessary to station a man in his place. He said that this had not prevented his being annoyed frequently by detectives.

TOOK THE WRONG BOY.

Near-Sighted Man's Mistake Causes His Arrest and a Girl's, Too.

Robert Wilmerding of 214 West Thirty-sixth Street took Miss Agnes O'Keefe to her home at 601 West 135th Street about 10:15 o'clock last evening, and was saying good night when a woman living in the house stopped to speak to the girl. The woman had with her her small son, and Wilmerding invited the youngster to walk to a candy store on the corner.

Wilmerding is very near-sighted, and as he started up the street he did not realize that he had grasped by the hand six-year-old Ralph Fried, whose parents also live in 601 West 135th Street. At the corner, however, the boy became frightened and ran into a tailor's shop. Wilmerding followed him and tried to persuade him to accompany him to the candy store.

Herman Fried, the father, accompanied by Policeman McByrne, who had been told that his boy had gone up to the corner with a strange man, entered the tailor shop, and despite Wilmerding's protestations of innocence, the policeman arrested him. Then Fried insisted that McByrne return to the house and arrest Miss O'Keefe also, saying that she must have been cognizant of Wilmerding's purpose.

Miss O'Keefe became hysterical, but Fried was insistent, and she was arrested also. She and Wilmerding were locked up in the West 125th Street Station, and up to a late hour last night neither had been balled out.

Marries Miss Berger of Milwaukee Under the Pines of Colorado.

GRAND LAKE, Col., June 24.—William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and Miss Helen Virginia Berger of Milwaukee were married at 8:30 this morning at Kinnikinic Lodge, the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Levering, on the shore of Grand Lake. Only the immediate families of the couple were present.

The ceremony was performed outdoors, under the great pine trees along the shore of the lake, the Rev. H. S. Huntington of Crete, Neb., officiating. Miss Edna Baker of Lincoln, Neb., was maid of honor, and Samuel Berger, brother of the bride, was best man. The bridal party was gowned in white. The bride carried lilies of the valley and wore a wreath of the same flowers, and the maid of honor carried lavender sweet peas. The little flower girl, Mary Berger of Milwaukee, cousin of the bride, carried pink sweetpeas in her flower basket.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, Jr., will spend their honeymoon at Grand Lake, and will leave about Sept. 1 for Tucson, Ariz., where they expect to live for two years.

Beware of the Dangerous House-Fly

Flies are among the most dangerous insects we have. They walk over filthy places like sewers and garbage cans, and after eating the filthy food which they find there, they come into your house and walk on the food you eat, carrying on their feet the germs which live in filth. These germs are not only filthy and disgusting, but many of them cause such diseases as tuberculosis, typhoid fever, cholera infantum and Summer complaint. When the flies bring them from some dirty place to your food, or leave some of them when they crawl on your face or hands, you may swallow these germs without knowing it and be taken ill with one of these diseases.

Screens should be placed at doors and windows during the warm weather, to keep the flies out of the house. If you cannot screen all the rooms, you should screen those in which food is kept; and if anyone is sick in the house, flies should be kept from the sickroom.

No one should buy or use meats, fruits, candy, or other food which is left in front of stores, or anywhere else where flies may feed and walk upon it, or where the dust of the street may settle upon it.

Flies lay their eggs chiefly in stable manure, and if this is left without screens or other covers to keep the flies away, great numbers will be hatched in every stable. If you know of stores where food is not covered from flies, or of stables that have swarms of them around, write to the Board of Health about them, and the board will make the store-keepers or stablemen obey its rules. But before you report other people for being careless and dirty and so making it possible for flies to become a nuisance, be sure that your own house is clean, and that no garbage cans or boxes are left uncovered to attract flies.

If you and all the people you know will follow this advice, you will be doing your part in the national movement to exterminate the house-fly, and thereby remove one of the greatest dangers to health.

Rules for dealing with the fly nuisance may be had on application to

TO APPEAL TO TAFT FOR MISSIONARIES

General Presbyterian Council Will Ask Him to Intervene in Their Behalf.

SOME VIEWS ON DIVORCE

Clergyman Thinks the Church Can Help to Eradicate Some of the Present-Day Evils.

The General Council of the Alliance of Reformed Churches holding the Presbyterian System at its morning session yesterday voted unanimously to ask President Taft to intervene in behalf of two American missionaries who are under indictment for criminal libel in the Congo Free State. The Rev. Dr. William M. Morrison and the Rev. Dr. William Henry Sheppard are the missionaries who have been indicted at the instance of the Kassai Rubber Company, a Congo Free State corporation.

The indictment is the result of a published article in which the missionaries are alleged to have stated that the Kassai Company cruelly and unjustly treated the Bakuba tribe of natives.

The resolutions to be presented to President Taft say that the indictment not only subjects the missionaries to an exorbitant fine, but also requires that they be tried at a place 900 miles distant from their homes and 1,000 miles from the witnesses on whom they will rely for vindication. The reports of four American and two British Consuls in the Congo Free State, the resolutions state, attest to the truth of the statements in the alleged libelous article.

The committee appointed to present the resolutions to President Taft consists of the Rev. Dr. S. H. Chester of Nashville, Tenn., Chairman; the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, United States Senator Elihu Root, Stanton J. Teele, the Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor, President of Vassar College; John S. Larner, and the Rev. Dr. J. M. Schick.

Demand Congo Reforms.

Another set of resolutions, referring to conditions in the Congo Free State, was adopted. These resolutions are addressed to the Governments of the United States and Great Britain, and are as follows:

> Whereas, The Government of both Great Britain and the United States declined to recognize the transfer of the sovereignty of the Congo Independent State from the personal rule of King Leopold to that of the Belgian Government without proper guarantees of reform in the administration of these States; and
>
> Whereas, We learn with profound regret that the inhuman exploitation of the Congo natives continues essentially unabated and that the guarantees demanded have not been given;
>
> Therefore, This Council of the Reformed Churches throughout the world holding the Presbyterian System, now in session assembled in the City of New York, respectfully appeals to both the Governments of Great Britain and the United States to take such action as will secure without further delay on the part of the Belgian Government the abolition of forced labor, the restoration to the natives of their rights in the soil, and the institution of those humane conditions which ought to accompany all civilized Governments.
>
> The Council further empowers and requests its President and General Secretary, and the American Secretary, to communicate this appeal to the Governments of Great Britain and the United States with all proper formalities, on its behalf.

After the discussion of the Congo situation, the council listened to addresses dealing with the divorce and whisky problems. Dr. Dickey of Philadelphia, speaking of divorce, said that the church could lessen the number by prohibiting its ministers from marrying divorced persons except such as had been divorced on grounds recognized by the Scriptures. The situation, he added, is intensified when persons of position and wealth go into the divorce courts.

Harmful Divorces.

"National intrigues," he said, "shame us all alike. The defiant and disgraceful things done by those whose wealth and social standing make their shameful conduct more surprising greatly retard reform.

"The helpful wife of poverty, the mother of children born in earlier and humbler station, is cast off by the gainers of sudden wealth, who are dazzled by footlights, and devote their degraded citizenship to the corruption of the State in defiance of the Church. It is to be hoped that this disregard of law and righteousness by those of whom better things might be expected will create a stronger sentiment of reform."

This will be the last day of the alliance. The Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell of the Marble Collegiate Church, this city, will succeed the Rev. Dr. Dykes of Cambridge, England, as President of the alliance. The next General Council will be held at Aberdeen, Scotland.

FEEDS CATS FOR A LIVING

And the Strays Know Peters and Follow Him About Town.

A man, followed by half a dozen cats of all complexions, created some little comment in Seventh Avenue, just off Times Square, yesterday, and passersby wondered what might be the secret.

"He is advertising a vaudeville stunt," said a skeptical person in the crowd.

"Naw he ain't; them's his pets," said a street urchin.

"Wonder where he's bound," chimed in a third.

By the time the man had reached Seventh Avenue and Forty-second Street a crowd of fifty or more was following him.

The man explained to an inquirer that he was not an advertising agent.

"My name is Henry Peters," he said, "and I am the 'cat-meat' man. It has long been a lucrative business in London to prepare food for store cats, and that's what I do. The business of a waiter, which I follow usually, does not pay so well in the Summer months, so I sell meat for pet cats.

"Cats should have a little boiled liver from time to time, and I get the best liver I can, fix it up into portions, then go round to my regular patrons and sell the portions at from 2 to 5 cents each.

"Many of these cats have come to know me and wait on the sidewalk for me on stated days of the week. Their owners feed them on the sidewalk often, and this attracts stray cats. These are the cats that follow me for blocks to pick up a stray morsel from time to time."

Then the "cat-meat man" moved on with a string of seven cats in his wake and a crowd following him. Every now and then he would drop a bit of liver on the pavement and watch the cats scramble for it. This seemed to afford him much amusement.

INSIDE PRICES ALLEGED.

Big Dealers Said to Buy Butter and Eggs Below Market.

CHICAGO, June 24.—In a bill for an injunction filed here to-day it is alleged that the Chicago Butter and Egg Board, through two committees, arbitrarily fixes and gives out for publication as official figures prices for butter and eggs which are from one-half to one and one-half cents under the prices actually paid by dealers.

The bill was filed in behalf of Edwin L. McAdams, a commission merchant, who alleges that the eighteen members who make up the two committees have contracts throughout the United States to buy butter and eggs at the quotations fixed in Chicago by the Butter and Egg Board. He alleges that the committeemen, members of big firms, are thus able to purchase at a lower price than other dealers, which transactions in effect operate in restraint of trade.

DINE IN THEIR SHIRT SLEEVES.

Hot Weather's Effect Upon William Sherer's Hosts at the Astor.

Some 300 friends of William Sherer, manager of the New York Clearing House, gave a dinner in his honor at the Hotel Astor last night. Mr. Sherer was Grand Master of Masons in this State in 1891 and 1892. It was a warm weather function. The guests who sat at the dais with Justice Townsend Scudder and Mr. Sherer kept their coats on.

For the rest, the distance to the dais could be measured by the state of undress. Those nearer the dais removed only their coats, those more remote their coats and vests, and those on the outer fringe their coats, vests, and suspenders.

A. Barton Hepburn, President of the Chase National Bank, spoke of the business of the country as greater than ever before, and predicted prosperity that would make so-called boom times of the past seem really normal times.

Derrick Brown, John L. Thomas, and Robert J. Kenworthy, Deputy Grand Master of Masons, also spoke, and George Freifeld, Past Master of Anglo-Saxon Lodge of Masons, in behalf of all those present, presented a gold smoking service to Mr. Sherer.

Some of those present were F. J. MacRae, Vice President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Col. E. S. Fowler, Edward Sherer, Secretary of the Metropolitan Savings Bank; A. M. Dederer, Vice President of the Metropolitan Bank; Almet R. Latson, President of the Union League Club of Brooklyn; Horace F. Hutchinson, President of the Broadway Savings Bank; B. G. Mitchell, Vice President of the Central Trust Company, and Jacob C. Klinck, President of the Williamsburg Trust Company.

FIRE IN A HOSPITAL.

Farewell Dinner to Dr. Krauenthal Delayed While Guests Put It Out.

Twenty or more physicians and surgeons attached to the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, in two converted dwellings at 1,917 and 1,919 Madison Avenue, were entertaining at dinner in the hospital dining room last night Dr. Henry W. Krauenthal, their chief, who sails for Europe to-morrow, when Miss A. S. Barden, the Superintendent, burst into the room crying that there was a fire in the chimney. Half of the guests followed Miss Barden, who led them to the kitchen, where she had discovered the fire, while the others scattered through the wards to calm the patients, thirty-eight in number, of whom about half were children.

The majority of the patients were unaware that there was a fire, and as the fire-fighting corps in the hospital soon had the blaze out, there was no panic. An alarm was turned in, but there was no work for the firemen to do when they arrived.

The dinner to Dr. Krauenthal was somewhat delayed, but the guests returned to their places after all the excitement was over.

FIGHTS DR. BECK'S WILL.

His Last One Made His Brothers and Sisters the Chief Heirs.

Decision was reserved by Surrogate Cohalan yesterday in the suit brought by Mrs. Alexander W. Beck, widow of the German physician, who died last October, to break his will. She protested against the probate of the last will of her husband, made in March, 1907, under which his brothers and sisters get all of his property, consisting of real estate in Arlington, N. J., and Long Island.

Mrs. Beck contended that the will executed by her husband in June, 1901, which gave her the entire estate, should be upheld. Alfred and Charles Steckler, attorneys for Mrs. Beck, asserted that the Becks had lived happily and that Mrs. Beck nursed the doctor at St. Vincent's Hospital during his last illness, and that all the circumstances in the case would justify the Surrogate in upholding the first document.

Ex-Justice Goldfogle, appearing for the brothers and sisters, held that the will of 1907 was a valid document and that Dr. Beck had a perfect right to deprive the wife of certain rights in his estate if he so desired.

F. C. HEWITT'S WILL PROBATED

Mrs. Arnot Withdraws Objections—Heirs to Receive $1,300,000.

OWEGO, N. Y., June 24.—Mrs. Charlotte H. Arnot of Elmira formally withdrew this morning her objections to the will made by her brother, Frederick C. Hewitt, the Owego millionaire, and the will was admitted to probate before Special Surrogate Frank A. Boll.

This morning's proceeding was very formal. The heirs filed statements, as did Mrs. Charlotte Arnot, who was not mentioned in the will, that they had withdrawn their objections to the probating of the will, and there being no objections, the document received official sanction.

As has been stated, it was decided among the heirs and the many beneficiaries that $1,300,000 of the estate is to be divided among the heirs instead of the $310,000 bequeathed by the original will. How the $1,300,000 is to be divided among the heirs has not been made public.

FLORIDA EAST COAST BONDS.

J. P. Morgan & Co., the first National Bank, and the National City Bank announced yesterday the opening for sale of a $10,000,000 issue of first mortgage 4½ per cent. gold bonds of the Florida East Coast Railway. The bonds are dated June 1, 1909, and are due June 1, 1959. The Bankers' Trust Company is named as trustee. The bonds will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The total issue is $12,000,000, of which $2,000,000 are reserved under conservative restrictions.

KILLARNEY VICTIMS FOUND.

Bodies of Mrs. Coburn of Lowell, Mass., and Two Others Recovered.

KILLARNEY, Ireland, June 24.—The bodies of three of the women who lost their lives in the boating accident on Lower Killarney Lake yesterday have been found by a police searching party on Muckross shore, two miles from where the boat containing the tourists was swamped.

The body of one of the victims was identified this afternoon as that of Mrs. H. W. Coburn of Lowell, Mass., who arrived here on June 22. Mrs. Coburn's name was first thought to be Miss Catum. The two other bodies recovered were those of Englishwomen.

MESSINA, June 24.—Seismic disturbances continue daily, the separate shocks reaching a record in the last twenty-four hours, when they numbered twenty-three.

Considerable alarm is manifested among the inhabitants, but the disturbances have caused little damage.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LIVERPOOL, June 24.—A cablegram received from the salvage company says it will be impossible to float the Cunard Line steamer Slavonia, which went ashore on Flores Island, Azores, a fortnight ago.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—Lieut. Commander J. H. Gibbons, until recently American Naval Attache at London, has arrived in St. Petersburg and will spend a week here and in Moscow before going out to the Far East, where he will assume a command in the American Asiatic squadron.

LISBON, June 24.—The United States training ship Itasca arrived here to-day.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—The Senate has indicted Theodore Nikitin, former Vice Minister of Agriculture, on the charge of having plundered the Government of millions of dollars as Superintendent of the forests on the Petchora.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—A resolution was adopted to-day by the Council of the Empire, urging the Government to take measures for the exclusion of Asiatics from Amur, a province of Asiatic Russia, in Siberia, the Island of Saghalin, and Kamtschatka.

BUELOW IS BEATEN ON DEATH TAX BILL

Reichstag Rejects Proposal to Include Inheritance by Direct Heirs, 194 to 186.

CHANCELLOR MAY RESIGN

Defection of Conservatives from His Coalition Precipitates Political Crisis and Causes Many Rumors.

BERLIN, June 24.—The Reichstag added to the Government's difficulties in its proposed financial reforms to-day by rejecting, by a vote of 194 to 186, the Imperial Ministry's bill to extend inheritance taxes to direct heirs, including widows and children. The President of the Reichstag announced this evening that the bill in its present form would be dropped.

It is rumored to-night that the Reichstag will adjourn soon until Autumn, to permit the Government to revise its financial scheme, but as the Chancellor and the other Ministers have repeatedly expressed the determination to impose a further tax on property, it is impossible to foresee how they will be able to clear the situation.

Other reports say that Parliament will be dissolved or that Prince Bülow will resign, but nothing definite on this point can be learned.

Public excitement concerning the situation showed itself to-day by the filling of the public and diplomatic galleries of the Reichstag to overflowing. The Ministerial and Federal Council benches were crowded. Chancellor von Bülow and his colleagues followed the ebb and flow of the debate with the tensest interest. The Chancellor, however, did not speak. He left the Chamber when he learned that the voting was likely to be unfavorable to his bill.

The members of the House gathered in record strength, 381 being present out of a total of 397. One of the members present declined to vote; nine members were absent on account of illness, and four from other causes; three seats were vacant owing to deaths. The National Liberal, Herr Quarck, although seriously ill insisted upon being carried to the House in order to participate in the vote.

The speeches were exceedingly bitter, especially those of the Conservatives and National Liberals, who hitherto had formed a coalition supporting the Chancellor. There was much cheering, and sometimes ironical laughter, as the orators expressed the views of the party leaders from the platform. The Conservatives, Centrists, Poles, Alsatians, and Independents united to form the majority against the Government. The Imperial Conservatives, National Liberals, Radicals, and Socialists voted in favor of the measure.

RUSSIANS TO STAY IN PERSIA.

Troops Will Not Be Withdrawn Till Foreign Interests Are Safe.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 24.—Russia has received no demand from Persia for the immediate evacuation by the Russian troops of the Northern part of that Empire, and will not comply if such a demand is made. The Russian troops will not be withdrawn until the lives and property of foreigners in Northern Persia are secure.

DEFENDS EDISON CEMENT CO.

President Thompson Makes Reply to Receivership Suit.

Printed statements that William C. French, a Philadelphia lawyer, representing twelve stockholders, had given notice of an application for a receiver for the Edison Portland Cement Company were shown to R. H. Thompson, President of the company, yesterday. He said that while the company has never paid dividends, it is on a firm financial basis, and such profits as have accrued have been put into improvements.

"We have no fear of being unable to show to the court that the company is on a firm basis," said Mr. Thompson at his office in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. "The reason we have not made money is because the cement market is in a turmoil, due to price cutting by a number of the older concerns. An effort is being made in Atlantic City now to get together and establish some price that will give the manufacturers a fair profit.

"I know of cases where thousands of barrels of cement have been sold at 5 cents a barrel under the cost of manufacture, and no firm or corporation could live for any length of time under those conditions. We are making about 7,000 barrels of cement a day, and we are marketing it so that the returns pay the expense of operation. There is no reason for a receiver, and I do not believe that one will be appointed.

"Mr. Edison has so much faith in his invention for the making of cement that he has invested nearly $2,000,000 in this plant, and I have quite a snug sum in it myself. If we can afford to wait for returns, certainly the small stockholder should not be uneasy."

SIGNATURE FORGED, BRANDENBURG SAYS

He Declares Somebody Else Has Put a Fraudulent Article in Place of the Genuine.

DOESN'T SAY WHO OR WHY

But Avers He Did Turn In a Real Cleveland Signature and Production to The Times—Admits Kidnapping.

Broughton Brandenburg testified yesterday in his own behalf in answer to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree for which he is on trial in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. His defense amounts to this: The late Grover Cleveland did write and sign the article which he is accused of forging before he sold it to THE NEW YORK TIMES. He handed to Mr. Lincoln of THE TIMES not only the original signed article but also a copy. The paper produced in court is the copy and not the original. The original he has never seen since he handed it to Mr. Lincoln.

Besides all this Brandenburg declares that the signature in evidence which Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Reick of THE TIMES have sworn was continuously in their possession from the time the defendant gave it to them till they turned it over to the District Attorney, except for the brief periods in which it was intrusted to Mr. Ybarra for conveyance to Mr. Hasting, the executor of the Cleveland estate, is a forgery.

In giving evidence on his own behalf Brandenburg was exceedingly confident. He seemed to delight in his account of his interviews with the late President, and related with relish the advice he said Mr. Cleveland gave to him on how to get a better price for his magazine contributions. Toward the end of the morning session his own counsel, Mr. Jacoby, had to question him sharply in order to get the information he needed. Mr. Jacoby seemed annoyed because the defendant could not give absolutely clear particulars as to the whereabouts of the original copy of the article at the time which additional copies were made in Miss Bacon's typewriting office.

For the last half hour of the day for the people Mr. Nott cross-examined the defendant. Mr. Nott occupied himself for the present entirely with trying to show that there was another side to the career of the defendant to that which had been painted by the defense. He questioned Brandenburg sternly with regard to certain episodes in his experience as a magazine writer, and endeavored to bring out that his married life had been irregular and that he had been guilty of kidnapping a boy in St. Louis. Mr. Jacoby objected, with a great deal of heat, but in reply to a question framed by the court Brandenburg admitted that he had kidnapped the son of Mrs. Brandenburg by a former husband.

Story of Talks with Cleveland.

Mr. Jacoby, examining Brandenburg at the beginning of the session, brought out that he had been to see Mr. Cleveland on March 4 last year in relation to an article which appeared soon afterward in The Herald. Brandenburg said:

"Mr. Cleveland complained of being bothered by interviewers from magazines and newspapers. I said to him that as he drew a secondary income from his pen it would be a good idea for him to put his ideas into concrete form as articles. He was pleased with the notion and asked how it could be done."

The witness threw his arm over the back of his chair and explained eagerly how he had quickly formulated and suggested to Mr. Cleveland the idea of a series of three articles on the political campaign of 1908, on the issues as they developed, and on the doubtful States. He mentioned fifteen or twenty topics on which Mr. Cleveland could write, and was asked to put them down.

"They were big general topics," said the witness. "Then Mr. Cleveland asked me about compensation and mentioned several sums he had received. I forget how much he said he got, but I told him it was inadequate and he had been taken advantage of. I offered him $2,000 for the three articles, my compensation to be what I could get over and above that sum."

Brandenburg said he went back to see Mr. Cleveland the next day. Mr. Jacoby was so long in getting out the facts that Justice Fitzgerald bade him "get down to material matters." The witness said of this interview with Mr. Cleveland on March 6:

"As soon as I came in, although he was not expecting me that day, Mr. Cleveland produced a number of yellow sheets——"

He opened an envelope and took out several sheets of legal cap torn in half, and had them marked for identification to be presented to the jury as showing the size of the ex-President's note paper. He went on:

"Mr. Cleveland said: 'I have felt for a long time that something should be said, but I have never been sure that I should say it.' He talked away to me, while I tried to read what he had written. Each one of these slips could have been published separately, as they dealt with different topics. There were fifteen or eighteen groups of these papers, each of them containing from two to four sheets."

Brandenburg further characterized these yellow slips as about the size of a Western Union telegraph blank, and went on to tell how he had taken them to his home and copied them, and then made such alterations in this draft of the article as Mr. Cleveland authorized.

Mr. Jacoby examined him closely as to the ultimate fate of these yellow slips of paper.

Q.—What became of these sheets? A.—I gave them back at my final interview with Mr. Cleveland, about March 1.

Q.—Have you tried to trace them since? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you seen them again? A.—No.

Q.—What was their contents? A.—They contained the matter of THE TIMES article, except for such alterations as were made by Mr. Cleveland, or were authorized by him.

Q.—Where did you copy them? A.—In my study at 71 Irving Place on my typewriter.

Q.—Did you show these sheets to any one? A.—While they were in my possession they were read by a number of persons, but I never handed them to any one to read. Any one could read them as they lay on my desk, or while I had them spread around.

Three Copies Made.

Brandenburg saw Mr. Cleveland on March 6 or March 7, and went over the first fair copy of the article with him. Alterations were made as the result of an hour or two's conference, and again the witness took the yellow sheets and the first draft home. In two or three days he had made a second fair copy, with two duplicates, each of which had ten pages besides a cover.

Part of the first draft, he said, he had shown to Mr. Baker of Everybody's Magazine before his final interview with Mr. Cleveland. He did not show him the paragraphs relating to Bryan, which were afterward cut out, or the whole of the rest of the article.

In describing his final interview with Mr. Cleveland between March 13 and 16 the witness entered into such fullness of detail that Mr. Nott objected, and even Mr. Jacoby tried to cut him off.

"Mr. Cleveland," said Brandenberg, "was sitting turned away from his desk. There was no work lying in front of him for him to do. He spoke in a weary kind of way. He told me he did not feel well enough to go thoroughly into the article at that time. I placed before him one of the carbon copies of the final fair copy of the article, as well as the first draft and the original notes.

"We first discussed other matters, and then to call his attention back I picked up the carbon copy and read every word of the article, calling his attention to special points. Then he took the article and ran through it. He only spent ten minutes on it. He made no changes, though he had his pen in his hand and dipped it in the ink from time to time. Before he had finished he turned to the last page and signed his name. He did not blot it, but allowed it to dry, shielding it as he turned back and read over a few passages."

The signature which was cut off the article bought by THE TIMES was shown to the defendant.

"Is this the signature Mr. Cleveland wrote?" he was asked.

"I can say positively it is not for two reasons."

Mr. Nott objected to the defendant giving any reasons, but Justice Fitzgerald ruled that he might state the facts.

"This signature," said Brandenburg, "is heavier, and in the signature made by Mr. Cleveland there was a tiny flaw in the paper above the 'l,' which allowed the ink to come through."

"When did you first see this signature?" asked Mr. Jacoby. Then he added quickly, "I must ask the District Attorney to refrain from his cynical laugh."

"I wasn't laughing," protested Mr. Nott.

"I refer to your assistant," replied Mr. Jacoby. Mr. Manley looked surprised. The witness finally declared that he had seen the signature for the first time when it was produced in court.

The examination suddenly shifted to Brandenburg's disappearance from New York before his case came up in court. Mr. Jacoby cleared his own skirts of any participation in the matter by bringing out that he did not even know the defendant then. Brandenburg said he had jumped his bail because he expected to be convicted under the conditions then existing. These conditions he explained as unreadiness to proceed with his case and being absolutely "broke."

He contradicted the evidence given by Detective Sergeant Fitzsimmons, who said that he had declared in San Francisco that if he had had enough money he would have gone to Algiers or Persia. What he did say, according to his testimony, was, "If you had waited till October you would have saved yourself trouble. If I had wanted to escape I could have gone to Tangiers or Venezuela with the money I spent to come here."

Bringing the scene back to New York, Mr. Jacoby began to inquire into the dealings of the defendant with Miss Bacon and Miss Fyron, the typewriters.

Q.—Where was the original copy of the article at the time you visited Miss Bacon? A.—Either in the hands of The New York Herald or The Broadway Magazine.

Q.—What copies had you in your possession when you went to Miss Bacon? A.—I had only one copy.

Q.—In what condition was this copy? A.—It was half ruined by a dash of water as I was going across Lake Hopatcong in a steamer.

Here Mr. Jacoby suddenly broke off and asked if Mrs. Brandenburg is the mother of the boy with whom the defendant was arrested. The witness replied that she was, and then counsel called the attention of the jury to her as she sat in court by asking if she was present.

The defendant was allowed to give a long detailed account of the way in which the copy of the article in his pocket had been spoiled by water.

Q.—In what condition was it? A.—The first pages were legible; the last ones were partially illegible, as the ink had run. A few words were totally illegible to any one not familiar with the article.

Q.—Did you copy it? A.—While I was on the train I wrote out what I could of the article.

Q.—How much was rewritten? A.—I can't say. Less than half.

The only conversation Brandenburg could remember having with Miss Bacon was remarking to her "about some phrase" which the girl was vainly struggling to get into typewriting. "That's Clevelandesque; this is one of the finest things he has ever written for me."

Gives The Times Original.

Brandenburg swore that what he did at Miss Bacon's desk was the finishing of the recopying and that he then did other work. He explained his ability to fill in the illegible portions by saying that he could have reproduced the whole article in three hours, as he knew it nearly by heart.

The copy of the article put in evidence as the one sold to THE TIMES as the original article was then shown to him.

"Can you tell whether this is the original Cleveland article?" he was asked.

"It is not," said Brandenburg.

"How can you tell?"

"Because the back roll of the original article was much more worn than this."

The defendant also pointed out several verbal and typographical errors in the copy, which he asserted were not in the original.

Coming to his interviews with Mr. Lincoln of THE TIMES, Brandenburg swore that he handed to Mr. Lincoln in an envelope not only the original article, but a copy of another article by Andrew Carnegie and some Sunday stories. The original article, he was prepared to swear, had a cover with a title indicating its contents. The article produced has no cover.

This led up to an examination into the adventures of the original signed article. While Mr. Cleveland was yet alive, Brandenburg said, the only person who might have seen the complete article was Pomeroy Barton of the editorial staff of The London Daily Mail. The question of selling the series of three articles was, however, taken up with Appleton's, Collier's Weekly, and The Saturday Evening Post. The Sunday editor of The Herald, F. C. Drake, Lindsay Denison, and Mr. Baker of Everybody's had also heard something about it.

"Where was the original article from March 15 to Aug. 21?" asked Mr. Jacoby.

"During a great part of the time it was locked up in the top drawer of my manuscript cabinet in Irving Place. It was after I had relinquished my tenancy at my Summer home at Lake Hopatcong."

"Did any persons see the original signed article before Aug. 10?"

"G. G. Fleming of 741 Fifth Avenue saw it on one occasion in June and not long after July 4. I don't remember distinctly any other person taking and looking at it."

The original article was offered in July and August to The Broadway Magazine and to the Sunday edition of The Herald, Brandenburg said. Mr. Jacoby examined his own witness with a good deal of asperity to get him to state exactly the dates on which he handed the original article to these publications and received them back again. All he could arrive at was that Brandenburg first went to The Broadway Magazine and the article was retained there for some time, and that then, not later than Aug. 7, he passed it on for consideration to The Herald, which held it at least two weeks.

Dealings With The Times.

Just before luncheon Brandenburg's dealings with THE TIMES were reached. The examination on these lines was continued after recess. The court refused to allow the witness to explain why he handed to Mr. Lincoln, as he contends he did, not only the original, but a copy of the article.

Q.—Did you have any letters from Mr. Cleveland? A.—Two or three.

Q.—How recent were they? A.—The most recent was a few months before March, 1908, and the first was written in the early part of 1907.

Q.—Were they signed "Grover Cleveland"? A.—They were written entirely in his hand.

Q.—How long were they in your possession? A.—Till just before I gave the article to THE TIMES.

The witness declared that he was not asked to produce proof of the genuineness of his article by THE TIMES till Sept. 25, after Mr. Hastings had written attacking it. He denied that he had ever told either Mr. Lincoln or Mr. Reick anything about its genuineness, but stated that Mr. Lincoln, in showing him the telegram from Mrs. Cleveland before publication of the article, had said:

"The Bryanites know all about this and are going to head it off if they can."

Brandenburg admitted that he had noticed when the article was returned to him by THE TIMES that the signature had been cut off, but he stated that the article was folded up then and he had not examined it to see if it was the original document. He had returned to Mr. Reick's secretary the same copy which THE TIMES had given back to him. Mr. Lincoln, he stated, had said to him when he protested about the cutting off of the signature: "Probably some autograph-hunting printer has grabbed it. I will hunt it up."

Then followed Brandenburg's story of an interview with Mr. Ochs, Mr. Reick, and Mr. Miller of THE TIMES, when, as he said, for the first time he had been asked to produce proof of the genuineness of the article. He went to the former offices of Mr. Cleveland in the Metropolitan Life Building in search of the original yellow slips, but found that all the ex-President's papers had been taken away by Dr. Finley and Mr. Hastings. He could not get the papers from them if they had them.

After a few questions as to Brandenburg's relations with Mr. Hastings, Mr. Jacoby then handed over the witness to Mr. Nott for cross-examination.

Mr. Nott proceeded to attack the picture Brandenburg had drawn of himself as a star magazine writer. He asked him about a trip to Mexico for the Century to endeavor to get President Diaz's autobiography, for which he received $500 for expenses. Mr. Nott had a letter from Richard Watson Gilder about it, but the court refused to allow its introduction, remarking that Brandenburg was under no obligation to get the biography.

After a question or two about an article on "The Dead Cities of Yucatan" in Appleton's, Mr. Nott took up the witness's bail jumping.

Q.—You had been out on bail three months before your trial was moved? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew the bail put up for you would be forfeited? A.—Yes, and I knew I could pay it back.

Q.—Your main reason for expecting conviction was that your case was not prepared? A.—Yes.

Q.—You have been back from San Francisco for only six weeks now. Your case is pretty well prepared, though, isn't it?

The witness replied by pleading that a number of his witnesses were scattered. He mentioned Miss Hudson, a writer; Pomeroy Burton of The London Daily Mail, and a solicitor and canvasser, whose name and address he didn't know.

"Well, Mr. Burton is an editor of a great London daily. Did you expect him here?" asked Mr. Nott scornfully. "And you left for San Francisco on account of a man whose name and address you don't know."

Admits Kidnapping His Son.

Then Mr. Nott set to work to make the witness tell of the kidnapping charge at St. Louis. Mr. Jacoby objected fiercely, but the District Attorney kept on. Brandenburg tried to explain.

"I want to save you trouble," he said.

"I don't want you to save me any trouble," retorted Mr. Nott.

The Court took a hand, Justice Fitzgerald framing the question. "Ask him," he ruled, "if he committed a crime in St. Louis. He can refuse to answer if he likes on the ground that he will incriminate himself."

Brandenburg did thus refuse; but when Mr. Nott repeated the question, on the advice of counsel, he did reply. His answer was:

"I did commit the crime of kidnapping."

Mr. Jacoby was aghast. He pleaded with the Court to rule this to be the answer of a layman who did not understand the legal points involved in the St. Louis charge. It is feared that Branderburg's admission may seriously affect his chances when he is taken to St. Louis to face the indictment there.

Mr. Jacoby wanted permission to cross-examine Brandenburg then and there on this point in order that the jury might see that no lawyer had put an explanation of the matter into his mouth, but permission was refused. Mr. Nott then passed to Brandenburg's marital relations.

"Is the lady with whom you were living in Irving Place your wife?" he asked.

"I think so," replied the witness.

Court was then adjourned till 10 o'clock to-day. Mr. Jacoby stated afterward to-day that in advising his client to reply to the question put by the court he had supposed that he would deny the crime and would justify the taking away of young Cabanne, son of the present Mrs. Brandenburg. He held a conference afterward with Mr. Nott on the effect of this incident on the St. Louis indictment.

DANCING MASTERS FIGHT LICENSE LAW

They Organize for a Campaign Against Paying an Annual Fee of $50.

DEGREES MAY BE IN ORDER

"Doctor of Salome Dancing" One of the Possibilities in the New College of Teachers.

Don't be astonished if, when walking up Broadway next Winter, you see a sign reading "Isadora Duncan, D. G. D.," or "Gertrude Hoffman, D. S. D." The mystic initials will stand for "Doctor of Greek Dancing" and "Doctor of Salome Dancing," and these will be honorary degrees in the new college which the Association of New York Dancing Teachers proposes to establish.

The second meeting of the association which has just been formed to protect its members against the new law which goes into effect on Sept. 30, requiring dancing teachers to pay a license of $50 a year, was held yesterday afternoon at Duryea's Dancing Academy, 200 West Seventy-second Street, and plans for a crusade against the law were discussed by twenty members of the association.

A lawyer has already suggested an injunction as a possible means of evading the law, but most of the members, including Mr. Duryea himself, said that they would be arrested sooner than pay the license and be classed with dance hall men. The college idea also was proposed by Mr. Duryea, who is President of the new association.

"Dancing teachers belong to a profession, not a trade," he said, "and we should have a charter like any college—not a license. Any man who wishes to become a member of the profession should be obliged to pass an examination, proving that he is capable of teaching dancing.

"The law as it stands allows any one without any knowledge of dancing to teach if he pays $50. It protects the very vices it is said to be aimed against. Now, in proper dancing academies the 'bear hug' and the proximity of faces during a waltz are frowned upon. In the first place, they are unhygienic. Let men who are versed in dancing examine each professor carefully."

William Pitt Rivers had thought that perhaps the law was a good thing and that it might abolish the evil of dance halls; but at the conclusion of Mr. Duryea's speech he seemed inclined to agree with the President of the association.

Mme. Elizabetta Menzeli, who at one time danced with "The Black Crook," and now teaches Salome and other dances, according to her circular, was the only woman teacher present, but she was emphatic in her approval of the course of action which the society seems to have decided upon.

Abraham Ehrlich, 75 Stanton Street, President of the Association of East Side Dancing Teachers, said he didn't believe that his organization could help much.

"Most of our dancing teachers work in sweatshops in the daytime, and they spend their money at night in their own dance halls. They really don't make anything." He admitted that in some of these places men lured girls away from their homes.

The college idea was considered a good one, but it was felt that immediate action about the law was more essential than an attempt to make a new law. Those present all gave some money to the cause, and it is the purpose of the society to retain a lawyer long enough at least to discover what can be done.

It was suggested that there were many women who taught dancing on a small scale who would be prevented from teaching now because they would be unable to pay the license. It is said that altogether now there are 210 teachers of dancing in New York, twenty-six of them having already joined the new association.

Thirty inspectors are to be appointed by the Mayor, according to the new law, to examine the dancing academies. The intention is that their salaries shall be paid out of the $50 license fees.

The officers of the association are Oscar Duryea, President, 200 West Seventy-second Street; A. P. Furman, Vice President, 107th Street and Park Avenue; Alois Grau, Treasurer, Eighty-fourth Street and Third Avenue, and Thomas J. Long, Secretary, 145th Street and Third Avenue.

MRS. JENNY LOSES WILL FIGHT

Document Giving Her but Half of the Estate Upheld.

The contest over the will of John G. Jenny, who died in St. Vincent's Hospital on Nov. 14, 1908, brought by his widow, Anna E. Jenny of 235 West Thirty-seventh Street, came to a close yesterday. Surrogate Cohalan admitted to probate the will dated Oct. 21, 1908, which disposed of a $40,000 estate, giving about $20,000 to relatives and friends, and making Mrs. Jenny the residuary legatee.

Mrs. Jenny petitioned for the probate of a will bearing the date of Feb. 19, 1900, under which she was made the sole beneficiary and executrix. She alleged that the document of 1908 was executed when her husband was of unsound mind.

Morris J. Werner, an attorney, and Thomas G. Lambert, an orderly at St. Vincent's Hospital, were the subscribing witnesses to the 1908 will. The former testified that Mr. Jenny was of sound mind when he signed the paper. It came out during the testimony of Lambert that he did not know the nature of the document he was called upon to sign.

He said that on one occasion, when Mr. Jenny was to sign a power of attorney, C. A. Houston, one of his wife's counsel, came prepared with the paper, and while the sick man was unconscious Houston made the cross, or mark, requested Lambert to write the name of "John G. Jenny" near it, and then Houston drew Mr. Jenny's hand across the paper.

"Did Mr. Jenny know what he was doing?" was asked of Lambert.

"No, he did not," was the reply.

FORGED CITY PAY CHECK.

Former Clerk in Civil Service Bureau Gets Prison Sentence.

Emanuel Keyser of 79 West 113th Street, a former clerk in the Civil Service Bureau, pleaded guilty yesterday, before Justice Fitzgerald in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, to forgery in the second degree, and was sentenced to serve not less than one year nor more than two years in Sing Sing.

Keyser, it was charged, got possession of a blank City Paymaster's check and filled it out for $200, payable to Edward Meyers, and cashed it at Brill Brothers. He was arrested last November.

When the prisoner was arraigned he pleaded for mercy on the ground that he had a wife and three children who needed his support. Justice Fitzgerald replied that he had understood from the report of probation officers that Keyser had practically deserted his wife at one time, and that he had been a thorn in the side of the city officials for several years.

Probation officers told the court that Keyser used to find out the names of civil service appointees and get money from them under the pretext that he would get them places.

New Golf Club at Arcola, N. J.

The organization of the Arcola Country Club of Arcola, N. J., which has been incorporated in New Jersey with an authorized capital of $50,000 divided into 500 shares of $100 par value each, has aroused considerable interest in Paterson, Hackensack, Ridgewood, Englewood, Passaic, and other nearby points. The principal feature of the club will be its golf course, which will cover about 200 acres. John W. Griggs of Paterson is President; William D. Moffat of Hackensack, Vice President; William Woddrop, Treasurer, and Robert Goodbody, Secretary of the new club.

TONING DOWN BUILDING CODE.

Tammany Sends Word to the Aldermen to Quit Fighting Over It.

The hearings before the Aldermen's Buildings Committee on the proposed new Building Code continue to proceed on the even tenor of their way without further fireworks or pugnacity. The session yesterday was a quiet, dull, and technical affair. No one was elected to the Ananias Club and no references were made to graft.

Ever since "Little Tim" Sullivan stepped between Aldermen Kenneally and Doull and persuaded them to publicly withdraw the charges each had made against the other the impression has been growing around City Hall that orders have been issued at Fourteenth Street for the calming down of the squabble over the code. It is also understood on good authority that Tammany Hall has decided to modify several of the provisions of the code which have been objected to most strenuously.

A statement issued by the majority of the Revision Commission, replying to the criticisms of its report by the minority, was given out yesterday. Many briefs from engineers, architects, and other building authorities indorsing the majority report were submitted to the committee.

MAYOR MUNROE DROPS IN.

"Jack" Munroe, the former heavyweight pugilist, now Mayor of Elk City, Ontario, called upon Mayor McClellan at the City Hall yesterday. As Mayor Munroe was leaving the building he was recalled to the Mayor's office, Mr. McClellan having been informed of the identity of his visitor. The second chat was much more animated and informal than the first.

Mayor Munroe invited Mayor McClellan to visit Elk City this Summer, and promised him all kinds of hunting and fishing. The Mayor said he would be glad to consider the trip next season, but that his plans for the present Summer had already been made.

What Becomes of the $200,000,000 per Year the New York City Government Spends? That's all—$200,000,000.00 per year—one-third as much as Uncle Sam's costs, Navy, Army, Philippine Islands and all. It sounds absurd, but it's true. Where does the money go? James Creelman—not a muck-raker and without race prejudice—investigated and tells in Pearson's Magazine for July. The simple story of the shameful waste of public money—your money. As Bill Tweed said: "What are you going to do about it?"

Why do you think the Standard Oil fine was reversed? The reversal excited Mr. Roosevelt, who said it was all wrong. Judge Grosscup said it was all right, and implied that Mr. Roosevelt was lacking in knowledge of law. In this magazine is the first full and complete explanation by Melville Davisson Post of just why the fine was reversed. Also, if you have ever been attracted by a glowing investment advertisement, read Bailey Millard's story of just what happens when you answer such advertisements. The story of Theodore Burton, systematic politician, is told by Sloane Gordon. Then there is a study of the municipal bond as an investment, and for fiction there are seven bully good short stories.

GRADUATION DAY AT CITY COLLEGES

Alton B. Parker Thinks New Tax a Plan to Take Corporations Out of State Control.

SPEAKS AT CITY COLLEGE

Commencement Exercises Also Held at Normal College—New Head Favors Naming It for Dr. Hunter.

Judge Alton B. Parker was the principal speaker at the fifty-seventh annual commencement of the College of the City of New York yesterday morning in the great hall of the college. Aside from a few words spoken to the graduating class of 131 by President John Finley and the formal announcements of prizes and the conferring of degrees there were no other speeches. Judge Parker thought that an especial duty rested upon the graduates of the City College as citizens. As men who had studied they would know what encroachment upon any of the functions of the three departments of government meant.

"An Executive has said," declared Judge Parker, "that we need through the construction of law an increase of Federal power. The very moment you consent to a trespass, to the breaking of a line, a new one cannot be drawn."

Judge Parker urged the young men to take part in politics.

"I should advise you," he said, "never to have anything to do with public life in the notion that it will benefit you, for there is no fortune in honest public life. But you should take part to the degree that the time may come when you may render a distinguished public service."

Both those in the main body of the hall and the Faculty on the stage applauded this vigorously.

The speaker said that the trouble in politics had been that the citizens folded their arms while leaders arose who "turned to profit the relation between politics and business that has been growing up within the last few years."

Judge Parker said that he gave no opinion on one side or the other, but that if the party to which he belonged had not been so responsible for conditions it also had not been in office so much as the other.

"Our party machinery has broken down,' he continued. "Our party leaders have been false and gone into business. Everywhere leaders stand ready to assist those who do not want to have the laws enforced, to tell the Attorney General, for instance, that he ought not to prosecute a trust that has contributed at least $75,000 to the last campaign.

"Now, when a prosecution is begun the public is aroused to oppose it on the ground that it would stimulate a panic. The only way to save the patient's life is to take the cancer out by the roots. If we want leaders out of business take away from them the opportunity to make bargains with those who are willing to contribute to receive in return 'protection,' as it is called, or non-interference with a corporation.

"There are many tricks to deceive the public. Some years ago the New York Central put elevated tracks in the city. Did they ask for it? No; they got up a citizens' movement and a bill to compel them to do it, so they were under no obligation to the city.

"I would like to have you consider a certain proposal that corporations pay a 2 per cent. tax. No one suggested such an act until lately. Congress met for the express purpose of revising the tariff. In the midst of it we find a new difficulty. Shall they pay 2 per cent.? Have you the slightest idea that they are after revenue? I have no doubt revenue is what the President is after, but Presidents are mistaken sometimes like others. For some years corporations have been trying to escape State regulation. The insurance companies were the entering wedge. They wantd to get control out of the State to Washington, which is a long distance off in the minds of the astute men who manage these corporations. The Hepburn bill, drafted by shrewd men in this city, had for a second purpose the establishment of close relations between the Government and corporations. Now we find a new way. I don't say this is the real reason behind it, but think in your hours of reflection if there is not behind it the desire of corporations to get away from their neighbors."

After the graduating exercises, which began at ten o'clock in the morning with an academic procession, a reception followed in the afternoon in the tower rooms of the main building. President Finley and Mrs. Finley were the hosts. At this reception a number of presentations to the college were made. The class of '86 gave to the college a tapestry of the end of the Sixteenth Century period, representing a scene in the life of Queen Esther. Professor Poor of Columbia spoke for his classmates. A group of Alumni gave to the college a portrait of Professor Alfred Compton, Professor of Physics, while another group presented a portrait of Professor Solomon Woolf, formerly Professor of Descriptive Geometry and Drawing in City College.

Later in the afternoon, President Finley received the order of the Rising Sun from the Japanese Consul, K. Midjuno, who had been delegated to deliver it by the Tokio Government. The presentation took place in Townsend Harris Hall, named after the first American Minister to Japan. There was in the hall at the time the first American flag made in Japan, which waved above the legation of Townsend Harris. The flag is the property of the college.

The Alumni and the undergraduates played baseball and lacrosse in the afternoon and at night the graduating class had its dinner at Shanley's restaurant, Forty-second Street.

NORMAL COLLEGE EXERCISES.

One Hundred and Seventy-five Young Women Are Graduated.

One hundred and seventy-five young women were graduated from the Normal College, at its fortieth commencement, yesterday morning. It may be that yesterday's exercises are the last to be held under the old name of the college, for in his address to the graduating class, Dr. George Samler Davis, President of the college, urged that the wish of the Alumnae Association, that the name of the college be changed to that of Hunter College of the City of New York, in honor of the venerable Dr. Thomas Hunter, the first President, and now the President emeritus of the college, be granted.

Dr. Hunter was to have made the prayer at the graduation exercises yesterday, but it was announced that his health is so bad that he was unable to be present. The exercises began at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with the procession into the main hall of the college. The procession was led by past graduates of the college, who were followed by the honor girls of 1909, the latter in cap and gown. Then came the other members of the class, who were followed in turn by the Executive Committee of the Board of Education, composed of Nicholas J. Barrett, Frederic R. Coudert, Horace E. Dresser, George J. Gillespie, Robert L. Harrison, Arthur Hollick, and A. H. Marr. After the board came Dr. Davis, Edgerton L. Winthrop, President of the Board of Education, and Chairman of the Board of Trustees; Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen, and A. Emerson Palmer, the Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

The programme was long, the speeches being by President Davis, Mr. Winthrop, Mr. McGowan, and Henry H. Sherman. The address of President Hunter, in which he showed the great progress the institution is making in all lines of work, was the first. He said in part:

> During a period of little over a year the college proper, that part of our organization which is above the High School, and doing regular collegiate work—that part which represents the development of the institution from a higher secondary school into a real college—has grown in numbers from about 550 to nearly 800, representing an increase in that short period of 45 per cent. With the entrance of a new class next February, these numbers will reach nearly 1,000, but beyond that we cannot grow until the erection of a new building. I do not refer to this numerical increase in any boastful spirit, for mere numbers do not measure worth. I say it simply to show that if from the comparatively restricted areas of Manhattan and the Bronx, (for at present we get few students from the other boroughs,) there is such a growing demand on the part of young women for higher education, the city is justified in providing better facilities and wider opportunities to meet it.
>
> It is, then, an occasion for the deepest congratulation that the first step to meet this demand has been taken, and that the erection of a new building for the college is assured. This is a source of unmeasured satisfaction and encouragement.
>
> To my mind there is every fitting reason why the name of the man whose mind conceived this institution, whose efforts secured its establishment, whose great abilities carried it through its long and successful career, and brought it to a position among the great women's colleges of the land, should be honored.

At the conclusion of Dr. Davis's address Mr. Winthrop awarded the medals and prizes to the winners. The young women who won these distinctions were:

DEPARTMENT OF GERMAN—Ottendorfer Gold Medal, F. C. Shapiro; Adolph Kutroff Prize, $50—Divided between Marion Law and Adeline Blum; Herman Ridder Prize, $40—Divided between Rose Roll and Selda Staeger; Albert Tag Prize, $50—Divided between Hannah H. Keller and Florence Michaels; Ottendorfer Silver Medal—Alma Elsa Rieser.

DEPARTMENT OF PEDAGOGY—Kelley Silver Medal—Louise A. Young; Kelly Bronze Medal—Maude A. Rostetter.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL SCIENCE—Kane Gold Medal—Emily Topp.

DEPARTMENT OF LATIN—Wilson G. Hunt Gold Medal, Edna Pisko Kramer. Classical Club Latin Prize, $25, Edna Pisko Kramer.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH—Randolph Guggenheimer Memorial Prize, gold watch, Florence Rose Beck. Bernard Cohen Prize, $40, Edna Pisko Kramer. Arthur H. Dundon Memorial Prize, $25, Ruby Crohn.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS—Joseph A. Gillet Prize, Rose Roll.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY—Charles H. Knox Prize, $50, Sophia E. Little. Thomas Hunter Prize, $40, Maud Dolores Kivlen. Dr. Thomas Hunter Prize, $40, Mollie Rush.

President McGowan, whose speech closed the exercises, pointed out the great need at the present time for teachers thoroughly trained in their work from the kindergarten to the college or the university. He laid stress upon the responsibility of the teachers in the schools of New York City, in molding the character of the children in a population so cosmopolitan as that of New York.

HADLEY'S RETORT COURTEOUS

Bishop McFaul's Charges Against Universities Error of an Individual.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—President Hadley of Yale to-day withdrew his statement made a few days ago to the effect that Bishop McFaul was probably misquoted in his reported statements before the graduating class of Xavier Institute, New York. Dr. Hadley said, in speaking of the reiterated charges of Bishop McFaul, that Yale, Harvard, and other leading universities teach immorality:

"So far as my experience goes the Catholic clergy of America are exceedingly careful not to utter false charges on the basis of reports which they have been unable to verify. If there has been a departure from this wise tradition I am sure it represents the momentary inadvertance or error of an individual, and that matters will be more effectively set right by fellow-members of his own Church and profession than by anything like public controversy."

SOCIETIES AT YALE WARNED TO REFORM

Head of Sheffield Scientific School Says Their Dormitory Life Hurts Scholarship.

HINT OF AN EXECUTIVE BAN

Society Men Have Larger Proportion of Conditions and More Are Dropped Than Non-Society Men, He Declares.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 24.—The leading point in the annual report of Director Russell H. Chittenden of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University this year is his criticism of the society system of the school, where there are six societies owning their dormitories, representing property of great value. The fact that the school has now begun to build its own dormitories has brought the question into prominence.

The Director, referring to the problem, criticises severely the society system of the school. He says that the interests of the societies and scholarship in the school are antagonistic, as is proved by the fact that a much larger number of conditions in scholarship in proportion to numbers have been incurred by society men than by students outside of the societies. It is also proved, he says, by the fact that a good many men entering the freshmen class belonging to the societies are dropped at the end of the first term or later in the year, notwithstanding that a considerable portion of them enter the school with good or fair records in scholarship. The Director says that such conditions have been demoralizing both to the individuals who have suffered the penalty of neglected scholarship, and others whose standards of scholarship are indirectly affected.

Mr. Chittenden adds that unless a speedy solution of this problem is reached by the parties more directly interested the Governing Board of the Scientific School will be compelled to exercise its power with a view to remedying the evils which at present unquestionably exist.

The final report of Dean Wright of the Yale academic department, closing his twenty-five years in office, has been completed. One chapter deals with the entrance examinations to Yale. He shows that there is a steady increase of candidates for admission, who offer substitutes for Greek, but he declares that men who offer Greek are the better scholars. Also that in the choices of the freshmen who can take five out of eight studies, Latin and English are the favored studies. The Dean says college entrance board examinations are improving.

In a review of the work of the sophomore tutorial board the Dean points out that there is a large decrease in the number of students warned for low scholarship. In the system of elective studies he favors three-hour courses. The increase in dormitory accommodations upon the old campus has a tendency to break up the private dormitory system with its social and scholastic evils. The greatest need of the college now is another large dormitory.

The Dean closes his report with an extensive review of the changes of the Faculty during the last twenty-five years. Only five members of the Faculty when the Dean took office twenty-five years ago now remain. The enrollment of undergraduate students has more than doubled in the twenty-five years, the body of instructors increased fourfold, and the old system of dscipline with its distributive character has been superseded by the highly organized and centralized work of the Dean's office. The charge for tuition and incidentals has been advanced only 11 per cent., from $140 to $155. There has been a great increase in the college plant and fund.

Hereafter, the report says, the Dean of the college will be responsible to the Faculty of the department instead of to the President of the University.

Beginning with the next college year, Dean Wright will be succeeded by Frederick S. Jones, Yale '84, who comes from the University of Minnesota.

SCORES ATHLETIC HYSTERIA.

Prof. Gayley Tells Ann Harbor Graduates Study Is One Activity of College.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 24.—Including eighty-five postgraduate students, who received Masters' and Doctors' degrees, 901 graduates received diplomas at the University of Michigan to-day. The graduating class is the last one to leave the university under the Presidency of Dr. James B. Angell.

More than 300 of this year's class took the degree of Bachelor of Arts. There were 160 engineers, 154 law graduates, and 175 doctors of medicine. The remainder was divided among the pharmacy, dental, and homoeopathic departments.

The commencement address was delivered by Prof. Charles Mills Gayley of the University of California, who pleaded for greater attention to study and less to functions such as "class meetings, business meetings, editorial meetings, football rallies, pajama rallies, and vicarious athletics on the bleachers." "Talking rubbish unceasingly, thinking rubbish unceasingly," said Prof. Gayley, "with all this, what margin is left for the one activity of the college, which is study?

'Let us encourage our High Schools to take over the first two years' work now covered by our colleges. Let us, with a higher grade of freshmen entering our universities, insist that scholarship shall be supreme, and let us encourage emulation by publicity of rewards and responsibilities. So doing, we shall explode the follies of athletics at long range and offset the hysteria of athletic notoriety."

Prospect Park Elk Up at Auction.

The Park Department has advertised the sale at public auction on July 7 of twenty elk, five Angora goats, and several head of sheep belonging to the Prospect Park herds. Several old horses, ducks, and second-hand bicycles, hose, rubber boots, and scrap iron will be disposed of at the same time.

It seems curious, but it is a fact that John Smith, Everyday American, can enjoy one luxury that Julius Caesar himself could not; and that is a real bath—with real soap—in a real bath-tub.

Caesar couldn't. Soap was unknown in his day. When he bathed, slaves covered his body with oils and ashes.

When John Smith bathes, he steps into a tub of water as warm or as cold as he chooses to have it; covers himself with Ivory Soap lather, rubs it into the pores of his skin, rinses, dries himself with a coarse towel—and feels the equal of Caesar and as much the Master of the World.

Ivory Soap . . . . It Floats.

Visiting Fire Chiefs

—You cannot afford to overlook these Fire Hose Facts

Eureka Fire Hose, bought fourteen years ago by the City of New York, can be seen today in regular use by some of the hardest worked engine companies in the city—in the inflammable paint and dry goods districts.

Eureka Hose has been successfully used for many years in the cold Northwestern cities and towns of the United States and Canada, and even in Alaska, without complaint of freezing or undue water absorption.

This proves its adaptability for cold, as well as warm climates.

Eureka Four-Ply High-Pressure Fire Hose

Made of four plies, all woven simultaneously and bound together in a solid homogeneous fabric, Eureka Hose plies are yet so distinct that one or two of them can be entirely worn away or removed without injury to those remaining—leaving an absolutely complete and serviceable two-ply, rubber lined hose.

No hose whose chief recommendation is low price can meet this test. Do you know of any other hose that has such qualities?

We will make this conclusive test for you any day, at our factory in Jersey City, under the supervision of any expert, whether he be Fire Chief or hose manufacturer.

Couple one section of Eureka Hose with sections of every other kind in use. Then administer water pressure until the bursting point is reached. Eureka Hose will survive them all and [illegible] be put back into service after the contest.

Eureka Fire Hose

Eureka Hose is effectively safeguarded against rot or mildew. The antiseptic process it undergoes is the result of 30 years of study and experiment, and with ordinary Fire Department care, this process insures constant pliability—whether the hose is wet or dry.

Any official specification that does not require a four-ply, circular and solidly woven fabric, with a modern-idea rubber lining, will not secure for you the best hose.

It is false economy to look for quantity rather than quality—and dangerous, also, where fire hose is concerned.

Almost every severe conflagration brings forth new Eureka Hose testimonials in the shape of emergency orders. No greater tribute can be paid to any sort of fire equipment.

On April 13th, an order for 5,000 feet of Eureka Hose was telephoned for from Rochester—when part of that city was ablaze. Within twelve hours this hose was delivered and in service.

A week earlier, under like conditions, a similar order came from Fort Worth, Texas, and was filled with equal promptitude and to the great satisfaction of the citizens and authorities of that community.

There are various reasons why Eureka Hose is not universally used. The only sane one is unfamiliarity with its virtues.

That is why we want you to call at our office. We want to show you why "Eureka" is the best hose made.

Don't wait until you are in the market for hose. Come in at any time—you will be cordially welcomed.

FITZ HERBERT WINS $5,000 SUBURBAN

Hildreth Scores Handicap Triple Event at Sheepshead Bay.

ALFRED NOBLE WAS SECOND

Record-Breaking Pace in a Fast Race the Feature of the Big Event—Season's Best Crowd.

The Suburban Handicap.

Run at Sheepshead Bay, L. I.

TWENTY-SIXTH RUNNING.

Distance, one mile and a quarter.

	Horse, Weight, and Jockey.	Betting.
1.	Fitz Herbert, 105, E. Dugan	4 to 5
2.	Alfred Noble, 104, McCarthy	5 to 1
3.	Fayette, 101, Butwell	5 to 1
4.	King's Daughter, 109, V. Powers	7 to 1
5.	Restigouche, 121, G. Burns	4 to 5
6.	Fashion Plate, 92, Glass	7 to 1

Time—2:03 2-5.

Winner, pulled to a canter, first by six lengths; four lengths between second and third. Value of race, $5,000 guaranteed, of which $4,000 goes to the winner.

Fitz Herbert, drawn colt, three years old, by Ethelbert-Morganatic, owned and trained by Samuel C. Hildreth. Fitz Herbert and Restigouche coupled in betting as Hildreth's entry.

Best record for the race, 2:03, made by Ballot, four years, 127 pounds, in 1908.

All alone, Fitz Herbert galloped in winner of the twenty-sixth Suburban Handicap, in a race that was remarkable even among Suburbans, at Sheepshead Bay yesterday.

The glory of the race was all Fitz Herbert's, the owner of the winner, Samuel C. Hildreth, shining a little in the reflection, as the only turfman whose colors ever have been carried in triumph through the triple event of the great Spring handicaps, the Metropolitan, at Belmont Park, and the Brooklyn at Gravesend, both won by King James, with the final won by the truly wonderful campaigner, Fitz Herbert, the second three-year-old to win a Suburban.

Fitz Herbert, close to Alfred Noble and Restigouche, fighting in front at a killing pace for the first mile, ran over the leaders in the last quarter, and, eased up through all the length of the stretch, finished first by six lengths, from Alfred Noble second, Restigouche beaten by the pace he set, stopping at the end, while third place was filled by Fayette, four lengths behind Alfred Noble.

Fitz Herbert's Fast Time.

Pulled up at the end after simply galloping the last quarter, Fitz Herbert finished the Suburban mile and a quarter in 2:03 2-5, only two-fifths of a second away from the best record for the race, made by Ballot last year. The fractional time showed that the mile and a furlong, when Fitz Herbert had gone to the front and was galloping easily, was covered in 1:50, a second and two-fifths faster than the track record; and while the first mile, at which point Fitz Herbert was just moving past Alfred Noble, while Restigouche already had succumbed to the pace, was done in 1:36 4-5, a time at both distances faster than the world's records.

The Suburban made just such a turf holiday as it has made for a quarter of a century, and though the race was run, marking the opening of the Coney Island Jockey Club's June meeting, almost at the end of June, and torrid Summer weather attended the running, an attendance that racing officials declared was the largest of the present season gathered to witness the big event. For all the lateness of the season, fashionable society was well represented in the clubhouse and in the private boxes, while pleasure-loving New Yorkers turned out in force in the grand stand and filled the automobile park behind the stand with an array of several hundred cars.

Season's Record Crowd.

The attendance was estimated at about 12,000, and the spectators included about all the notable people of the turf world, with full representation for Wall Street, theatricals, politics, and the people who figure prominently in public affairs. The holders of the well-filled boxes were:

W. C. Street, Schuyler Parsons, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Frank L. Polk, J. H. Alexandre, F. C. Bishop, E. C. Potter, A. R. Fish, H. K. Knapp, E. V. W. Rossiter, George P. Butler, Frederick Kernochan, R. T. Wilson, Jr., James E. Gaffney, Thomas L. Watt, Ormond G. Smith, A. C. Schwartz, Allan Pinkerton, P. H. McCarren, A. Dryer, Thomas F. Grady, Joseph E. Widener, H. S. Page, August Belmont, William Brockie, E. C. La Montagne, A. P. Kirkland, H. R. Duval, R. F. Carman, James Rowe, Robert Maxwell, Eugene D. Wood, Elsie J. Monense, D. C. Johnson, and John E. Madden.

For the first time since the enactment of the Hart-Agnew law the old-time betting ring again was tenanted, the crowds, in the intervals between the races, seeking the shade and cool breeze that blew through the open shed.

The restrictions that have been put on the operations of the betting men since the opening of the season were enforced without change in even a minor detail, and the Police Department and the Sheriff and District Attorney of Kings County were represented by special details of detectives, but spent an idle day, as the enforcement of the law by the race-track special police left nothing to be done.

The great event for the crowd, though the programme offered three stake fixtures, was the Suburban, run as the fourth race, and, in concession to the popular interest in the famous handicap, the time for the first race was set back until just before 3 o'clock, the Suburban thus being run at about 4:30, late enough to give even the most dilatory holiday maker the chance to get out to see it. Early in the afternoon it was known that the Kentucky horse Arcite and the three-year-old Effendi would not start, and the field that finally was announced officially for the twenty-sixth renewal of the oldest and most popular open event of the American turf numbered six of the eight horses named on the programme, and just equaled the smallest field that ever ran for the race, in the year of Lazzarone's triumph, in 1895.

Compared to Other Suburbans.

While perhaps only Eurus, in the mud, twenty-two years ago, ever won easier than did Fitz Herbert, the three-year-old's victory yesterday was one of the most notable performances in the records of the race. Of the six that ran, two started for S. C. Hildreth, Restigouche, with the top weight, 121 pounds, ridden by Guy Burns, the stable jockey, and Fitz Herbert, with 105 pounds, ridden by E. Dugan. It was regarded as simply a matter of stable policy, intended to save Fitz Herbert from penalties, when Hildreth posted a declaration to win with the older horse, though the horsemen were unanimous in the belief that Fitz Herbert was the better horse.

King's Daughter, the only mare in the contest, was the only horse that had a real warming up, the preliminaries, saddling, and parade to the post following out routine form. The Suburban became interesting only after the horses actually were off for the struggle. King's Daughter had the rail, Fayette being next, Fashion Plate third, the Hildreth pair then dividing these from Alfred Noble on the outside, with Restigouche next to Alfred Noble.

There was but a brief delay, and then the field broke and a cheer went up as the red cap of the second colors on Fitz Herbert showed on the leading horse, the others going away well together, though Fashion Plate after breaking with the others fell rapidly out of the race, and Fayette dropped back to last place. While these were shifting, however, Alfred Noble went out to the front, and led by a scant length for a trifle more than a sixteenth. Then Restigouche passed him, and the pair raced on head and head, with Fitz Herbert trailing close on their heels and never more than two lengths away, King's Daughter fourth and Fayette behind her.

From the first furlong, Alfred Noble and Restigouche settled down to a duel, in the fight for the track. Fitz Herbert carried along with the pace, hanging tenaciously in third place. The pace was simply fast in the first furlong, it grew faster in the second, which the official time showed was done in eleven seconds, and from there on to the end of the mile, when Restigouche cracked under the desperate battle, the leading horses were driven to the last extreme, reaching the half mile in 0:47, five furlongs in 0:58 4-5, three-quarters in 1:12, seven furlongs in 1:24, and the mile in 1:36 4-5. Fitz Herbert begun to move up on the middle of the turn into the quarter stretch, and going after Alfred Noble was abreast of him and in the next stride went past him, and for the remainder of the race, galloped in front, with the Suburban won.

Alfred Noble, for all his gallant effort as a pacemaker, hung on in second place, and with Fitz Herbert pulling up before him, struggled on, spent, but game to the end, and finished second, while Restigouche went whirling back into the crowd when his bolt was shot, and finished last, but for Fashion plate, which had been pulled up. The fractional time marked the most astonishing feature of the race. This was 0:12 2-5, 0:23 2-5, 0:35, 0:47, 0:58 4-5, 1:12, 1:24, 1:36 4-5, 1:50, and 2:03 2-5.

Hildreth Praises His Horse.

After the race Hildreth, owner of Fitz Herbert, declared that the colt was the best that he had ever owned, and he has owned such horses as McChesney and King James.

Fitz Herbert is a brown colt, three years old, by Ethelbert-Morganatic, bred by Perry Belmont and developed for Mr. Belmont by A. J. Joyner, now training the H. P. Whitney horses in England. Fitz Herbert was sold to Trainer Joyner in the Winter as a yearling, and ran at Aqueduct in April of 1908, running second three times in three races before he won a small stake. He was sold to H. R. Brandt for $3,000, and after winning repeatedly for Brandt, was sold to Hildreth and J. E. Madden for $18,000, though Trainer Joyner previously had tried to repurchase him. Hildreth later bought Madden's interest and Fitz Herbert has been kept racing without intermission since his debut as a two-year-old.

The Other Races.

Preceding Fitz Herbert's triumph in the Suburban, the Hildreth colors were carried to victory in the one other stake race on the flat, the first section of the double event, for two-year-olds, and in this event, too, the winner, Dalmatian, an added starter, is a son of Ethelbert, Perry Belmont's record-making cup horse. Dalmatian was one of three added starters for the double event, and starting at an outside price, with Medallion the odds on favorite, Dalmatian came on with a rush in the last furlong, after Firebox and Lovetie ran first and second to that point. When Dalmatian tried to come through on the rail he came in collision with Medallion, both horses being staggered by the jostle, but kept on, and bumping through to the front, Dalmatian won on the post by a head from Lovetie second.

In the steeplechase stakes, the Introductory, David Dunlop's Virginia jumper ran away from his field and won easily, while of the seven starters, one bolted and two others fell. Summary:

Giants Again Despoil Them of Both Ends of a Double-Header at the Polo Grounds.

BINGLES THICK AS BEES

Raymond Easy to Hit, but Not to Beat—Ames, Though Wild, Holds Boston Down—Superbas Beat Phillies.

Unwept, unhonored, and unstrung, the wearers of the black went back to Boston yesterday, leaving a sadly disfigured pair of twins on the doorstep of the Giants. It was another day of mourning for the Orphans. The bands of crape on their west wings were wilted, their spirits were at half-mast, and even the self-confidence of Big Frank Bowerman, their manager, was impaired. Once more, as on Thursday and as a year ago to-day, McGraw's men had levied a fore-and-aft execution on the double-header with the Bay State outfit. The Giants won the first game by a score of 7 to 4, the second by 12 to 5, using only such uncertain twirlers as Raymond and Ames. Boston's hopes depended on Tuckey in the first game and on White and Boultes in the second. White didn't last an inning. He was wild and easy, and was taken out before a New Yorker was retired. Boultes was just as facile, and the entire second game, save for several sparkling plays, was a joke. Yet it was a good joke, and the fans, judging from their applause, saw the point.

Johnny McGraw took advantage of the cinchy second victory to work almost all the hands on the farm. Bowerman, when he saw the game had gone a-glimmering, took a similar course. The result was that three full nines were engaged in that second half of the dual event, and, what with plenteous bingling and bungling and wrangling, the chalkers had their work cut out for them. So had Umpires Rigler and Truby. They had to lose a lot of time listening to compliments several of the players were aching to pay them.

Entomologist Raymond was as generous as his opponent in the matter of hits in the opening encounter. Each boxman allowed a dozen, only Tuckey's yield was a baker's dozen, while Raymond's was the ordinary kind. Nothing happened until Murray doubled against the fence in the second chapter and came in on O'Hara's single. Thenceforward the proceedings were uneventful to the fifth, when the Orphans tied on hits by Autrey and Dahlen and Doyle's bad throw on Graham's grounder. But the Giants liked that little one-run lead of theirs, and they regained it in the same round by virtue of Raymond's three-bagger and Tenney's tap. Boston got jealous and shot to the fore by tallying twice in the sixth on successive swats by Bates, Beaumont, and Sweeney, Raymond's phony flip, Autrey's out, and Dahlen's sun safety in McCormick's meadow.

Would the Harlem hitsmiths stand that? Not if Judge McGraw knew himself. In the same inning they evened the entries again by carding a count on Murray's rap, O'Hara's force hit, a wild pitch, and Bridwell's three-sacker. Again the run faucet was turned off awhile, Boston resuming the vantage in the eighth with a jot boarded through Bates's third safety and Beaumont's triple. But the McGrawites, having wearied of playing with the Massachusetts mice, disposed of them handily in that round, scoring four times. New York's quartet of counts in the eighth chapter resulted from O'Hara's hit, Devlin's trudge, Graham's wide heave to catch O'Hara at third on which the first runner registered and Arthur made the midway, Bridwell's infield tap, Schlei's leaguer, Raymond's sacrifice, and Bad Bill's crazy chuck of Tenney's grasser. And that ended the run-getting for the first game.

Cruelty to children may be charged against McGraw's men for what they did to Bowerman's Orphans in the next battle. They had White buffaloed from the outset. Tenney tore off a rap that made the carnation-crowned slabman blink. Doyle and McCormick jogged. Tenney and Doyle recorded on Murray's central single, a screamer, Mac going to third on the hit. O'Hara got to first on a choice, Coffey whipping the hide to the plate to nail McCormick, but Bowerman muffing the throw. Devlin hiked, following which Murray and O'Hara galloped home on Bridwell's wallop.

In the second, the Orphans got two runs on singles by Coffey and Bowerman, Doyle's failure to stop a grounder from Boultes, who had succeeded White in the box, and Becker's slash for a nook. Doyle's triple and McCormick's single added one to New York's five counts, and in the fourth the Giants chalked three times on Sweeney's wild throw that perched Schlei, Tenney's tap, and Doyle's drive for the circuit. Battery errors by Ames gave Boston two tallies without a hit in the seventh, but in the same inning New York got three more runs on Murray's one-bagger, O'Hara's hit, Herzog's sacrifice fly, Bowerman's error and a home run by Snodgrass that surprised the young man very much. A run the Orphans acquired in the eighth was due to battery and fielding errors. The scores:

Brooklyn Makes It Three Straight.

Brooklyn made it three straight yesterday on Philadelphia at Washington Park. The victory was no fluke, but well earned, and showed the team from over the bridge to have recovered its grip. The result of the contest was due to a succession of hits, which landed Brooklyn on top with the score 6 to 3. Moren, the visitors' star pitcher, was reserved for the final seance between the teams, but he had no terrors for the Brooklyns, who touched him up for nine hits, three of them three-baggers, in the four innings he was on the slab. Corridon then relieved him and held his opponents down to three hits and one run in the remaining four innings. A peculiar feature of the game was the fact that every man on the Brooklyn team made one or more safe hits. The score:

Elis Blow Up Toward End and Crimson Players Pull Out Victory.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 24.—Harvard won the annual "Class Day" game with Yale on Soldiers' Field this afternoon, principally through the breaking up of the visitors' pitching department, the score standing 3 to 2 after eleven exciting innings had been played.

For six innings the Yale nine not only fielded like veterans, but rolled up two runs, while Harvard failed to get a man past second base. But in the seventh Merritt forced in a run by giving two bases on balls and hitting two batsmen. Hartford also weakened in this inning. Then came a comedy of Yale errors in the ninth and the score was tied. Both had chances then to win, but Harvard finally pulled off the game by good hitting. The score:

CYCLIST HASTINGS STARTS.

Expects to Ride to Boston and Return in Twenty-four Hours.

Theodore K. Hastings, the motor cyclist, is attempting to ride from New York to Boston and return, a distance of 434 miles, in 24 hours. He started from the headquarters of the New York Press Club Athletic Association, 120 Nassau Street, at noon yesterday, and expects to return by noon to-day. Mr. Hastings, who rode under the colors of the New York Press Club A. A., carried a letter from James E. Sullivan, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, to President Buchanan of the Boston Press Club.

The start was made in the presence of a big crowd, the mounted police being necessary to clear the way for the motor cyclist. Promptly at noon O. A. Van Schuckmann, the official timer, sent Hastings on his long journey. Before the crowd realized it he was out of sight, and the autos and motorists who expected to accompany him a part of the way were left behind. At Bridgeport, Conn., Hastings was reported one hour ahead of the schedule.

WELLS, Nev., June 24.—The excessive heat of yesterday had its effect. I could not get a restful sleep, and I seemed to be very tired this morning. I got to Wells to-day, a very short distance, and will stop here until midnight and make a long day to-morrow.

I could have gone further to-day, but the heat might have prevented me from reaching a place of rest, which is twenty miles from here, and yesterday's experience will serve as a warning not to take any chances. The night is very cool, but walking in the dark prevents me from making good time. The nights are very dark, as there is no moon. The distance walked to-day is nine miles.

200,000 MOTOR CARS FOR 1910

Manufacturers Planning to Meet the Rapidly Increasing Demand.

Manufacturers plan to place 200,000 automobiles on the market in 1910, according to Alfred Reeves, General Manager of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, who has returned from a trip through New England, Pennsylvania, and the Middle West. This statement Mr. Reeves makes after a careful compilation of figures received from the makers of axles, magnetos, frames and other parts.

"The plans of the manufacturers may not be completely carried out," said Mr. Reeves, "owing to the inability of parts makers to supply the demand, but in any case there is sure to be an increase of 125 per cent. over the production of 1909, which is placed at 75,000 cars, and which has been insufficient to supply the demand.

"Of the 200,000 cars planned for the 1910 market 165,000 will be pleasure cars, 30,000 will be high-wheel buggies made by carriage concerns, and 5,000 will be steam and electric carriages and commercial vehicles. The average price will be about $1,200, the cars below $1,500 being in the greatest demand, although there is no decrease in the demand for cars of higher price. This will mean a total business in cars alone of almost $200,000,000.

"Yet with these extraordinary figures on next year's motor vehicle output there is no reason to fear an overproduction, owing to the fact that America's greatest purchasing element, the middle class, has now entered the field together with the farmers, who have been liberal buyers of cars during the year 1909. When it is taken into consideration that there are now 150,000 motor cars in this country and at least that number to be turned out this year, a fair idea can be gained of the present status of the automobile industry.

OUR FORMER INCOME TAX.

Every dog is entitled to his first bite, but no dog is entitled to two bites. That is to say, Congress may be forgiven for having once botched the matter of taxing incomes, but it should not be entitled to a plea in mitigation if it should repeat former blunders, as it seems in a fair way of doing.

The forgotten facts are that when we last had a similar tax the people took themselves out from under it to an extent which may yet open the eyes of those calculating about the proceeds of this tax. In 1869, the population being 37,000,000, the persons returning income for taxation, according to Means's Methods of Taxation, were about 260,000. Four years later, with a population larger by two millions, and with an enlarged exemption from taxation, the returns were only for 78,000 persons, and the receipts were comparatively insignificant. D. A. WELLS, quoted by Mr. MEANS, says of this episode:

> Those only who were officially and intimately connected at this time with the Internal Revenue Department of the United States Treasury can form any adequate idea of the amount of perjury and fraud that characterized and pervaded the country during the years 1867 to 1872, as the outcome of the then existing system of internal revenue. And American ingenuity was never more strikingly illustrated * * * than it was at that time in devising and successfully carrying out methods for evading the taxes on incomes and distilled spirits.

It is easy to admit the intelligence with which this measure is being drafted, but it is a case of many wits against a few, and the few will get the worst of the contest of cunning. The Metropolitan Receivership has been pending in the courts over a year, and a system of keeping the accounts has not yet been devised, although the counsel are subject to the direction of the court with a closeness that the taxers of corporations cannot hope to enjoy. The Inter-State Commerce law has been administered for twenty years, and the accounting clauses are the most obscure and contentious of the statute still. What possibility is there that two or three gentlemen can devise a corporation tax law which will not bristle with lawsuits and loopholes at every clause?

There is the less reason to hope that this can be done in the United States because it has not been done elsewhere with the greatest effort. No production of accounts is of much avail, except against the very rawest of evasions. If evasion is desired by any concern capable of hiring a lawyer false accounts will be framed to defy the ingenuity of the Treasury sleuths. It will suffice merely to omit credits. It would be gratuitous trouble to insert fraudulent debits or disbursements. Our best citizens palter with their consciences in the matter of the personal tax, and we have just seen to what greater lengths the officers of corporations are willing to go. The late Mr. HAVEMEYER would not have picked a personal pocket, but under his administration his corporation picked the Treasury's pocket unhesitatingly. As to that portion of the British income tax which is self-assessed—as this tax is to be—the Commissioners recently reported that "grossly insufficient returns, or no returns at all, are made over long periods of years with impunity." And this occurs under a system so elaborate that the administrators do not themselves understand it.

Is our new tax bill to be so elaborately drawn that every taxpayer will need a lawyer either to pay or evade it, or is it to be so pitchforked together that compliance will be matter of discretion, and the conscientious will be burdened above the wicked? In England there are 700,000 abatements every year, and 450,000 claims for repayment. How the lawyers' mouths must water! And what an interesting comparison is suggested—in the manner of the customs tax—between the amounts the Treasury receives and the amount the law costs the taxpayers.

CRIMINAL ALIENS.

Of the 990 aliens in the prisons of this State, Supt. C. V. COLLINS has found that 319 were convicted of felonies within three years after their arrival in this country. But of these only 27 were convicted in their native lands prior to their emigration hither. And of the 27, those only who have not fulfilled a three years' residence are subject to deportation under the immigration law of 1907.

Supt. COLLINS's investigation of the alien inmates of the State prisons has been generally misinterpreted. It was thought that he proposed deporting all of them, and he has certainly not been at pains to contradict the widespread rumors to this effect. The language of the Federal statute is explicit. It excludes from these shores "persons who have been convicted of, or admit having committed, a felony or other crime or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude," but provides that they be deported "at any time within three years" after the date of entry into the United States. Mr. J. H. PATTEN of Washington, D. C., who has called our attention to this discrepancy between the law and Supt. COLLINS's reported purpose, points out, in a letter published elsewhere, many vital defects of our regulations to exclude the unfit. If Mr. COLLINS, in notifying the Department of Commerce and Labor of conditions in the State prisons, should also recommend that the Federal laws be amended to provide for the deportation of all unnaturalized persons when convicted of crime, he would do a public service.

BISHOP M'FAUL'S CHARGES.

Bishop MCFAUL's charges against the American universities are, fundamentally, as ancient as the report of the Council of Trent, which declared that Protestantism must inevitably lead to skepticism and free thought. Thus far they are justified, from the point of view of a Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church. The institutions he mentions certainly do not aim to restrict the thoughts of young men or hold them down to the forms of creed. Indeed, it is a matter of fact that there is a tendency among colleges, hitherto denominational, to throw off the bonds of sect in the interest of intellectual and pecuniary improvement.

But specifically the Bishop now admits that his charges against our colleges were based on a shallow and "sensational" article in one of the magazines which, he holds, must be true because its statements have not been contradicted. They have not been contradicted, to be sure, though obviously they were the kind of statements the writer always hopes will be violently contradicted, thus enabling him to return to his subject with spectacular effect.

Generally and in detail these charges were false. Right and wrong have not changed places in modern teaching. Marriage and the Declaration of Independence are not generally condemned by university men. Youths are not taught in college that the home as an institution is doomed. Young men who habitually lead fast or wicked lives do so, generally, with their eyes open to their own iniquity, and they are rarely numbered among the comparatively few intellectually disturbed persons who rail at social conventions and usages. Those boresome folks often lead virtuous lives.

Bishop MCFAUL, in his haste, has stumbled after a blind guide. But he is a worthy Churchman, and his point of view is clear though his arguments are muddled. He thinks it a sin to say "We are not fallen angels, but developed animals." So he stands, personally, beyond the reach of any sort of scientific argument.

DISAPPOINTING LEGISLATION.

The attention of the Inter-State Commerce Commission has just been called to the fact that railways are violating the law establishing an eight-hour day for their telegraph operators. The companies dismissed the telegraph operators and installed telephone operators, after working the former forbidden hours. Doubtless a way will be found to apply the eight-hour law to the telephone operators, but that will not restore the telegraphers to their jobs, which they could not have supposed they would lose as the result of the law to shorten their hours.

A similar disappointment followed the law requiring the times of sending and delivering telegrams to be added to messages sent in Massachusetts. The law will be complied with, but the words will be counted and charged for. It was anybody's option to write the time of sending the message into its body, but that was not what was wanted, which was something desirable to be furnished for nothing, that is, at the expense of another. A similar municipal law is now pending in New York with the object of regulating the weight of a loaf of bread. Nobody appeared in its favor when the Aldermen held their hearing, but that did not prevent the Central Federated Union from rescuing the ordinance from premature decease. It has appointed a committee which is asking for another opportunity to present the popular side of the proposal. The idea would be more welcome if it would work as anticipated. In 1733 there was an ordinance fixing both weight and price, and yet the more stringent law proved unworkable and was abandoned. It is not possible to compel bakers to sell more bread than they like for any given price. The bakers must live as well as the buyers of their bread, and if they are compelled to sell at a loss they will stop selling. More bread for the same money cannot be had by this means. With the ordinance the buyers of bread would still have to select the sellers of the large loaves, and they can do that without the ordinance if they choose to take the trouble. A similar futile ordinance was passed at Los Angeles yesterday.

The principle opposed to such legislation is that the law cannot succeed in making bargains for anybody, and should not attempt it. The law can prevent fraud, and there its force is exhausted. The law can no more compel a seller to sell on given terms than it can compel a buyer to buy on any given terms, and it cannot select for buyers the establishments with which they shall deal. It is for the buyer to say to whom he will part with his money, and on what terms, fraud and deceit alone being capable of legal prohibition. When the law attempts more it fails, however excellent the motives with which the law is proposed, or however ardently something different may be hoped for.

ROOF GARDENS.

Roof gardens multiply in New York and improve, architecturally and pictorially. The first of the open-air roof theatres, conceived and directed years ago by RUDOLPH ARONSON, was but a barren, cheerless place. The natural flowers scattered about in a few urns and pots did not thrive. The painted flowers on painted trellises were not illusive. The roof gardens of to-day are more attractive places, though we are not prepared to say that the entertainments have greatly improved. The New York Summer show bears a close resemblance to that of the out-of-door theatre elsewhere in the country.

From the eyrie of the Times Building the observer can look upon a number of roof gardens in which the ingenuity of scene painters, decorators, architects, and florists has been effectively exercised. The newest of the hotel roof gardens actually supplies a long-felt want by having a dining pavilion among its rustic and aerial attractions. Hitherto one (or preferably two) could sit in a hotel roof garden and listen to music, but eating was barred. Coffee and cigars, wines and ices, and the music of the mandolins are all very well, but to be able to eat one's dinner skyhigh seems more like modern improvement.

Whether it is really cooler in the roof gardens is another question. The Tribune infers that New Yorkers suffered more from the heat before "the erection of skyscrapers, the universal use of ice, and the introduction of lightweight Summer clothing." Perhaps, but they made less fuss about warm weather than we do, and believed that mint juleps were cooling. The women wore their bonnets with strings and India shawls, and the men their beaver hats and skirted coats. Undoubtedly the average thermometrical record has not changed. But our ancestors were not as nervously aware of the heat as we are.

TWO HOLDING COMPANIES.

Gov. DRAPER having now signed the bill which he proposed for "holding" the Boston & Maine Railway in the interest of the New York & New Haven Company, a comparison is suggested between this company created by a special statute and the similar company which was annulled by the Federal Supreme Court after a famous litigation. It will be recalled that it was put into evidence that the object of creating the Northern Securities Company was to have a concern with a capitalization so large and so closely held that it could not be bought away from the owners over night. There had been examples of that sort which had made men in a large way of business anxious. They were elderly men, accustomed to frequent and long absences from the country, or from the security markets. They wished to go on doing as they had been doing, but in a more orderly, coherent, and stable manner. For this attempt they were denounced as enemies of their country, and it was declared that their organization must be dispersed lest it should grow more powerful than the Government. It was not shown that they had done any harm, or intended any harm, or that any harm which they might do could not be punished if done. Still their plot was foiled. It was a famous victory, and a costly one, and now that the incident is a recollection merely the doubt whether it was worth while is raised by the enactment of a law as much more heinous as it is more stringent, and yet which commands the approval of the section of the country which it affects more intimately than the Northern Securities Company affected its section.

According to the Massachusetts law the stock which is "held" cannot be sold without authority from the Legislature. The bonds may not be sold without authority of the Railway Commission. Any railway may hold the stock of a holding company, and thereby hold the control of a subsidiary company. This makes the monopoly practically complete, and permanent beyond filibustering attack, but to make precaution doubly sure, it is provided that the State itself may acquire the ownership of a holding company, thereby assuming all its obligations as to guarantees of dividends, assumption of interest, and so on. This is applauded as proof of "sanity in Massachusetts," the particular holding company being regarded as a champion of New England, rather than as a tyrant.

Recollection does not serve as to whether these same spokesmen condemned exactly the same thing when done by the same railways without legislative sanction, but it is certain that condemnation was as general as approval now is. Gov. GUILD officially denounced the proceeding which Gov. DRAPER now blesses, and a campaign was fought on it, with the result that the Legislature now creates a company to do what the courts declared illegal. Accordingly, in the language of The Boston Herald, the policy of the great State of Massachusetts will not be shaped by a group of noisy and officious persons so ill-informed of practical affairs that they fancied the arrangement contrary to public interest. It must be remembered that although the Northern Securities Company was disbanded, the principles upon which it was formed are still unsettled, and have recurred in this case. United States District Attorney FRENCH has been reported as saying: "There still remains the offense against the Sherman act. It is within the province of the Government to obtain a restraining order or injunction against the action of the holding company bill."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hope for the Man of Fifty.

That the man of 50 or over who loses his employment finds it cruelly difficult to get work, no matter how good his record or how great his competency, is a fact fully confirmed by the charity organization and mission representatives whom our reporters have been interviewing on the subject, while at the regular employment agencies the fact was so familiar that interest in it had been lost in what was there considered the impossibility of doing anything for these victims of time and circumstance. What was hopelessness in the one quarter, however, was only realization of a grave problem in the other, and from the statements made on the basis of wide experience it was evident that there are places, and not a few, where the elderly man, particularly if he be willing to admit the existence of his handicap and to accept work and remuneration proportioned to his abilities as seen by a new employer, can earn a living.

The chief obstacle to his success is the competition of younger applicants who, in some ways inferior to him, yet have the great advantage that theirs are increasing and adaptable powers, while his are rigid and decreasing, with their complete failure already in sight. In his favor is a general kindliness which understands and pities the hardness of his case and is willing to save him from undeserved misfortunes when it can be done at not too much cost of money or inconvenience. According to the philanthropic folk, there is usually work for the man over 50 if only he can be brought into communication with the man who happens to have the kind of work he can do. Too often the former does not know where to look, while the latter, in a hurry to fill a vacancy in his staff, gives it to the first applicant who can meet the demands of the position, instead of waiting for him for whom exactly that sort of a position is a desperate necessity.

It is in the hope of lessening this particular difficulty that THE TIMES has determined to offer free the use of enough of its advertising space in next Sunday's issue to hold fifty words to any man over 50 years of age who is out of employment and has not yet been able to get it in the ordinary way. By grouping these advertisements and by attracting general attention to them, it expects so to increase their efficiency in doing just what the experts say needs doing that the troubles of not a few who can now see no light ahead will be relieved or mitigated. Of course, much will depend on what the applicants have to say in their fifty words—if they have to use as many as that—and on how they say it. They can be sure, at any rate, that their appeals will be widely read and fairly judged.

Victory Won and Well Won.

So often have competitive sports between Englishmen and Americans resulted in misunderstandings rising toward or to harshly expressed hostility and the interchange of bitter recrimination, that the result of the first encounter between the rival polo teams at Hurlingham is notable, even over here, rather for the good feeling which marked it than for the fact that the visitors won a brilliant victory. Everybody concerned seems to be talking generously and courteously of the opposing players, and while, of course, the losers have more than one explanation of their defeat, they also admit that the superiority of the American team was the decisive factor.

That is as it ought to be, and as it must be, if contests of this kind are to add to the friendliness of international relations instead of making them the basis of a real and deep dislike. Of course, the long-lost cup is not yet won. Another victory and perhaps two more games will be required to settle its ownership, but, accident of a kind now unforeseen will apparently be required to help our cousins if they are to renew their grasp upon it.

And it is no small thing to win at polo, especially from Englishmen, who have a much larger class than we of young men leisured, athletic, and wealthy to select their players from. The Britishers, or some of them, have been studying and playing the game ever since they learned it from conquered Princes on the plains of India, and that was not a few years ago, while it is purely exotic here, desperately expensive and not practically useful for the training of aristocratic cavalrymen. Intrinsically fine as the sport is, the chances are that it would not be practiced in this country at all were it not for the hope of beating the Englishmen at what they have made their own game, and one in which they have hitherto had no rivals worthy of the name. And even though in the present series, through an unusual combination of circumstances working in our favor, the English should be beaten, their own game it would remain. In the long run their victories are almost sure to outnumber ours, for many years to come, if not always, for polo is distinctively imperial and military, and the sports to which we instictively turn are neither.

The Lesson of the Sigel Case.

CHONG SING continues to adjust his ever-varying "confession" to the theories of his questioners, substituting for proved misstatements others which may or may not be the truth, and guarding as best he can the one contention upon which the saving of his own life depends—the contention that he was at worst only an accomplice after the fact of the SIGEL girl's murder. He realizes clearly enough the darker suspicions that are gathering about him, and he is desperately endeavoring to steer a middle course between telling too much and not telling enough.

That the District Attorney and the police are making any headway with the man is not evident. He has revealed nothing they did not know or could not guess, and such enforced corroboration as he has given them of other evidence at hand has no particular importance. Public interest seems to be turning away from the individual criminals concerned in ELSIE SIGEL's death to the sort of "work" in which she was or pretended to be engaged, and it is the consensus of opinion that the whole plan of supplying Chinamen with young women as teachers of religion or of anything else is detestable and intolerable. One of our correspondents suggests that it be stopped by law, but that would be both undesirable and impossible.

What will stop it, or at least reduce it to an endurable minimum, is a general appreciation of its dangers and its obnoxiousness, and a consequent impressing upon young women of the certainty that every one of them who engages in this kind of missionary work is open to suspicion of egregious folly and recklessness, if of nothing worse. They should all read the letters on the subject which we are printing daily, for thus will they get an idea of the way they are and should be regarded by the well-informed part of the public.

PERSONAL CONDUCT QUESTION.

Not One of Separating the Sexes in Missionary Labors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The murder of Elsie Sigel does not raise a race question. It was simply the result of deplorable conduct on the part of a woman and two men, plainly to be seen in the girl's own acknowledgment of her love for them as men and not so much as Chinese souls to be saved. Any situation in which women must associate with men has its dangers, and the dangers are grave in adverse ratio to the strength of moral sense in the individuals thus associated. To think that such dangers can be eliminated by the building of high fences between the sexes is as unreasonable as to believe that the world could go on without the sun. To exclude women from the missionary field is as impossible as to exclude them from every other work in which they must come in contact with men, and if reports were half true one would be inclined to think it inadvisable for women to engage in school-teaching, stenography, or any other work in the world for that matter. The writer does not approve of young, unsophisticated girls "teaching" Chinese men; neither does she approve of young, unsophisticated girls' too friendly association with any men, be they white, black, red, or yellow.

The question of moral and social regeneration is one we must face and solve through education and the development of better characters, not one that can be settled through suppression or a blind denial of things as they are. The white man who goes to China to gain wealth, and having done so returns to his native land leaving behind him his progeny of half-breeds, is as much a "peril" to the Chinese as the degenerate yellow man is here. Is it therefore consistent with the best of our "enlightened" reason to expect the superhuman of those whom we are prone to regard as less than human, when in our "free" country they are compelled to live under abnormal conditions? It may not be of such vital importance whether Confucius or Christ is the accepted deity; what seems most to be needed is the spirit of kindness and the greater love that both of them taught. ALONE.

CALLING AT QUEENSTOWN.

Steamship Custom Regarded as a Sop to the Nationalists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When you ask, as heading of an editorial today, "Why not drop Queenstown?" do you not realize that this calling at Queenstown is one of the sacrifices that England has to make for Ireland?

Over and over again the question of embarking and disembarking the mails at some other point has come up, and always the British Government has met with a storm of opposition not only from the Nationalist members of Parliament, but also from the Irish Unionist members. The latter are interested in this question for the sake of the transportation companies which carry the mails from Queenstown to Holyhead via Dublin and Kingstown, to whom it would certainly be a hardship if they were to lose the business, for they have invested largely in providing boats and other equipment and in perfecting a service which would be quite unnecessary and run at a ruinous loss were it not for the trans-Atlantic mails and the passengers they bring with them. Mails and passengers via Queenstown used to make better time to and from London than those proceeding by Liverpool, but it seems that such is not still the case.

The prosperity of the transportation companies, which (though Irish) are distinctly Unionist in composition, is a matter of small importance to the Nationalist Party; but it supports the claims of Queenstown for the credit of Ireland generally and as a favorable opportunity for being "agin the Government." Without the aid of this party the Unionists could do little, so the retention of Queenstown as a stopping place for Atlantic mail steamers is due to the power possessed by the Nationalists in the councils of Great Britain. As all their claims on England (however extravagant) are cordially approved of by the American press and people, and as their organization is rendered possible largely by American financial aid, the delay of the ocean liners should not be strongly resented in this country, although in this case it is not only the British or loyal Irish who suffer from the activity of "the pathriots." Unclean Soda Water Glasses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While pretty general attention is being directed to the sanitary preparation of foods and their dispensing it is not a little surprising to observe the flagrant disregard of the most elementary hygienic precautions at many soda-water counters. Here the glasses are kept, rim down, in receptacles with cracked ice sunk below the level of the counters, the counter slabs being beveled downward toward them at their edges. Customers place their used spoons upon these marble slabs which are then wiped up with more or less filthy cloths. It is next to impossible, with this stupid arrangement, to prevent the swashing of a certain amount of liquid from the used spoons into the depressed receptacles holding the glasses awaiting filling. The simplest remedy in the world would be to have the edges of these receptacles raised above the level of the marble counters; and this change should be insisted upon by the Board of Health, whose order would be appreciated by a host of patrons now too thoroughly disgusted to continue to partake of an otherwise admirable refreshment. Complaint About a Money Order.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The money order department of the United States Post Office is a very efficient institution—very efficient indeed so far as its routine is concerned. But let anything out of the ordinary occur and you might as well have fed your money to a healthy billy-goat. About three years ago I sent a money order to a reputable business house in Milan, Italy. Not being able to fill my requisition they returned the money order promptly and I immediately sent it back to the Post Office for repayment. Since then, in spite of dozens of appeals by letter and otherwise I have been unable to get repayment, or any valid reason why this money order should not be repaid. EDWARD B. FOX.

Third Avenue Railroad Rumors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The action of the Third Avenue Railroad officials in allowing "unofficial rumors" to leak out in reference to the reorganization plan is detestable. As long as the shareholders will be called upon to make up the deficit they certainly are entitled to receive official information as to the tentative plans of reorganization without being fleeced of the money invested by the daily changeable rumors of "Wall Street." How about consulting the small shareholder as regards the disposal of his investment? Or must he always be squeezed out for the benefit of the insider? SHEEP.

ALIEN CRIMINALS.

Startling Weaknesses in the Immigration Law That Excludes Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer of the letter which you printed in to-day's TIMES under the caption "Mystery of Alien Criminals" is quite mistaken throughout in regard to his facts, and your characterization of the entrance of alien criminals into this country (in such large numbers that half the inmates of New York prisons are foreign and 40 per cent. of these convicted within three years after their arrival) as "mysterious" is erroneous. We have no official "inspectors" at foreign ports to speak of. Foreign Governments have been asked by our State Department to allow our officials to turn back undesirables on their soil, in order to save immigrants the cruel hardships of deportation, but nearly every foreign Government flatly refused, intimating that they were no fonder of undesirables than we, and protesting against any "extraterritoriality jurisdiction." Our own inspection is superficial. The immigrant is merely asked if he is a criminal, Anarchist, &c., and passed with such questions and a glance, at the rate of about twenty a minute at Ellis Island.

The preliminary report of the United States Immigration Commission says on Page 29: "Many undeniably undesirable persons are admitted every year;" "in theory the law debars criminals, but in fact many enter," &c. In regard to the "Importation for Immoral Purposes" the commission says on Page 35 of its preliminary report, which can be had for the mere asking: "Many women are being regularly imported under conditions which often amount to absolute slavery." Some time ago Commissioner Bingham, I am reliably informed, placed Petrosino and several detectives at Ellis Island, and showed conclusively that our immigration laws as then enforced against the entrance of alien criminals were absolutely ineffective and practically useless.

There is a provision in existing immigration laws fining the steamship companies for bringing here any alien having a dangerously contagious disease, providing such disease could have been detected at the time of foreign embarkation by a competent medical examination. That provision is now being enforced. But as to criminals, prostitutes, and others there is no existing law requiring the steamship companies to make any effort at all to help us keep these admittedly objectionable persons out. There is no law even enabling us to deport an alien who becomes a criminal after reaching this country—however soon. He can be deported only within three years, provided it is established either that he was a convicted felon before coming or provided it can be established beyond a reasonable doubt that he obtained entrance in violation of the law—either of which is next to impossible, as is conclusively shown by the last annual report of Police Commissioner Bingham. Superintendent of New York Prisons C. V. Collins will find it impossible to deport any of the 319 alien felons now in New York State prisons, even though each and every one of them was convicted within three years after coming to this country.

Since we cannot put our own officials at foreign ports to prevent debarable aliens coming on a wild goose chase, and save them the forlorn hope and hardships of deportation, why should not the foreign steamship companies, often in collusion (as shown by the official reports of Marcus Braun and other United States Inspectors) with foreign Governments to get rid of their deficients, dependents, and delinquents, be heavily fined for every alien brought to this country who is excluded and whose condition or ground for exclusion could have been ascertained by a medical or other competent examination or investigation at the time of foreign embarkation and sale of ticket? They are making handsome profits out of the traffic, as is attested by their continual construction of larger, faster ocean flyers. Although required now to examine steerage passengers for dangerously contagious diseases, at the peril of a $100 fine, the United States Immigration Commission says on Page 30 of its preliminary report: "The methods [of examination] employed range from an examination absolutely controlled by United States officials to one where not even the presence of an American Consular officer in an official capacity is permitted."

I trust you will give this letter space in your columns, as the general public seems to have been led far astray as to the facts, and because last year and the year before Congressman Bennet of New York City tried to secure the passage of a law allowing the deportation of aliens convicted of crimes of felonious character, providing such conviction occurred within three years after their first admission to this country. At the time there was much opposition to the measure and a lack of interest, owing to misinformation and the fact that the commission was still investigating.

BISHOP McFAUL'S ATTACK.

Declares It Is Not Universities' Aim to Teach Dogmas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his assaults at our universities, Bishop McFaul seems to have entirely forgotten the purpose of these universities.

Such institutions as Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Yale, Columbia, &c., are not there to teach faiths or morality according to Christian standards of a thousand years ago, but they are there to teach the truth about things, and nothing but the truth. And it would be grossly immoral on the parts of the teachers, be it in philosophy or sociology, politics or any other science, to teach their students anything but what they have found to be true during their life of investigation.

In this century, while the results and applications of the physical and biological sciences are continually before us, it is a sorry spectacle to see a man, whose word may influence many, exclaim against independent thought, because faith in a dogmatic religion may be undermined. Religion is made for us, not we for religion, and when any religion has ceased to serve its purpose, by surrounding itself with a formalism which does not suit the trend of the times, it will and should be rejected. Teaching morality by means of dogmas, found on close scrutiny to be wrong, is a jesuitic principle of which no honest investigator will avail himself. H. E.

THE MODERN PAPA.

Don't rock the babe, mother, and adle its brains!
Don't feed him on milk and make colicky pains!
Don't trot the dear child up and down on your knee!
It's bad for an infant, the doctors agree.

Get rid of the cradle. It's useless to-day!
Go throw out the bottle! It's vanquished away!
The ring and the rattle, pray hide them, my dear,
For rubber will poison the baby, I hear.

Don't nurse him! Why, mother, you're harming the child!
A thousand good reasons already are filed.
And baby foods—really, you cannot have learned
There's hardly a one that the nurse has not spurned.

The go-cart and carriage will injure his spine!
Don't kiss him, my dear, 'tho' he is yours and mine.
Don't talk baby talk to the infant, I pray!
It's bad for his mind, so the wisest all say.

"How is it that we all grew up to be old?"
Um! That is a thing that the wise have not told.
But don't toss him, mother, or count his pink toes,
Or something will happen, nurse says—and she knows!

TAKE FEW OLD MEN ON THE RAILROADS

Managers Say They Have Trouble Enough Looking Out for Their Own Veterans.

PATHETIC CASES EVERY DAY

Gray-Haired Man with Only One Leg Wants to be a Watchman, but Is Turned Away.

The problem of what to do for the old men long ago intruded into the management of the city railway lines, and has proved one of the most serious and difficult with which the companies have to deal, according to General Manager Frank Hedley of the Interborough Company, President W. O. Wood of the New York and Queens County Railroad Company, and General Manager J. F. Calderwood of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, all large employers of men, in intimate touch with the conditions under which their men must live and work and hope to succeed.

Not one of these men holds out much hope from their lines for the outside old man. They say they cannot because they must first take care of their own old men if they can, and it is all they can do. In their opinion, as most of the men above fifty who have failed come from the smaller businesses, so it is to this class of business that such men must look for employment. While willing to do everything they can for the old man out of a job, their hands are tied and retied in a dozen ways.

Here and there in the wide stretches of the city are business men who can use to advantage the experience and the faithful service of a man more than 50. Such business men would gladly employ an old man if they could find the right one, and somewhere else in the city is the right man perhaps for each place if only the two could be brought together. To bring them together and to aid the man more than 50 out of a job THE TIMES will print on Sunday free of charge advertisements not more than fifty words in length from all old men of the city seeking employment who send them in before 6 o'clock on Saturday evening.

These advertisements may be sent to the main office of THE TIMES in Times Square or to the downtown office, at 8 Spruce Street.

Many men more than 50 who have been thrown out of jobs through no fault of their own have looked with longing eyes at the ticket chopper's chair and have implored the Interborough and the B. R. T. with pitiful tales of misfortune for these and other easy jobs which they felt confident they could fill.

When General Manager Hedley of the Interborough Company was asked why he could not give such places to the old men he replied:

"We do, so far as we are able. We take on new men up to 45 years old. The application blanks say 40, but if the man of 45 is in good health we do not reject him."

He intimated that if the circumstances justified it the company even stretched that limit a little.

Never Discharge Old Men.

"But," he continued, "the number of such men is bound to be small. We never discharge a man because he is old. If he has grown old in the service of the company he has his place on the pay roll until he dies, and we find something light for him to do; something that he can do."

Mr. Hedley explained that while these men were not actually pensioned, it amounted to practically the same thing, as the work often given to the more feeble of the old men was trivial.

"But," he went on, "if we take on many old men we will not have enough of these easier jobs to go around. Besides, each job is a stepping stone to the next above it, and the man below works with the hope that some day he will be promoted. The whole railway business is an articulated system, with one job leading directly to another. It would mean disorganization to take a man out of the street and put him over another man who has been in the service of the company several years, with his eye always on the more responsible work."

It is absolutely necessary in a railroad business, Mr. Hedley said, to build up, and not down, and to do that the men must come into the service as young as possible.

The matter was presented to President Wood of the New York & Queens County Company somewhat differently. His is a trolley line, extending through Queens Borough, and he explained that it was necessary for the conductors and motormen on the cars to be able-bodied men, capable of maintaining order, sometimes even to the point of giving and taking blows.

"But what about the counting room?" he was asked. "Here is the head bookkeeper of a big firm which has gone out of business. Why can't you take him into your counting room when you have a vacancy?"

"It would be almost impossible to do so," he said. "In the first place, he does not know our business, though a good bookkeeper. Then, right behind the man whose leaving caused the vacancy is another man, who has been his understudy for several years. That man knows the job. All along he has had his eyes on it, and he is the best man to fill it, as well as being entitled to it.

"Every man in the room, then, is moved up, and the real vacancy is at the bottom. This job the bookkeeper might not be willing to accept, but even if he were so hard pressed as to do so, the promotion clearly belongs to the head office boy, who has been permitted by his parents to come into the office on a small salary with the understanding that when something better can be done for him it will be done.

"No," he added, shaking his head, "the railroad business must be made up so that one job is linked with another, and it is bad business to break the chain by the insertion of a foreign link."

Problem for a Railway Man.

From his long connection with the B. R. T. Mr. Wood explained that one of the reasons why more old men were not made ticket scalpers was that this and the platform work had to be used by the companies in breaking in the young men. In the ticket chopper's chair the new man gets their introduction to the traveling public. When he learns his first lessons he is moved on to more responsible work if he is a capable young man. The company would lose this source from which to draw recruits if old men generally were put in these jobs.

General Manager Calderwood of the B. R. T., tackled the problem in his shirt sleeves. He said it was one with which he was brought face to face every day of his life. He was sure that all it was possible for the B. R. T. and all other railway companies to do was to take care of their own old men.

"Yesterday an elderly man, handicapped by a wooden leg as well as by his years, came to me seeking a job as watchman. He told a pitiful story of failure in business and of now, in his old age, being forced to seek work wherever he could find it. He had sought it everywhere in vain, he said, and his friends had lent all their influence to his aid, but his gray hairs barred him from a livelihood.

"I could hardly make him understand why it was I could not give him a job, but our company does not turn off its old employes because they are old. The easy jobs are given to them when they can no longer do the heavier work, and when they can really do nothing we make them doormen or something that is in reality nothing, but a means of keeping them on the pay roll as a reward for a lifetime of service. We have a man in this building who has been in the employment of the company sixty years.

"The number of easy jobs is not nearly large enough for the old men of the company who are waiting to take them, and so it would be unfair to them and practically out of the question to take in old men."

Mr. Calderwood said that a question becoming more and more important for the big corporations every year was how to care for the men who had become superannuated in the service. He thought a pension system would be worked out protecting the corporations' own old men, but this would do nothing for the other old men out of a job.

"A serious situation that," he said, "and beyond me."

OUTERBRIDGE HEADS COMMITTEE OF 100

Leather Man Chosen Chairman and William A. Coakley, Labor Leader, Vice Chairman.

PLANS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

Committees to be Named with Authority to Carry on a Municipal Educational Crusade.

The Committee of One Hundred effected permanent organization at a meeting held at 82 Beaver Street yesterday afternoon by electing a full set of officers and an Executive Committee of twenty-one members. These are the officers elected:

Chairman—Eugene H. Outerbridge; Vice Chairman—William A. Coakley; Secretary—Joseph M. Price; Treasurer—Percival Kuehne.

The names of the officers came before the meeting in a report presented by the Nominating Committee appointed at the initial meeting of the Committee of One Hundred two weeks ago. The ticket recommended by the Nominating Committee was elected without a dissenting voice.

Of the officers elected, the most prominent is Mr. Outerbridge, but, like the others, he is a novice in politics. He has been active in business all his life. At present he is Treasurer and Managing Director of the Pantasote Leather Company of New Jersey, a Director of the Pantasote Company of West Virginia, the Whitbridge Mills Company of Pennsylvania, and the New York, Bermuda and Caribbean Steamship Company. He was elected a Director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in December, 1906, after the insurance investigation. He lives at 38 East Sixty-second Street, and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and of many clubs, among them the Union, Lawyers', Railroad, Automobile Club of America, and the Sawanaka Yacht Club.

Mr. Coakley is President of the Lithographers' Helpers. In the campaign of 1905 he was an active Hearst man. Joseph M. Price is a manufacturer of mailing boxes and mailing envelopes. Percival Kuehne, the Treasurer, is senior member of the banking firm of Knauth, Nachod & Kuehne. He is a Trustee and Director of many financial institutions and is a member of many clubs. Mr. Outerbridge's colleagues are independents in politics.

The following were elected members of the Executive Committee:

Thomas J. Curtis, Albert E. Davis, Winfred T. Dennison, Clarence Edwards, Edmund D. Fisher, Michael A. Fitzgerald, Michael Furst, Frederick E. Goetze, Hamilton Holt, Isaac A. Hopper, Raymond V. Ingersoll, Jacob C. Klinck, F. W. Longfellow, John Martin, Arnold B. McStay, Henry Moskowitz, William C. Redfield, William J. Schieffelin, Charles A. Schieren, Gustav H. Schwab, E. Platt Stratton.

In this instance also the recommendations of the Committee on Nominations were adopted unanimously. There was considerable discussion in reference to some recommendations having a direct bearing on plan, scope, and working methods. These were set forth in the following clause of the committee's report, which was adopted in this form, after slight amendment:

> That for the present the attention and resources of the Committee of One Hundred should be devoted largely to the preparation and dissemination of concrete campaign material; that as far as possible the material should be localized with the object of demonstrating to the voters the possibility of so spending public money as to give the people in their respective localities an adequate return in corresponding benefits, and to expose the extravagances and waste of the present administration and its complete disregard of the city's transit needs.

The meeting gave the Executive Committee full power to appoint a Press Committee, a Campaign Committee, a Finance Committee, and such other working committees as might be deemed necessary, and also to fill vacancies in its own membership as well as the membership of the Committee of One Hundred. The Executive Committee will meet for the first time next Monday afternoon.

FIVE NEWPORT DEBUTANTES.

Greater Number Than Has Been Presented in One Season in Many Years.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, June 24.—Not before in years have there been so many débutantes presented during a Newport season as there will be this Summer. There will be at least five and perhaps another.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Roelker will present Miss Eleanor Roelker, Mrs. Barger Wallach will introduce Miss Jeanne Wallach with a ball at the Newport Club, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel will give a large affair for Miss Alice Drexel, who recently finished her education in Europe, where she had been for four years; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs will introduce Miss Blanche Oelrichs, and Mrs. William Grosvenor will present Miss Rose Grosvenor.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is at Marble House for the Summer, having arrived early this morning from New York.

A number of the Summer residents will entertain with dinner parties Saturday evening, later taking their guests to Free Body Park for the entertainment to be given for the benefit of the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association.

The heat was intense again this morning, and the auto places, including the Newport Golf Club and Bailey's Beach, seemed to be the favorite spots with the Summer residents. During the afternoon the verandas of the Golf Club and the clubrooms were enlivened by bridge parties.

Social Notes.

The marriage of Miss Florence Vernon, daughter of the late Thomas Vernon of Brooklyn, and William Griffith of this city will take place this afternoon at St. Bartholomew's Church. The reception will be at 58 West Fifty-seventh Street, where Mr. and Mrs. Griffith will be at home after July 15.

The engagement is announced of Miss Caroline E. Clark, daughter of William B. Clark of Hartford, Conn., to Rufus G. Hinton of New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

Vivian C. Barnett of London arrived Wednesday on the Majestic, and is visiting his cousin, Miss Gladys Clark, at Lawrence Park. He is to leave for Colorado soon to look over his mining interests.

Prof. and Mrs. John C. Schwab of New Haven, Conn., are visiting relatives in New York. They will leave on Monday for Saranac Lake.

Mrs. Arthur Kennedy, who came up from Long Island to see some friends off for Europe, is at the Hotel Wolcott over the week end.

Mrs. John B. Gleason and her daughter, Miss Mildred Gleason, are visiting relatives in Delhi. They will spend a week in the Catskills before going to Gardiner, Me., for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Scranton of South Orange, N. J., who are in town for a few days, will leave to-morrow for White Plains for a six weeks' visit.

Mrs. James H. Stebbins of 80 Madison Avenue, will pass the Summer at Bar Harbor.

The Misses Jennie and Ella Carpender have gone to Holland Lodge, their country home, in Massapequa, L. I. William Carpender is to join them soon.

BOARD'S FRANCHISE POWER.

City Denies Commission's Right to Fix Terms and Conditions.

Counsel for the Public Service Commission, the City, and the South Shore Traction Company argued before the Appellate Division yesterday an appeal of the City and the South Shore company from the decision of the Public Service Commission withholding its approval of the franchise passed by the Board of Estimate for that company's proposed line through Queens and over the Williamsburg Bridge. The case comes before the Appellate Division on certiorari proceedings instituted by the South Shore company.

The Public Service Commission on a divided vote, held up the South Shore franchise on the ground that as drawn by the Board of Estimate, it granted a virtual monopoly of the principal thoroughfare through Queens and over the Williamsburg Bridge.

Mr. Lexow, General Counsel Coleman of the Public Service Commission, and Corporation Counsel Pendleton, made the arguments yesterday. The argument raised important questions as to the powers of the Public Service Commission over franchises, under Section 53 of the Public Service Commissions Law.

Mr. Lexow maintained that the law empowered the Commission merely to determine whether the company shall exercise the rights granted to it by the Board of Estimate, but did not empower it to approve or disapprove the terms and conditions of the franchise.

Mr. Pendleton said that the city had intervened on the ground that the action of the commission is a direct invasion of the constitutional right of the city to control its streets. He contended that the intent of the law was that the commission should regulate operation, fares, service, &c., but was not empowered to decide upon the terms and conditions of franchises.

Mr. Coleman, for the commission, in reply conceded the Corporation Counsel's contention that the city shall determine the terms and conditions of franchises. The commission cannot give rights to corporations, he said, but it can decide whether it is to the interest of the public, as distinguished from the municipality, for such rights to be exercised. Taking up the company's contention, Mr. Coleman argued that it meant that the commission can approve, but not disapprove, a franchise, which, if true, would mean that the commission would be simply a rubber stamp to indorse the action of the Board of Estimate.

Mr. Coleman pointed out that under the Rapid Transit act every step which the commission can take is subject to approval or disapproval by the Board of Estimate, and he maintained that this is right.

MISS RAYMOND A BRIDE.

Lace on Wedding Gown Worn by Her Mother and Grandmother.

Philip Waldron Boardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barnes Boardman, was married to Miss Dorothy Raymond, daughter of the late James Raymond of this city, yesterday at noon at the home of the bride's mother, 18 West Seventy-seventh Street. The house was decorated with roses and lilies. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Owen, a cousin of the bride, and for some years assistant to Dr. Stires in St. Thomas's Church. A wedding breakfast followed.

Miss Raymond was given in marriage by her brother, Frank T. Raymond. She wore a gown of white satin embroidered with point lace, which had been worn at the marriages of her mother and grandmother. Her only ornament was a pearl and diamond pin, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. John Jerome Kelly was her sister's only attendant. She wore a white lingerie dress, with a pink hat, and carried pink roses. Mr. Boardman's best man was Frederick Thomas of Morristown, and his ushers were Whitney Kernochan and Livingston Platt.

Mr. Boardman was graduated from the class of Yale, '07, and is a graduate of the New York Law School. He and Miss Raymond's brother were college mates.

Mr. and Mrs. Boardman will spend the Summer at Southampton, L. I., and will make their home in New York in the Fall.

Only relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom were invited to the wedding. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. James H. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams, the Misses Edith S. and Dorcas Williams, Mrs. Ichabod T. Williams, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Tappin, Eugene Outerbridge, Mr. and Mrs. William Harry Motley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. The resumption is made possible by a contract just closed by the company for the fireproofing of the new Gimbel Brothers store at Broadway, Sixth Avenue, Thirty-third, and Thirty-second Streets, which calls for 500,000 square feet of hollow tile blocks. To-day the McNulty heirs filed a petition in court asking for the discharge of Mrs. Margaret A. McNulty as executrix and the appointment of the Mercantile Trust Company in her stead, for the purpose of selling the property.

The members of the firm are E. D. Stair, Detroit, and John H. Havlin, Cincinnati. They have concluded preparations to take over the theatre. There has been some lively bidding for the Bijou, and Sam F. Nixon was so positive that he had secured the property that he had plans laid to operate the theatre.

BORROWERS PESTER FITCH.

Playwright Tells of One of the Penalties of Fame.

Clyde Fitch sailed yesterday on the French liner Lorraine. He goes abroad for a rest and to look after his business interests abroad. Mr. Fitch had a complaint to make before sailing. He said that since his work had brought him into the public eye he had been deluged with begging letters

"The limit was reached yesterday," he said, "when I received a letter from a woman, who said she was Ella, and used to look after me when I was a boy. All she wanted was $1,500 to bridge her over present necessities. I am poor myself. I only wish I had one quarter the money every one thinks I have—or wants to borrow from me."

Mr. Fitch will not return to America until late in the Fall, when he will supervise the production of his latest play, "The City." The plays Mr. Fitch will produce abroad are German translations—"The Truth" at Vienna and "The Woman in the Case" at Berlin.

The Show Girl

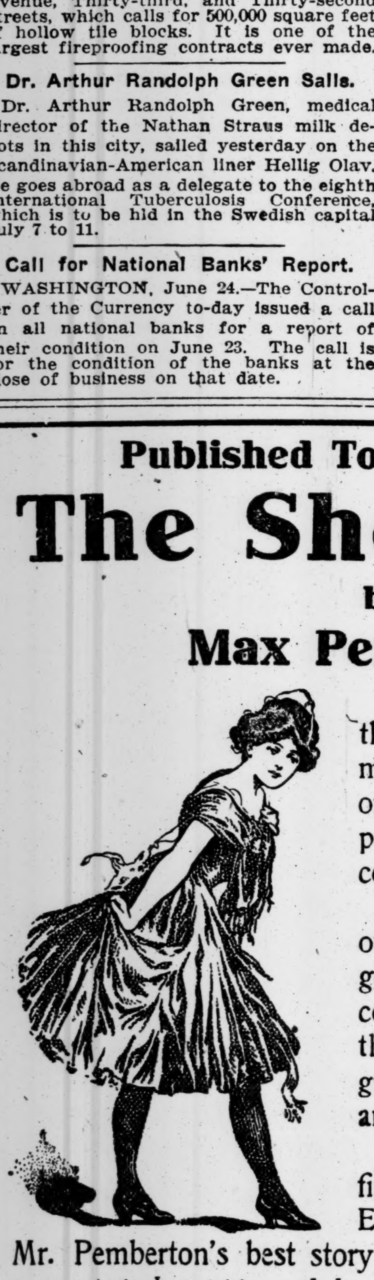
Max Pemberton



"Mimi the Simpleton had thrown her fair arms about me, not in an ecstacy of love or passion, but purely to pocket the case and enjoy the contents at her leisure."

Naturally this unusual way of making an acquaintance gets Henry Gastonard into complications which enliven all the rest of the book. Mimi grows more and more lovable and desirable.

The Show Girl is already first of the "Best Sellers" in England. As it is said to be Mr. Pemberton's best story we believe it will have the same popular approval here as abroad.

SARAH ORNE JEWETT, NOTED WRITER, DEAD

Admired for Her Stories of New England Rural Life—Praised by Lowell.

DEATH FOLLOWED PARALYSIS

Sixty Years Old, Most of Her Life Had Been Spent Between Her Native Maine and Boston.

SOUTH BERWICK, Me., June 24.—An illness lasting many months ended to-night in the death of Miss Sarah Orne Jewett, Litt. D., author of many books and regarded as one of the foremost women writers of America. Since last March Miss Jewett had been at her old home here, where for many years she had been accustomed to pass her Summers, and it was in this old home that her death occurred at 6:40 this evening.

It was while living in Boston early in the present year, at the residence of her friend, Mrs. James T. Fields, widow of a famous Boston publisher, and herself an author of various books, that Miss Jewett had an attack of apoplexy which caused paralysis on one side of her body, and, although her mind remained clear, she became nearly helpless physically.

It is believed that another attack of the brain hemorrhage from which she first suffered was the immediate cause of death.

The house where Miss Jewett was born, on Sept. 3, 1849, has been in the possession of the Jewett family since 1740. Miss Jewett was the daughter of Dr. Theodore H. and Caroline F. (Perry) Jewett.

Miss Jewett was best known to the literary world through her stories of New England country life. These were published both in book form and in the magazines.

Her father was a country physician. Delicate health in childhood compelled Miss Jewett to spend most of her time in the open air. She therefore accompanied her father every day on his rounds among his patients. During these trips she stored up material which later found its way into print. Afterward, gaining somewhat in strength, Miss Jewett attended the academy in her native village.

Her career as an author began when she was quite young. While she was at the Berwick Academy, she was only seventeen then, several short stories under her name appeared in "Our Young Folks," and the Riverside Magazine. She ventured to send a story to the Atlantic Monthly when she was nineteen years of age, and since then hardly a year has passed without a volume from her.

Although nearly all of her life was spent between the house in which she was born in Maine and at the home of Mrs. James T. Fields, these places were not the only ones with which Miss Jewett was acquainted. She traveled throughout this country and made several trips abroad.

Among Miss Jewett's principal writings were "Deephaven," in 1877; "Old Friends and New," published in 1880; "Country Byways," which was published in the following year; "A Country Doctor," in 1884; a series of stories of the nations, which was published in 1887; "Tales of New England," in 1888, and "The Country of the Pointed Firs," published in 1897. Other stories were "A Marsh Island," "The Story of the Normans," her last book being "The Tory Lover," published in 1901. Miss Jewett was a contributor besides, to many magazines. In 1901 she received the degree of Doctor of Letters from Bowdoin College.

Justice Giegerich called the child to the bench. After a talk with her he decided that she could see her father at such times as could be arranged between counsel and the father and mother, but ruled that the mother should have the custody of the child pending the trial of the suit.

UNION PACIFIC THE FEATURE

News from Crop Country Uniformly Favorable—Foreign Exchange Rates Strong—Bank of England Statement.

Short covering, although less general than on Wednesday, was still urgent enough in a number of the leading shares yesterday to bring about substantial advances in the issues involved and a fairly general, if moderate, rise through the list. As a whole, the movement was not as convincing as that of the previous day, but the indisposition of speculators at heart believing in a future rise to work for it at the moment is acceptable rather than otherwise, since the most trying season for the crops, upon the outcome of which so much depends, is now practically at hand. There were repeated upon an even larger scale the moves of Wednesday in both Union Pacific preferred and Third Avenue. The first-named stock, after closing at 103½ on Thursday night, rose to 110 shortly after the opening yesterday, and closed at 107¼ on actual transactions of a trifle under 8,000 shares. As much mystery attended the course of the stock as at any time heretofore, but the grist of rumors and reports accompanying its movements yesterday was practically that of the previous day. Third Avenue dropped to 21½, a new low point for the stock on the move, and the volume of trading in it, some 10,000 shares, evidenced the indisposition of many holders to pay the assessment which it is proposed to levy upon the stock in connection with the reorganization of the road. In the late trading Reading rose sharply upon heavy dealings, as did also Interborough preferred, American Cotton Oil, Southern Pacific, and United States Steel. In connection with the renewed strength in the last-named stock, private cables from Paris during the day told of the resumption of negotiations for the "listing" of Steel shares on the Paris Bourse under auspices so favorable as to justify expectations of the ultimate success of the endeavors. The day's news was meagre and only of interest in so far as it testified to a continuation of the improving tendency in all lines of trade as well as with the crops. A grain trade journal which is highly recorded in its weekly crop summary noted the prevalence of favorable weather in practically all parts of the crop country and ventured the assertion that Winter wheat had made steady and decided improvement since June 1 in a great many sections. As a picture of past conditions, the report of the American Car Foundry Company for the year ended April 30 last, showing earnings applicable to dividends amounting to only 2.65 per cent., as against 20 per cent. in the preceding year, was interesting, but to understand present conditions it is necessary to peruse that part of the report of the President of the company in which is noted the fact that the number of car orders on hand on April 30 was substantially the same as on the corresponding date in 1908, with the difference that there is now every prospect of an increase of business, whereas a year ago the outlook was for diminishing orders.

In the foreign exchange market, where interest now converges so far as the money markets are concerned, sterling exchange continued strong, with rates around Wednesday's levels. No engagements for exports of gold, however, were reported. The weekly report of the Bank of England disclosed a gain of nearly $5,000,000 in gold, which, with the other changes, raised the percentage of reserves to liabilities to 51.30, the highest proportion attained at this season since 1904, and with the exception of that year and 1903 in over ten years. The Bank is unusually strong, therefore, and were it not for the approach of the mid-year disbursements, a lowering of its official discount rate might reasonably be expected.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The biggest export business of the year sustained the market yesterday in the face of bearish Northwest crop news and increased new wheat offerings in the Southwest. Up to 4 o'clock fully 127 loads had been reported for export, including 45 loads of old hard wheat, early July, for Antwerp; 25 loads new hard, August-September, and 57 loads of durum and Manitoba, for September-October shipment. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ½d net higher, Berlin was ¾c up, and Budapest ½c net lower. At primary points 212,000 bushels were received, compared with 337,000 bushels a year ago. The Minneapolis stock decreased 557,000 bushels in the last five days. Cash wheat in New York closed: No. 2 red, $1.47 elevator and free on board afloat, both old, and nominal; No. 2 red, new, $1.19, end of August; No. 1 Northern Duluth, old, $1.35⅞, and No. 2 hard Winter $1.31⅞, free on board afloat, both nominal.

CORN.—There was a sharp break in Chicago yesterday, due to heavier country offerings, and cash interests were active sellers at times. All interior points had 388,000 bushels, compared with 443,000 bushels a year ago. Liverpool was ¼d net higher, and export business of about three loads was reported. No. 2 corn in New York closed 81c elevator and 79c free on board afloat for old, and 65¾c for new, free on board afloat, Winter shipment.

SOME COPPERS SELL OFF

A Few of the Market Favorites Close Fractionally Lower—Atlantic Gulf & West Indies 5s Up ½ Point.

Stocks were generally firm on the Curb yesterday, although the market continued sluggish, and in many issues trading totaled only a few hundred shares. Miami and Nevada Consolidated were two of the coppers to make small losses, the former selling down from 16¼ to 16 on transactions of 1,100 shares, and the latter from 23½ to 23¼ after transactions of only 400 shares. United Copper lost ¼ on the day's business, closing at 10¼. In the bond list trading was in small volume and the price movements small as a rule. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies 5s rose from 69½ to 70 on transactions of $18,000.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee opened unchanged to 5 points higher yesterday. Washington advices suggesting a renewal of the agitation for an import duty were followed by near-month support in New York, but business continued very quiet. The market closed quiet, net unchanged to 5 points higher, with sales of only 4,250 bags. The French market was ¼ to ½ franc lower, at the New York opening. Other foreign markets showed little change. A partial decline of ¼ pfennig was reported at Hamburg. Neither of the Brazilian markets reported any change. Rain was reported in one district of Sao Paulo, but otherwise the weather continued very cold. Spot coffee continued quiet; 7⅛c for Rio No. 7.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Stock Easily Advanced.

Scarcely any stock on the list could have been selected which might be advanced more easily than Union Pacific preferred, and if the spectacular rise in this issue has been brought about for "public consumption," as some suspect, the purpose appears to have been accomplished fairly well so far. Yesterday the stock rose 6½ points more, to 110, almost immediately after the opening of the market; later fell back to 106, and again rallied to 107¼. The stock market thrives on mysteries, and in Union Pacific it has one sufficiently impressive to satisfy the most fastidious. After deliberating over the half dozen or so "explanations" for the remarkable behavior of the stock, some brokers began to figure out just what might be accomplished in it by a little buying to the accompaniment of a great deal of noise. They discovered that close to 75 per cent. of the entire issue is held by insiders, and the balance, or say $25,000,000, is scattered pretty widely in the hands of investors here and abroad. With ownership of a stock lodged as that is no great amount of energy, other than that expended in talk, is required, nor a great deal of money, either, to put it up 10 or 15 points, particularly when the assistance of professional operators is to be had without the asking.

⁂

Short Interest Suspected.

Those who put no credence in the many reports about melon-cutting and the carrying out of the segregation plan thought it just possible that some shrewd people had bought a large amount of calls on Union Pacific preferred in London, and that when the foreign option dealers attempted to make deliveries they found that the stock was not to be bought for the price they had figured on. Others familiar with the London option market said it would have been hardly possible to purchase a large amount of calls on Union Pacific preferred, but it was admitted in arbitrage circles yesterday that at least several thousand shares purchased was for the short account. Some brokers said they could trace at least 4,000 shares which represented short covering, and since the total dealings in the stock would hardly double that amount the inference was drawn that perhaps the sensational rise in price was due mostly to technical conditions.

Wabash vs. Union Pacific.

About two weeks ago Wabash preferred accomplished a spectacular rise accompanied by innumerable deal rumors. The excitement attending the bidding up of the Wabash shares was communicated to the rest of the market, and the bulls were in high glee—for a few days. Then failure of any of the rumors to obtain confirmation and denials of some of them caused traders to become skeptical and the market to grow weary. Pretty soon it began to break violently, the decline culminating last Monday. This incident was recalled yesterday in connection with the further rise of Union Pacific; also some people began to wonder if the Wabash episode might not be repeated. A market which derives its inspiration, in a large degree, from rumors of this sort, frequently collapses when the rumors fail to materialize into actual fact. Few, however, were bold enough to say positively that there might not be something in the Union Pacific stories. Mr. Harriman usually arranges such deals, and at present he is out of reach of the Wall Street reporters. On rare occasions in the past, reporters have been apprised of what has been going on before some of Mr. Harriman's immediate business associates. In his absence the latter are apt to speak with caution, or not at all, concerning what the Union Pacific may or may not have in view.

Grumbling at Rise.

There is a good deal of grumbling on the part of those who missed the rise in prices since Monday because the market has not been acting just in the way they thought a well-behaved market should do. They had it all figured out that, following last week's decline, dullness should prevail for a week or two, and prices should wabble back and forth within narrow limits, giving them plenty of time to decide whether they should take the short or the long side for the next turn. But the market has done nothing of the sort, having upset all their calculations by straightway starting to regain the lost ground, and so far has recovered about half of it. Consequently, in their opinion, the rise since Monday has been entirely artificial, and is bound to be followed by another sharp break. Markets have a way of seeming artificial to many speculators who do not happen to be participating in the benefits of a rise in prices.

Movements in Tractions.

Again sharp contrast was shown between the movements of the Third Avenue shares and those of the Metropolitan Street Railway and the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, the stocks of the latter two being particularly strong, while Third Avenue displayed renewed weakness. Formal announcement of the Third Avenue reorganization plan, which will call for a heavy assessment on the stock, appears to be comparatively near, while that of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company is likely to be deferred for months. But aside from that, the leading interests in the Metropolitan appear to be of opinion that they will be able to put the property on its feet at a less sacrifice to shareholders than in the case of the Third Avenue. The Interborough-Metropolitan Company, which owns the bulk of the Metropolitan Street Railway stock, seems to be confident that a rehabilitation of the Metropolitan surface lines can be worked out in such a way as to be of substantial benefit to the holding company in the long run.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Americans Show Improvement and Close Firm in London.

LONDON, June 24.—Money was in increased demand on the market to-day and discounts were quiet.

On the Stock Exchange transactions for new account were meagre. The rally in Americans and the improvement in Kaffirs caused a better tone to prevail in certain departments. Copper shares, particularly Rio Tintos, were supported, but near the close they were a little below the best. Consols and gilt-edged securities were neglected, but foreigners and home rails hardened.

American securities opened slightly above parity. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and United States Steel were in good demand. At noon the market was firm with prices ½ to 2 points over yesterday's New York closing. Americans were firm in the afternoon, showed further improvement after the New York opening, and closed at the best. Union Pacific preferred was the feature.

Bar silver quiet, 24⅛d. per ounce.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 24.—The local market opened steady this morning, with little stock offering. The activity did not last, however, and trading soon became exceedingly dull. In the afternoon selling orders made their appearance in the local shares, and, while declines were hardly noticeable, the undertone was by no means as strong as was the case earlier in the day. The market continued dull and without particular feature until the close.

FLORIDA EAST COAST RAILWAY COMPANY.

Jacksonville, Florida, June 17, 1909.

Messrs. J. P. MORGAN & CO.,

Dear Sirs:—

In behalf of the Florida East Coast Railway Company, of which I am President, and for the purpose of giving full and accurate information concerning the Company and its proposed issue of $10,000,000 of new First Mortgage bonds, part of a total authorized issue of $12,000,000, I submit the following statement:

This Railway Company was organized under the laws of Florida in the month of May, 1892, its present name having been adopted upon September 13, 1895.

The authorized main line of the railway extends from a point in the City of Jacksonville, Florida, to Key West, Florida, a distance of 522 miles, more or less, with 97 miles of branches. The railroad was completed from Jacksonville to Miami, a distance of 366 miles, in the year 1895, and ever since has been in continuous operation. The railroad from Miami southward to Knight's Key, a distance of 111 miles, was completed in the year 1908, and ever since has been in continuous operation.

The actual cost of the railroad as completed to date exceeds $33,000,000 in cash.

The new First Mortgage bonds represent only about one-third of the actual cost; the other two-thirds having been met out of the proceeds of common stock and about $20,000,000 income bonds (part of an authorized issue of $25,000,000) subordinate and inferior to the First Mortgage bonds.

The railroad from Knight's Key southwardly to Key West, a distance of 45 miles, is now in course of construction, and is expected to be completed on or before the first day of January, 1911.

" " " " " 1906	2,471,152.14
" " " " " 1907	2,956,282.66
" " " " " 1908	3,008,346.43
Twelve months ending with June, 1909, (May and June estimated)	3,318,320.00

The operating expenses, the taxes and the net earnings available for interest charges were as follows:

1905	$1,608,522.53	$ 74,405.33	$645,935.81
1906	1,767,646.56	113,042.16	590,463.42
1907	2,251,797.77	112,582.90	591,901.99
1908	2,387,084.61	131,592.78	489,669.04
1909 (May and June estimated)	2,173,719.00	136,000.00	1,008,601.00

The above mentioned operating expenses include extraordinary charges for new rail, telegraph lines and depreciation.

The physical condition of the railroad and of its equipment is excellent and fully adequate to the requirements of the business of the railroad.

The business of the railroad has shown a steady and continuous increase and promises to be very largely increased by its extension and completion to Key West.

There are now existing and outstanding notes of the Company payable in August, 1910, to a total amount of $6,080,000, which notes are secured by the personal endorsement of H. M. Flagler, Esq., and also by deposit of a portion of the present first mortgage bonds. It is proposed now to execute a new First Mortgage to secure an authorized issue of $12,000,000 4½% fifty year First Mortgage bonds, as stated above. Out of the proceeds of $10,000,000 of the new First Mortgage bonds, it is intended immediately to retire all of the existing notes payable in 1910, and, with the remainder of those proceeds and by the issue of secondary general mortgage income bonds, it is intended to retire all of the present first mortgage bonds and second mortgage bonds. This having been done, the new First Mortgage securing the bonds for the principal sum of $10,000,000 will constitute a first lien upon all of the railroad property of the company, including its equipment valued at more than $3,000,000.

The remaining $2,000,000 of these bonds will be reserved to be issued for new equipment and construction, under careful limitation and restrictions, which are fully set forth in the Mortgage.

The railroad is to be extended, constructed and completed from Knight's Key to Key West out of the proceeds of $4,000,000 new common stock of the Company, to be purchased at par by Mr. Flagler.

The $450,000 interest annually accruing upon the $10,000,000 First Mortgage bonds now proposed to be issued, will be substantially less than the net earnings of the Company available for the payment of interest charges during each of the last five fiscal years, as set forth in the above table. For the current fiscal year, such net earnings are more than double such interest charge. These earnings, it is expected, will steadily increase, not only by the regular growth of the business of the Company, but also with the completion of the important extension to Key West, for which the funds have been assured as above stated.

This road is the natural continuation of the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern Railway and the Seaboard Air Line to Florida and Cuba, and a proposed car ferry system between Key West and Cuba will attract to this line still larger amounts of traffic which otherwise would be carried by boats.

Arrangements have been made also to fund the entire indebtedness of the Railway Company subsequent and subordinate to the new First Mortgage bonds.

Yours very truly,
J. R. PARROTT, President.

GOVERNMENT DROPS ITS NEW HAVEN SUIT

Attorney General's Decision Follows Legislature's Authorization of Road's Consolidation.

NO ANTI-TRUST VIOLATION

Competition in Inter-State Commerce by Reason of Trolley Lines Ownership Also Removed from Case.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Attorney General to-day directed the dismissal of the Government's suit against the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Maine Railroads, and others, for violating the anti-trust law. The Massachusetts Legislature had expressly authorized the consolidation of those roads.

The Attorney General issued the following statement:

"The Attorney General received to-day a certified copy of the act passed by the Legislature of Massachusetts, and approved last Friday by the Governor of that State, creating the Boston Railroad Holding Company. This act authorizes the new corporation created under it to acquire and hold all or any part of the stock and bonds of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company; and further authorizes any railroad corporation theretofore incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts to acquire and hold the stock and bonds of the Boston Holding Company.

"The purpose and effect of this statute, as publicly announced, and as contemplated by its terms, is to authorize the consolidation of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. This is to be accomplished first by the Boston Holding Company acquiring the control of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company, and next, by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company acquiring control of the Boston Holding Company.'

"The statute further provides that the stock of the Boston & Maine to be acquired by the holding company shall not hereafter be sold without express authority from the Legislature, and that the stock of the holding company, if acquired by the New Haven road, shall not hereafter be sold without express authority of the Legislature. Finally it is provided that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts may, at any time, by an act of the Legislature, upon one year's notice, take for its own use, by purchase or otherwise, all the stock and bonds of the holding company upon certain terms designed to protect creditors and secure just compensation, the whole plan and purpose being to permit the consolidation of the Boston & Maine with the New Haven company, and to provide for their operation hereafter under one management, with safeguards to protect the interests of the people of Massachusetts.

"In view of the fact that the suit of the United States now pending against the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Maine Railroad Companies for a violation of the Anti-Trust act rests almost entirely upon a claim that these companies had already consolidated by means of stock ownership, and since the community most directly affected is the State of Massachusetts, whose laws now expressly authorize such consolidation, the Attorney General has determined to dismiss the Government's action.

"In that action the further complaint was made that the New Haven Railroad had acquired a number of trolley lines in Massachusetts and adjoining States, and that this was a combination in restraint of inter-State commerce. Since the Government's suit was determined upon, however, the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in a case involving the right of the New Haven road to acquire trolley properties in Massachusetts, has decided that the railroad company has no such power, and that company has been parting with such trolley properties.

"Upon this question the Attorney General is convinced that whatever may have been the merit of the claim when the suit was begun, there is not now in this case any such element of competition in inter-State commerce by reason of such ownership of trolley lines as would justify a further prosecution of the action."

PREDICTS A BUSINESS BOOM.

J. Ogden Armour Optimistic—Not Out to Control South American Beef.

J. Ogden Armour, before starting for Chicago yesterday after an extended trip abroad, talked optimistically about the business outlook. He said affairs were shaping up both here and abroad, but more especially here, for a "prosperity boom such as seldom if ever has been experienced before." He said that his advices reported the crops in excellent condition and that with this promising situation continuing to harvest time the tariff would be a negligible factor in the situation.

Speaking of the effect of the tariff on his own business, Mr. Armour was emphatic in denying that his company was interested in the duty on hides.

"We are in the meat packing business," he said, "and hides are merely a by-product."

He denied that the company was influenced in going into the South American field in order to control the situation there. "If we go into the field in South America to any extent," he said, "it will not be for the purpose of controlling anything, but simply as an extension of the packing business for legitimate profit."

PLACE FOR H. H. ROGERS, JR.

Succeeds His Father as a National Transit Director.

Following the election of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to a Vice Presidency of the Standard Oil Company, succeeding the late H. H. Rogers, it was announced yesterday that H. H. Rogers, Jr., would succeed his father in the Directorate of the National Transit Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil.

A. C. Bedford, a son of E. T. Bedford, was elected at the same time a Director of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to succeed Mr. Rogers, and W. C. Teagle to fill the vacancy caused by his death in the board of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Perkins and Lovett, Too, for Erie Board.

George W. Perkins and Robert S. Lovett, Vice President of the Union Pacific, will probably be added to the Erie Board of Directors in addition to E. H. Gary and L. F. Loree, whose proposed election to the Erie Directorate was made known recently. In these further proposed additions to the Erie board the division between representatives of the Morgan and Harriman interests is preserved. The changes in the board are likely to be made next Wednesday if a quorum is present on that day.

WRIT FOR CENTRAL STAYS CITY'S HAND

Railroad Argues That Its Right to Eleventh Avenue Franchise Is Perpetual.

A TEMPORARY INJUNCTION

City Has Till July 8 to Give Its Side of the Controversy—Case to be Carried to Higher Court.

Fearing that Borough President Ahearn would make good the city's threat to tear up the New York Central Railroad's 12,380 feet of track on public west side streets, Vice President Harris and Counsel Lyman of the railroad company secured a temporary injunction yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Blanchard restraining Mr. Ahearn and the Board of Estimate from interfering with the tracks.

Justice Blanchard gave Assistant Corporation Counsel Burr until July 8 to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent. Whatever Justice Blanchard's decision, an appeal will be taken, the lawyers on both sides said, and the test of the company's rights to continue to run trains up and down Eleventh Avenue "in perpetuity" will be carried up to the Appellate Division, and thence, successively, to the Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court. Only the decision of the court of last resort will decide whether the company shall be able to run trains on Eleventh Avenue without further molestation from the city, or be obliged to tear up its tracks.

The company's complaint, covering over forty long pages, gives for the first time in full detail the railroad company's arguments in support of its contention that its right to occupy Eleventh Avenue is perpetual. The company asserts and Mr. Burr admits that the Legislature by an act of 1846 empowered the Hudson River Railroad Company to construct a railway from New York to Albany and operate it "for a term of 50 years from the passage of this act." About a year later the Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance permitting the railroad company to lay tracks and run trains through the west side streets, but precipitated the present muddle by neglecting to say how long this privilege was to last.

Then the railroad company and the Mayor and other city officials made a written agreement whereby the railroad company pledged itself to keep the road near its tracks in repair "forever," while the city officials "approved" such a pledge as being in accordance with the earlier Aldermanic ordinance. The Common Council was so delighted with the opening of the road that it passed a eulogistic "report" praising the railroad company for having connected this city "for all time" with the rest of the country.

So the company continued to operate its west side car tracks on this rather indefinite understanding as to its franchise's time limit, until May, 1869, when the State Legislature passed an act permitting "certain railroad companies" to consolidate. The act expressly stated, however, that the original franchises of each of the consolidating railroad companies should be transferred to the new corporation, but that the act of consolidation should not release the new corporation from any of the restrictions applying to the original corporations.

This latter clause, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Burr, would seem to have considerable bearing on what followed. A few months later the Hudson River Railroad consolidated with the New York Central Railroad. In their agreement of consolidation, although the former company had been chartered by the State for only fifty years, the two companies decided that their term of consolidation should last 500 years. In 1874 a statute was passed permitting the company to extend its existence beyond the time named in the incorporating act by filing a certificate with the Secretary of State. But the newly organized New York Central & Hudson River Railroad failed even to do this, according to Mr. Burr, who accordingly holds that the Central's right to operate under the Hudson River Railroad's incorporating act of 1846 expired in 1896, and that for the last thirteen years it has been holding the west side franchise improperly.

Counsel Lyman, for the railroad company, on the other hand, holds that by its Aldermanic ordinance the city consented to the permanent location and construction of the railroad in the city streets, and that the subsequent "agreement" made between the railroad and the city's officials regarding the perpetual upkeep of the track neighborhood by the railroad, shows that the company's permanent rights to use the west side streets was understood by both parties.

The company, according to Counsel Lyman, was also empowered to purchase considerable land beside its tracks. This privately owned land belonging to the company on the west side was assessed this year at $13,845,000, according to Mr. Lyman. The special franchise in the streets from Spuyten Duyvil Creek to St. John's Park was assessed this year at $4,437,500. In 1907, almost 6,000,000 tons of freight were handled and 890,000 cars were run over the tracks.

Counsel Lyman points out also that, relying upon the use of the tracks and permanency of its franchise, the New York Central, since 1896, has increased its capital stock from $100,000,000 to $178,632,000, and this new stock has been sold in the markets of the world, the purchasers also relying upon the permanence of the franchise.

Mr. Lyman said yesterday that if the permanence of the franchise could be established the company would be willing and anxious to improve its west side service by raising or lowering the tracks, or doing anything else it could to give increased facilities to shippers.

The Board of Estimate authorized Borough President Ahearn to notify the road recently that if it did not start the removal of the tracks within thirty days the city would tear them up itself. This action was taken to have the matter brought before the courts as soon as possible.

PREDICTS RECORD CROPS.

Conditions Never Better in the West, New York Central's Head Reports.

President W. C. Brown of the New York Central, who is now in the West, has forwarded to his office here a summary of the status of the crops in the West compiled from reports made to him.

President Brown writes that present conditions promise the largest crops of grain and hay the country has ever raised, and that nothing but some widespread calamity can prevent the realization of this. There has been good recovery in wheat which was somewhat damaged earlier in the year, and while other crops are in some instances late, they show excellent promise, President Brown finds.

The outlook for crops in Illinois, he says, was never better at this time of year, and conditions are most satisfactory in Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, and other wheat and corn producing States.

CAR BUSINESS IMPROVING.

Company's Report Shows Wide Curtailment Last Year, However.

The extent of the curtailment of railroad equipment buying since the panic of 1907 is sharply indicated in the report of the American Car & Foundry Company for the year ended April 30, which shows net earnings of $3,741,975, compared with $8,961,380 in the previous twelve months, and of $9,347,084 in 1907. The surplus for the year after to payment of preferred dividends and a reduced disbursement on the common stock was $195,831, compared with $2,814,618 in the previous year, bringing the total surplus up to $22,563,078.

In his report President Eaton says that the number of car orders on hand at the close of the fiscal year was practically the same as the total on the books at the end of the previous year, "with the difference, however, that there is every prospect of an increase in business during the coming year, which condition did not exist at the close of the fiscal year 1907-08."

The company has announced that it will discontinue the issuance of quarterly reports. President Eaton said:

"This decision is based upon the conclusion that a quarterly statement does not always fairly reflect the condition of your company's affairs in their entirety. In the conduct of so diversified a business as is done by your company, a quarterly statement sometimes gives an apparent and undue advantage to one quarter over another."

Girls and Boys Run in Races.

The athletic pupils of Principal John T. Nicholson's school, No. 186, at 145th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, acquitted themselves very creditably in the annual field day games at American League Park yesterday afternoon. The grand stand was well filled with the boys and girls of both schools, and the winners were enthusiastically cheered as they passed the finishing line.

The fifty yards dash for girls proved to be one of the features of the game. From a field of a dozen starters little Louise Vorhaus, scarcely 10 years old, dashed out in front at the report of the pistol, and, without slackening her pace, reached the tape a yard in front of her nearest competitor, Lucy Engelmann. In the district relay race the four-boy team of No. 186 finished in the lead, but was disqualified for being overweight. The honors were given to No. 10, with No. 5 second, and No. 43 third. Twenty-eight youngsters started in the only heat in the fifty yards dash, limited to eighty-five pounds in weight, Harry Silverstein, from scratch, finishing in good style a couple of feet ahead of William Jordan.

A baseball game between the teams of No. 169 and 186 wound up the afternoon's sport. Only seven innings were played, No. 169 winning by a score of 4 to 2. Summaries:

70-Yard Dash.—Won by Henry Branstater, (1 yard;) George Buckbee, (3 yards,) second; Jerome Adler, (1 yard,) third. Time—0:08 3-5.

Flag Race, 1A and 2B, About 40 Yards.—Boys—Won by Earl Jenushe; Marshall Payne, second; H. Herman, third. Time—0:06 3-5. Girls—Won by Marion Bogardus; Ethel McCracken, second; Alice Benz, third. Time—0:07.

Wray Praises Harvard Crews.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 24.—The high temperature is interesting to a considerable extent with the Yale and Harvard crews' practice on the Thames, no long distance trials being held to-day. Yale did send a single crew out for practice this morning, and the evening work was of a very light nature, Coach Kennedy rehearsing the two eights in racing starts above Broad View, while the four oars were manoeuvring on the upper mile of the course.

Coach Jim Wray did not take any of Harvard's crews below the two-mile flag at the naval station, but he put in a great deal of time rounding his men into shape, instructing them from his single scull, and he expressed himself as being highly pleased with the improvement shown by all the crews.

"The best rowing I have ever witnessed by any of Harvard's crews," remarked the good-natured coach this evening, when he was divesting himself of his rowing togs.

The first race of the season between Yale and Harvard will take place on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock down stream for two miles.

Yale's quarters are in gloom to-night owing to their defeat at baseball, but Red Top is aglare with a mammoth bonfire made up of telegraph poles and railroad ties, which the Freshman crews lugged across camp with the perspiration fairly oozing out of their tanned bodies, and a grand pyrotechnical display of fireworks is also in progress in plain view of the athletes training up at Broad View.

Too Hot for Hard Crew Work.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—The hot weather made it impossible for the crew coaches to give their men much work to-day, and the oarsmen paddled in the morning and evening. The Columbia oarsmen had light practice both morning and afternoon, the freshmen going very well indeed. Phillips, who has been in New York since last Monday because of an abscess near his ear, returned to quarters to-day. He may go back into the boat on Saturday.

The Cornell men, Sutton and Simson, are ready to get back into the 'Varsity shell, from which they have been absent for a time because of stomach trouble. When they get back Backus and Stevens of last year's 'Varsity eight will lose their places again. The Wisconsin men had light work over the upper course both morning and afternoon. Syracuse and Cornell stayed down below for their practice.

Metropolitan Oarsmen Race.

Oarsmen of the Metropolitan Rowing Club were favored with good conditions for the start of their regatta on the Harlem River last evening. Trial heats in junior and senior singles were decided over a half-mile straightaway course, starting from the end of the Speedway and finishing opposite the clubhouse. All the races were well contested. The trials for the doubles will take place this evening, and the final heats will be rowed to-morrow. Summary:

Junior Singles, Class A.—First Heat—Won by Robert Hyland; C. W. Van Tassell, second. Time—3:05. Second Heat—Won by C. C. Putnam; H. Herese, second. Time—3:11.

Junior Singles, Class B.—First Heat—Won by W. J. Daly; F. Fillot, second. Time—3:08. Second Heat—Won by E. S. Becker; A. T. Earley, second. Time—3:12.

Senior Singles.—First Heat—Won by A. Von Barthol; F. Deering, second. Time—3:04. Second Heat—Won by E. J. Emery; L. Jauss, second. Time—3:07.

MACNAMARA IN LEAD FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE

Boston Professional Turns in Best Score for the National Honors.

TRAVIS BEST OF AMATEURS

Dave Hunter Makes New Record of 68 Strokes for Englewood Course—Tom Vardon on Links.

Tom MacNamara of the Wollaston Country Club, near Boston, is in the lead for the open golf championship of the United States. He finished the first half of the 72-hole medal play round yesterday on the Englewood Club links with a score of 142, a 73 for the morning round and 69 for the afternoon, the latter being four strokes under par and a stroke better than the former record for the course held by the home club professional, Jack Hobens. Next to McNamara came Andrew Campbell, a youngster, but a slashing good player from the Springhaven Club, Pennsylvania, with a card of 146, and in third place, with 147, is George Sargent of the Hyde Manor Club, New York, a young Englishman, who has recently been at Ottawa. Following them in order were Gil Nicholls, Alex Campbell, better known as the "Nipper"; Robert Peebles, Alexander Smith, the metropolitan open champion, and Walter J. Travis, in eighth place with 150, and leading the amateur contingent, while three men tied for the ninth and tenth positions; Peter Robinson, C. H. Rowe, and F. R. Upton, Jr., the latter also an amateur, whose score of 151 was a pleasant surprise to his friends.

So far as the three leading positions go, it was a complete reversal of expert opinion. The old-time champions, the so-called "top-notchers," were bowled over, but another decided reversal may be looked for to-day, as Gil Nicholls, who has been knocking at the doors of the open championship for several years, was a strong favorite last night, while Smith and Alex Campbell are quite likely to jump up among the leading places. Ten money prizes are awarded, and if an amateur wins any of the places he receives the value in plate.

The playing of Tom Vardon, the English golfer from the Royal Deal Club, was watched with keener interest than that of any other player, but if his score of 155 was a disappointment to some, when one considers that Vardon arrived here only the night before the tournament on the steamer Majestic, and that his first round was his introduction to the course, his card looms up as a very creditable performance. Vardon, who is a brother of Harry Vardon, England's several times open champion, and who won the American title in 1900, is an impressive player, and his putting was a treat to watch. He was also impressive in view of the excessive heat of the day and from his heavy dress, as he was the only player to make the rounds with a coat, and he persistently wore a thick green felt hat.

David Hunter of the Essex County Club, Orange, N. J., created the sensation of the morning round by going around in 68 strokes, establishing a new record for the links, which have a playing distance of over 6,200 yards. It was a remarkable card, and put him at the top of the bunch when the afternoon play began. That his putting was of a superior stamp may be seen from the fact that he took but 30 puts for the 18 holes, six less than the orthodox number. His Waterloo came in the afternoon with a card of 84, dropping him among the 152 men. His record card is:

Out ....4 4 5 5 3 4 3 3 4—35
In ....4 4 4 3 4 3 4 4 3—33—68

The heat was insufferable, and to the gallery who preferred to watch the play from the piazza of the clubhouse it was a wonder that the golfers stood the ordeal so well. Tom Vardon felt the heat severely, and at one time he was almost on the point of giving up. Late in the day automobiles and stylish traps drove up to the club with scores of women, and they promptly seated themselves in tiers on the ridge overlooking the home green, forming a pretty picture in their light Summer frocks and making, at least, an apparition of coolness. President Jacques of Boston, of the United States Golf Association, was present with the other members of the committee, and with W. Fellowes Morgan and Robert C. Watson, the pairs were kept going rapidly, but it was nearly 8 o'clock before the last score was in.

The scores of those who qualified for the final half:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—There was a fair show of strength throughout the local list today, although the volume of transactions was exceedingly limited. Lehigh Valley was about the most buoyant feature, with a rise to 81. Asphalt recovered a point, and Philadelphia Electric was active around 11¾. The strength of U. S. Steel was only slightly reflected by Cambria Steel, and the local tractions were exceedingly dull. The market closed steady.

A German's Exposure of the Mediums of Spiritualism.

The Sunday Times will publish in its forthcoming number the first of two articles by Dr. Albert Moll, an eminent German, giving the results of some of his experiments in the exposure of the frauds of spiritualism. The work of Dr. Moll has attracted much attention in Eurpoe, and his experiences and his detections of frauds are certain to be of absorbing interest to every reader. The charlatanry of th mediums finds its most persistent foe in Dr. Moll.

The Sunday Times will offer an uncommonly interesting series of articles and features to its readers. There will be a story about the greatest fleet of fighting ships ever gathered by the United States—a story of what the fleet means in dollars—that will be full of interest. Another article will give Prof. Hugo Francke's analysis of America and Americans, and this prominent Harvard professor reaches pronounced conclusions. There will be a page picture of the new Fifth Avenue, and an article telling of the work of its widening. Thomas F. Millard will tell the meaning of the much-discussed Chinese loan. Another feature will point out how all the railroads of the country have, by groupings, come under the control of a few men. The elaborate astronomical plans of Prof. Todd respecting Mars—plans with fascinating possibilities—will be set down in another article. There will be an entertaining correspondence from London regarding the doings on the Summer stage of the British capital, a capital "Letter of a Japanese Schoolboy," a lively and humorous satire by Thomas L. Masson, and many other enjoyable features.

The Picture Section

The Picture Section will be unusually entertaining. It will include photographs of every sort and variety, a collection certain to appeal to everybody. There will be a page of baseball pictures—not ordinary baseball pictures—quite the reverse. They were taken with a view to showing the science of modern baseball. The camera has successfully caught the ball in its swift flight in a dozen different plays, and the ball is distinctly visible in every picture. These are remarkable photographs. Every devotee of baseball will find great pleasure in them.

A few of the other features of the Picture Secton next Sunday: Photographs of the annual Tuxedo Horse Show; a full-page reproduction of "Pierrot," a charming painting by a well-known French artist; Dayton's great celebration in honor of the Wrights; photographs of the recent London Horse Show; a capital page devoted to the Summer shows and Summer players of the New York stage; photographs of attractive women well known in New York society; a half-page reproduction of "Thursday," a painting with a fine touch of humor, which has given pleasure to every one who has seen it at the Metropolitan Museum, and many other pictures. The Picture Section next Sunday will be a delight to every reader of The Times.

College Stars in Press Club Games.

The colleges will be well represented in the first annual carnival of sports of the New York Press Club Athletic Association, which will be held at American League Park to-morrow, and among the collegians will be several champions. A. C. Gilbert of Yale, the greatest pole vaulter in the world, will oppose a big field. Claude Allen, McLeod, and Martin Sheridan will oppose him.

In the high hurdle race three champions will be among the starters. L. Y. News of Yale, the inter-collegiate champion; Jack Eller, the National title holder, and Charlie Bacon will start from scratch and give their opponents liberal handicaps.

If you have $100 you are a capitalist. If you have $10,000 you are simply a larger capitalist. The more modest your capital the more necessary that you should make it work for you.

YOU should spend a little time in considering any proposition that would add 50 per cent. to your income and could quadruple your principal without speculation.

WE are issuing a limited amount of 6% bonds, (against our Business Real Estate,) with a convertible privilege that is extremely valuable.

The issue is limited to $600,000.

Denominations $100, $500, $1,000.

THESE bonds have every good feature of any other bond, and several other features, especially the convertible privilege, that no other bond possesses.

OUR limited issue is being subscribed for, and will all be placed. It makes no difference to us who invests in our bonds—it makes a great difference to you if you lose an opportunity.

IT is impossible in an advertisement to go properly into details, but we will send you on request a booklet telling you of our business real estate holdings in the heart of the city, why and how we can pay 6%, the reason for the bond issue, who our officers are, and what convertible means.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Prominent Corner Sold on Park Avenue—Builders Buy on the Heights—Dealings by Brokers and at Auction.

Payson McL. Merrill has sold for Arthur H. Masten the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventieth Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 22 by 80. The new owner will occupy the house, which is opposite the R. S. Brewster residence at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventieth Street, and in the same block as Senator Elihu Root's home at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-first Street. The fact that the house sold by Mr. Masten will continue to be used as a dwelling means that the easterly side of Park Avenue from Sixty-ninth to Seventy-first Street will preserve its residential character for some time to come. This, it is thought, may be a determining factor with the Trustees of the Union Theological Seminary and those of the Presbyterian Hospital in deciding the question as whether they will restrict their properties on the west side of the avenue to improvement with private dwellings. It has been announced that these two institutions will dispose of their present sites and, in view of the increasing number of apartment houses on Park Avenue, both north and south of the Lenox Hill section, there has been some curiosity on the part of owners around Seventieth and Seventy-first Street to learn what disposition will be made of the question of restrictions.

Another Deal Near Lincoln Square.

H. C. Senior & Co. have sold for J. M. Horton the two four-story dwellings, 112 and 114 West Sixty-fourth Street, on plot 38 by 100.5, 112 feet west of Broadway. A lease of the property has been made to one tenant for a term of years. The property has not changed hands since 1887.

Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer the Buyer.

Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer is the buyer of the Engineering Building, at 114 to 118 Liberty Street, running through to Cedar Street, sold recently by John T. Williams through Herbert A. Sherman.

Builders Buy on the Heights.

The Napoleon Construction Company (Janpole & Werner) has bought the six lots at the southwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 183d Street, 105 by 150. The buyers will erect on the site a six-story elevator apartment house.

John J. and Edward P. Teaney are reported to have sold 117 and 119 West Forty-sixth Street, a five-story brick stable, on plot 50 by 100.5, between Sixth Avenue and Broadway.

Dwelling Sold on West 78th St.

Mrs. Amelia P. De Witt has sold to C. O. Bigelow the three-story dwelling, 133 West Seventy-eighth Street, on lot 20 by 102.2.

Mrs. George H. Percival is the buyer of 233 West Seventy-first Street, sold last week by Clara Harriman through Senior & Stout.

Sheldon & Becker have leased for Thomas Healy to a client of L. Rodney Berg the two-story brick stable 249 West Eightieth Street, on lot 25 by 100. The lessee will remodel the building and use it as a private garage.

7th Avenue and 34th Street Lease.

There was recorded yesterday the lease of 433 and 435 Seventh Avenue and 168 West Thirty-fourth Street by George L. Slawson, and another to the William B. Riker & Son Company for twenty-one years, at an annual rental of $27,500.

Leonard J. Muhlfelder has leased for the estate of Samuel Meinhard 10,000 square feet, 190 and 192 Greene Street; also, in conjunction with Frederick Southack and Alwyn Ball, Jr., 7,500 square feet, 90 Prince Street; also, for the Armor Realty Company 5,000 square feet, 424 Broome Street.

Leon S. Altmayer has leased for a long term of years to the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Company the property 19 First Avenue.

Buyers in Recent Deals.

H. D. Spears is the buyer of 115 East Sixty-ninth Street, reported sold yesterday by Paul Tuckerman through Post & Reese.

Mrs. James Andrews is the buyer of the three-story dwelling 155 East Thirty-eighth Street, sold recently by Mrs. Henrietta A. Fajen through Pease & Elliman.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. have leased 110 East Thirty-ninth Street for the estate of Jane E. Edgar to Dr. C. W. Root, for a term of years.

East Fortieth Street Deal.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have sold for the Polatschek-Spencer Realty Company 235 East Fortieth Street, a six-story flat, on lot 25 by 100.

New Factory for the Bronx.

Plans were filed yesterday for a five-story factory, to cost $105,000, to be erected on the block front on the north side of St. Joseph's Street, between Southern Boulevard and Simpson Place. The structure is to be put up for the Cutler Hammer Manufacturing Company, and will occupy a plot 158 by 85.

Lauter & Blackner have sold for the Mosholu Realty Company the northwest corner of Bassford Avenue and 184th Street, a two-family house, on lot 25.7 by 47; they also have sold for the same company 2,317 Bassford Avenue, a one-family dwelling, on lot 20 by 46.

Woodruff in Brooklyn Deal.

Charles E. Rickerson has sold the plot, 100 by 112, at the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and President Street, Brooklyn, for Timothy L. Woodruff, William H. English, and Mrs. Lewis Luckenbach to John W. Weber, President of the William Ulmer Brewery, who is going to erect a handsome residence on the property. The purchase price is reported to have been about $50,000.

Howard C. Pyle & Co. have sold the three story dwelling with extension, 365 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, 20 by 50 by 130, for Alfred H. Speake to S. D. Collett, for occupancy.

Buying at East Midwood.

At East Midwood, Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold during the last week one hundred and one lots, at a total valuation of $129,565. Including the lots previously sold to builders and investors this makes a total of 750 lots sold in this property within five weeks. The sales at East Midwood so far amount to about $800,000 worth of land.

Big Tract Sold at Huntington.

L'Ecluse, Washburn & Co. have sold to the Huntington Bay View Association a tract of 338 acres overlooking Huntington Bay, near the Chateau Des Beaux Arts, for about $200,000. C. P. Darling has been engaged to make a topographical survey of the property and it will be laid out in a park and offered for sale in from three- to ten-acre plots. One section of it will be set aside for a bungalow colony. The property extends from the present trolley terminus across the hills, a distance of two miles to the main road from Northport to Huntington. The track has been one of the most successful fruit farms on Long Island, there being more than 5,000 peach, pear and apple trees on it.

New Owner for Staten Island Plot.

The Meister & Bache Realty Company has bought from A. A. Moorhead the plot, 227 by 125, on Morningstar Road, near Innes Street, Elm Park, Staten Island.

Plenty of Mortgage Money.

Randall Salisbury in speaking for the mortgage department of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company said yesterday: "The amount of money for mortgages continues to be in excess of the number of good applications. The demand for high-class building loans early in the Spring enabled us to make contracts for loans of this sort amounting to over $20,000,000, and the advances on these are being made as the various buildings progress. The rate of interest in Manhattan is still 4½ per cent., and there seems to be little tendency toward a reduction. Our sales of mortgages in Manhattan and Bronx for the first twenty-three days of this month were $5,399,100, and in Brooklyn and Queens, $2,336,640."

Tenants for Newport Villas.

W. C. Eustis of Boston has leased his villa on the east side of Gibbs Avenue, Newport, R. I., to Mrs. J. B. Bonsal of Baltimore, through De Blois & Eldridge.

Harris & Vaughan have sold for the William D. Evarts estate a plot of several acres at Easthampton, L. I., with 228 feet frontage on Burnell Lane. The purchaser will build immediately. The same brokers have leased cottages at Easthampton, for the season, to Mrs. George S. Hastings and Mr. Charles D. Sabin.

Off to Enlighten Chicago.

Joseph P. Day left yesterday afternoon for Detroit to attend the National Convention of Real Estate Exchanges. Mr. Day will represent the Real Estate Board of Brokers of New York, of which he is President. At 2:30 this afternoon, he will address the convention on "Taxation," and at the banquet this evening his toast will be "New York and the East." William E. Harmon, of Wood, Harmon & Co., will also address the convention. Mr. Day will be the guest of Arthur F. Sheldon of the School of Scientific Salesmanship, in Chicago, on Saturday, and will return to New York on Monday morning.

68 High Grade Restricted Residential Plots
BALMIERE PARK in beautiful CRANFORD, N. J.

You may never have another such opportunity to acquire at so low a price a residential plot in so fine a location within such easy reach of New York City.

We recommend these plots (two to five times larger than regular city lots) especially to homemakers, but they are also desirable as speculative investments, for Cranford is growing at a faster rate than any other town on the Central Railroad of N. J., and prices are advancing rapidly. A boathouse lot on the Rahway will be conveyed free of cost to each lot purchaser. Send to us for transportation, maps, illustrated pamphlets, terms of sale, etc., and arrange your engagements to attend the sale—TO-MORROW on the Grounds.

HARRIMAN TO BOND HIS MEXICAN LINES

ORGANIZED IN NEW JERSEY

Southern Pacific to Hold All Stock of Merger Company and Will Extend Its Mexican Mileage.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company took preliminary steps yesterday to authorize a new mortgage to cover $75,000,000 of bonds on the company's new lines in Mexico. This step points to the issuance later on of all or a part of these bonds to reimburse the Southern Pacific for the money it has expended on these Mexican lines, but so far as is known no definite time has yet been fixed for this financing. What has been done so far has been by way of consolidating the Mexican lines into one company and paving the way for the bond issue.

The merger of the Mexican lines will be accomplished through the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, a company organized yesterday under the laws of New Jersey, with an authorized capital of $75,000,000. It is not proposed merely to take over the stocks of the several companies which now hold title to the Southern Pacific's Mexican lines, but to actually merge these lines and place title to them in the New Jersey Corporation.

Inasmuch as these Mexican lines were built under concessions granted by Mexico, carrying in some cases substantial subsidies, it has been necessary in carrying through this merger plan to obtain the consent of the Mexican Government. This, it is understood here, has been granted. While the title to these Mexican lines will be invested in an American corporation, the corporation will be domiciled in Mexico, and all the franchise privileges of the Mexican lines will be preserved intact.

All of the stock of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico to be issued from time to time up to the maximum $75,000,000 will be held by the Southern Pacific Company. The reason for fixing the capital stock at $75,000,000 is understood to be that under the laws of Mexico no company may issue bonds to an amount in excess of its authorized capital stock, and in order to make possible the issue of $75,000,000 bonds against these Mexican lines the capital stock of the company had to be fixed at this amount.

The Southern Pacific upon the completion of its construction work in Mexico will have 1,500 miles of railway in that country and eventually, it is expected in some quarters, extensions will be built greatly adding to this mileage. The building of these lines has been financed by the Southern Pacific and, partly, though indirectly, by the Union Pacific, which made large advances to the Southern Pacific.

In the papers filed in Trenton yesterday C. C. Tegethoff, George E. Downs, William S. Johnson, and Charles Franklin were named as the incorporators of the company. When the organization of the company is completed it will have the same officers as the Southern Pacific Company, of which E. H. Harriman is President.

PIG-IRON PRICES UP.

6,000 Tons Ordered from Pittsburg Firm at Advance.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 24.—Evidence of a condition of prosperity in the pig iron and steel industry unequaled for the last six months is the announcement made to-day by a Pittsburg concern that a deal has been consummated for the sale of 6,000 tons of basic iron for immediate delivery at an advance over the prices of thirty days ago.

A general advance from 15 to 25 cents per ton in the price of basic and bessemer pig iron has already been made. Reports show that Pittsburg blast furnaces producing pig iron are running about 90 per cent. capacity, and furnaces making steel are running about 80 per cent. capacity. This is more than double the production for the same period last year.

There are more blast furnaces running at present than at any time since October, 1907.

BETTER OUTLOOK FOR WABASH

Half a Million More Net Earnings Probable Than Were Anticipated.

The Directors of the Wabash Railroad held their monthly meeting yesterday and declared semi-annual interest on the company's debentures, 3 per cent. on the A's, and 1 per cent. on the B's. Apart from this, the meeting was purely routine, it was said.

President Delano said after the meeting that the road's business was moving satisfactorily, its gross earnings for the year about to end being a little larger and its expenses a little less than a year ago.

The net showing for the year, it is said, will be close to $500,000 better than was anticipated earlier in the year.

Duty on Water Gauges Cut—Judge Called It "an Easy Question."

Declaring that "my experience in customs cases has never led me to a contention more easily solved than this," Judge Platt in the United States Circuit Court has held that strips of glass intended to form parts of water gauges on steam boilers, are not to be deemed dutiable under Paragraph 100 of the Dingley tariff at the rate of 60 per cent., but instead should be classified at only 45 per cent. as being "strips of glass," under Paragraph 110.

The merchandise in dispute covers strips of glass less than two inches wide. Five parallel incisions have been made upon one side by grinding or polishing, thus forming four prisms. Other grinding and polishing has been done upon them, but not enough, according to the court, to affect their classification. They are intended to take the place of the tubular gauges formerly used. It was shown the articles have entered into commerce since the date of the present tariff act.

It is made apparent from Judge Platt's decision that he has no patience with the attempt of the Government to impose a tax of 60 per cent. under the provision for "decorated" glass. The indications are that the Government will ask the Federal Court of Appeals to review the question.

Among the creditors are Thomas H. Dinsmore $2,000, and Fisk Rubber Company of Chicopee Falls, Mass., $1,581.

ALDEN R. BUCK.—Alden R. Buck, a truckman at Pier 45, North River, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $18,556 and assets of $150, consisting of three and a half acres of land in Seymour Park, N. J. Among the creditors are Cyrus Rheims & Co., $6,000, secured by chattel mortgage on horses, trucks, &c., which have been sold under foreclosure; Daniel J. McCoy, veterinary surgeon, Brooklyn, $9,000, money loaned, and J. E. Adams, Jr., $940 for feed.

JOSEPH GUTH.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Joseph Guth, provision dealer, 384 First Avenue, show liabilities of $17,674 and assets of $4,060, consisting of stock $500, horses and wagons $430, fixtures $318, accounts $1,600, cash $22, and 119 lots in Port Jervis, N. Schneider $1,500 loans, and M. Crane Company $5,000 for merchandise.

AUGUSTUS L. REYNOLDS.—Stephen H. Thayer, referee in bankruptcy of Yonkers, has made a report recommending that the petition in bankruptcy filed on May 14 against Augustus L. Reynolds, a grocer of Mount Vernon, by three New York City creditors be dismissed. He finds that Mr. Reynolds was not insolvent when the petition was filed and has not committed an act of bankruptcy. His liabilities were $10,986 and the assets $28,396. Being advanced in years and finding business unprofitable he sold out, but could not pay his creditors at once, and transferred a piece of real estate on which the equity was $14,000 to secure the creditors until he could pay them. The referee does not consider this transfer an act of bankruptcy.

JACOBS & ROSEN CO.—A meeting of creditors of the Jacobs & Rosen Company, cloaks, suits, and millinery, 46 West Fourteenth Street, was held yesterday at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, at 68 William Street. Many claims were proved and Jesse Watson, the receiver, was elected trustee with a bond of $25,000. Samuel J. Goldsmith, attorney for Mr. Watson, announced that if a settlement was made with the creditors by July 22 Mr. Watson would serve without pay. A proposition of settlement was made to the creditors at 30 cents on the dollar, 15 cents cash and 15 cents in three notes due Nov. 15, Dec. 15, and Jan. 15 next. One hundred and thirty-five creditors, whose claims aggregate $50,000 out of a total indebtedness of $75,000, accepted the offer.

H. LEONARD SIMMONS & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against H. Leonard Simmons, doing business as H. Leonard Simmons & Co., wholesale furs, 13-15 West Twenty-fourth Street, by Levy & Rosenthal, attorneys for these creditors: Herzig Brothers $250, Schild Brothers $250, and Samuel Sacks & Co., $250. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments, and removed some of his property. He began business in 1899, and on Jan. 1 last his statement showed assets of $34,618 and liabilities of $8,590. He was formerly at 139 Fifth Avenue, where he was burned out on May 5 with a loss of $31,000 covered by insurance of $23,000. Levy & Rosenthal said that he had not received the insurance money from the companies and that there is about $4,000 salvage, and liabilities are about $40,000.

FOR THE UNEMPLOYED OVER FIFTY.

In last Saturday's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES was published an extract from a letter received from an elderly man who, through no fault or incapacity of his own, finds himself out of employment and compelled to find a new place.

The following is an extract from his letter: "Now, I am not a convict, and have never done a dishonest thing in my life. I possess a good education, can speak and write English, French, and German, and understand music thoroughly. My only crime is that of being over fifty years old. Does that disbar me from every position? Must I commit suicide, or can I get a chance to earn my living and care for my family? It does not look so. I have tried hard and long, but there seems to be no place for me."

This is another instance of the inability of the unemployed to find by personal solicitation the very employer who is seeking a man of his qualifications.

Age does not always count against a man in search of work. Employers are constantly on the lookout for men of ability and experience. The question, however, is the same as it has always been and probably always will be—to bring together the employer and the employe. One of the most effective and practical ways to obtain a position is to advertise in the Situation Wanted columns of the daily newspapers.

THE NEW YORK TIMES will be glad to have any man over fifty years of age seeking employment insert in next Sunday's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES an advertisement, not over fifty words, free of charge. Employers nowadays are seeking intelligent, clear-headed, energetic workers, men who are not afraid of real work and who can do a given task intelligently. State facts and not fancies and you will be surprised the way your advertisement will drive itself home.

These advertisements will be accepted at the Main Office, Times Building, Times Square, or at the Downtown Office, 8 Spruce Street, up to 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Only men over fifty years of age will be allowed the privilege of inserting an advertisement free, and it must not exceed fifty words.

MRS. GOULD DENIES SHE DRANK OR SWORE

NONCHALANT MR. FARNUM

No "Clash of Souls" Between Him and Mrs. Gould, He Deposes, and He Was Too Bashful to "Fathom Her Eyes."

For the second time in the trial of her suit for a separation from Howard Gould before Supreme Court Justice Dowling, Mrs. Viola Katherine Gould went on the stand yesterday afternoon, and in the course of a two hours' examination by her counsel, Clarence J. Shearn, denied practically everything attributed to her by the witnesses for Howard Gould.

It was after 5 o'clock when Mr. Shearn had finished with Mrs. Gould, and owing to the heat of the day and the late session of the night before the court did not think it would be fair play to allow De Lancey Nicoll to begin his cross-examination, which, necessarily, will be a long and trying ordeal for Mrs. Gould.

Mrs. Gould, although expressing her willingness to stay on the stand, plainly showed fatigue. She had on the same heavy black costume she has worn all through the trial, even to the large and cumbersome-looking headgear, with its mass of black veiling.

Mr. Nicoll, who, by the way, was 55 years old yesterday, will begin his cross-examination this morning. It is likely to last several hours, but there is every prospect that an end to the trial will be reached before court adjourns to-day. It is thought probable that Justice Dowling will render his decision from the bench immediately following the close of the trial.

Outside of Mrs. Gould's direct examination in rebuttal yesterday the only other thing done was the reading of Dustin Farnum's deposition. This proved to be a tedious affair, lasting well into the afternoon before the end was reached. Mr. Nicoll wanted to know why Farnum was not produced in person, seeing that he is a resident of the State and had actually been in the jurisdiction of the court since the trial started. Mr. Shearn explained that the actor was ill in Maine, but thought that if the matter was delayed until Monday he might be able to secure Farnum's attendance. This suited no one, so the deposition was read.

Farnum's Evidence for Mrs. Gould.

Farnum bore out in the main Mrs. Gould's story that their friendship was purely a business one, designed by Mrs. Gould in furtherance of her idea of returning to the stage. He told how they had discussed the practicability of this, and mentioned that the matter had got to a point where Mrs. Gould named the parts she would like to play. The only one that Farnum could remember was that of Rosalind in "As You Like It." On the whole, Farnum made a good witness for Mrs. Gould, even if his memory was hazy under cross-examination.

This is part of Mrs. Gould's direct examination on rebuttal:

Q.—You heard the testimony of Maurice Malloy? A.—Yes.

Q.—On the occasion in July, 1906, that you had the conversation with him about his use of your automobile, did you call him any names? A.—No.

Q.—On the occasion when Malloy came into your bedroom, did you call him a liar? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you thereafter call him an insolent puppy? A.—No.

Q.—What did you say to him? A.—I told him to leave the house and never enter it again.

Q.—Did you give Malloy permission to use your automobile? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you ever ask Malloy to sit on a lounge with you? A.—I never did.

Q.—Richards testified that seven bottles of brandy were sent to your room at Castle Gould in two weeks. Is that true? A.—It is not.

Q.—Were you confined to your room at any time while Richards was at Castle Gould? A.—I was not.

Gould Accused Her of Spying.

Q.—Richards testified that about twenty minutes after 9 o'clock one night in August, 1906, you rang all the bells in the house. Did you? A.—No.

Q.—What did occur that night? A.—Mr. Gould had gone out and I wasn't aware of it. When he opened the door to come in it started the burglar alarm. Mr. Gould and Richards then came up to my room. Mr. Gould was very angry. He accused me of spying on him and told me he'd quit me. He took his things away next morning and I didn't see him again for some time.

Q.—Did you slam the door in his face? A.—I did not.

Q.—Were you, on that occasion, in your room in a blue dressing gown, tearing your hair? A.—I might have had on a blue gown, but I didn't tear my hair.

Q.—Did you say to Mr. Gould, "You little hound, get out of this room"? A.—I did not.

Q.—Richards testified that on several occasions he heard you apply vile epithets to several workmen. Did you do so? A.—Never in my life.

Q.—Richards testified that he resigned in writing. Did he do so? A.—He never resigned to my knowledge. I told him to leave, because I could not be humiliated by keeping him.

Mrs. Gould testified that Richards left in September, 1906, and that the burglar alarm episode occurred just prior to his going. Richards swore he left in August.

Q.—It has been testified that you took cocktails before breakfast; is that true? A.—I never did.

Mrs. Gould denied emphatically the testimony of William Cocks, a carpenter at Castle Gould, who said that in November, 1906, Mrs. Gould, while on a day's visit to Castle Gould, said she intended "making it warm for the boys." She also repudiated the allegation of the witness Gus Wright, who swore that on the same occasion she said, "Who the devil is Malloy?"

Mr. Shearn took up the testimony of Reinhold Carlson, the head coachman at Castle Gould. Mrs. Gould said there was no truth in the story told by him as to her attempting to hitch up some mules, but was unable to do so because she was intoxicated.

Q.—Carlson testified that on one occasion when you were riding with him on a brake you were swaying so that he had to put his arm behind you to prevent your falling out; is that true? A.—No.

She Denies Servants' Stories.

The witness also denied Carlson's story to the effect that he drove her and Farnum to the Larchmont Yacht Club, where they drank on the piazza. She said she had never gone to the club. As to the story told by Carlson that Mrs. Gould told him she didn't care if he "killed the —— horse" so long as she caught the train, and that she was intoxicated at the time, Mrs. Gould said that all that happened was that she told him she wanted to catch the train, as she had a luncheon engagement. She denied being intoxicated, or that she ordered Carlson to go back to the stable and discharge all hands.

The testimony of Robert Trotter, the Castle Gould and Blue Gap farm carpenter, was then taken up. Mrs. Gould denied that she ever told Trotter to "smash the —— door" because he couldn't open it without a key, nor did she order her maid Bertha to "wash the —— floor," as testified to by Trotter.

Q.—Trotter testified that on one occasion you abused him because you said he had taken three or four days to mend a door at Castle Gould; what's the truth about that? A.—It is false from beginning to end.

Q.—Trotter testified that on one occasion at the Blue Gap farm you drank whisky with a man named Adams; is that true? A.—No, I did not drink whisky; I never drank whisky in my life.

Q. Trotter testified that when you arrived at the farm in September, 1906, you were intoxicated, and that you continued drinking during that visit; is that true? A.—I was not intoxicated, and I did not drink.

Mr. Shearn then took up the incident as related by Trotter, in which the latter alleged that Mrs. Gould was so intoxicated one Saturday night at the farm that she fell off her chair in the dining-room. Mrs. Gould explained it this way:

"I had been out all day on the estate. It was cold and raining. When I got in about 6 o'clock that night my maid mixed me a cocktail, and I had another with my dinner. I had nothing else to drink that night but coffee.

Coffee Made Her Ill at Farm.

Q.—Did you drink the coffee? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you notice anything about the color of the table cloth on which a drop of the coffee had fallen? A.—Not so much on the table cloth as on my shirtwaist, where the coffee spilled on it; it turned the cloth a very vivid green. I put the shirtwaist away, intending to bring it to New York and find out what the stain was, but I forgot to, and when I went to the farm next the shirtwaist was gone.

Mrs. Gould said she didn't notice anything wrong with the coffee when she drank it, but some little time afterward she was seized with violent pains and became unconscious. She didn't remember falling off her chair.

Q.—Were you ever under the influence of liquor in Lynchburg? A.—Never.

Q.—Trotter testified that you tried to move a big clock that night, and that it fell over on you. Is that true? A.—It would be impossible for me to move it, it is so heavy.

Q.—Trotter testified that he saw a case containing a dozen bottles of whisky at the farm. Is that true? A.—I never ordered whisky; I don't drink it.

Mr. Shearn then turned to Melville D. Chapman's testimony. Mr. Chapman accompanied the Goulds on their yachting trip to the West Indies.

Q.—Mr. Chapman testified that on that trip to the West Indies, in the presence of Mr. Gould, you told a steward that Mr. Gould was unable to manage affairs and that you were boss; is that true? A.—Not a word of it.

Q.—Mr. Chapman testified that in Havana Harbor you flew into a violent temper and left the dinner table; is that true? A.—Absolutely untrue.

Mrs. Gould then contradicted in turn the testimony of Herbert Schmidt, a footman, that just before Mrs. Gould started for Palm Beach she threatened to have a porter throw her private secretary Jones out of the St. Regis; and that of Harry Veitch, to the effect that on one occasion at the St. Regis Mrs. Gould ordered him to throw the dishes into the corridor, which he said he did.

One to Three Cocktails a Day.

Q.—How many cocktails did you drink a day? A.—Perhaps one, perhaps two, or three.

Q.—Mr. Kimble has testified that on the opening night of Farnum's play, "The Virginian," at the Academy of Music, you said to him, speaking of Farnum, "That's my new beau." Did you do that? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Mr. Knowles has testified that at Castle Gould you once raised a fuss about the lettuce not being properly headed; do you recollect any such incident? A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Gould get up and leave the table? A.—No.

Q.—Did you say to Mr. Knowles on the trip down to Nice from Paris that Mr. Gould was a "—— fool?" A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Mr. Knowles testified that on the night of the Cupid-Trilby ball at Nice you flew into a rage with Mr. Gould because the tickets had been mislaid, and said unpleasant things to him; did you? A.—No, but I recollect being annoyed because we had hired a special courier, who had the tickets and who did not turn up. We had to wait in a crowd for twenty minutes, and it was very annoying and embarrassing to the ladies in the party.

The next question was a general one, and Mrs. Gould's answer was awaited with some interest.

"Have you ever been intoxicated, Mrs. Gould?" asked Mr. Shearn, earnestly.

"I never have," she answered deliberately.

"Have you ever used vile language—cursed or swore?"

"No."

At Mrs. Kirkpatrick's Party.

Mr. Shearn then made a brief reference to the story of coachman Schmidt, regarding the party at the house of Mrs. George Underwood Kirkpatrick, when it was alleged that Mrs. Gould was discovered in the cellar intoxicated, while two of the women upstairs had received injuries said to have been inflicted by Mrs. Gould.

Q.—Schmidt has testified that on the occasion he drove you to Mrs. Kirkpatrick's house you were under the influence of liquor; were you? A.—I was not.

Mrs. Gould explained that she had been for some weeks at that time under Dr. Holbrook Curtis's care, and that he had forbidden her to go out. She said she went against his advice, with the consequence that she was taken ill.

Mrs. Gould's acquaintance with Dustin Farnum was next taken up. She testified that she first met Farnum at a tea given by Mrs. Richard Lounsbury at Sherry's in 1904. The occasion was the organizing of a charity entertainment. The next time she saw Farnum was when, along with Mr. Gould, she occupied a box on the opening night of "The Virginian."

"We always attended opening nights," added Mrs. Gould.

In June, 1904, Mrs. Gould said, Farnum and Miss May Robson lunched at Castle Gould, "and I never saw Mr. Farnum again until after his opening night in 1906," she said, adding: "I never saw him, never wrote to him, never heard from him, or had anything to do with him."

Q.—At the time of his opening at the Academy of Music early in August, 1906, did you see Mr. Farnum? A.—Yes.

Q.—How did you come to see him, and what was the occasion? I saw Mr. Farnum's name on the bill, and I think I called him up on the 'phone and asked him if he would take luncheon with me at the St. Regis. He replied that he couldn't come before his opening night, but would be delighted to afterward. We fixed up a date, and I invited Mr. Sells to be present.

Thought of Returning to Stage.

Mrs. Gould showed real emotion for the first time during the trial when her counsel asked her to continue her story. In a broken voice she went on:

"You see, all authority had been taken from my hands, and I felt I must have something to do. I talked the matter over with my cousin, and thought I would return to the stage, or take up the management of a theatre of my own.

Q.—You weren't used to an idle life? A.—No.

Q.—So you asked Mr. Farnum to take luncheon with you and talk the matter over? A.—Yes, and I asked Mr. Sells to come, too.

Mrs. Gould said that Farnum kept his appointment, and they lunched together in her private sitting room. She said she discussed the theatrical situation with him, and, without divulging her plans, got from him how he was situated in the matter of engagements and what prospects she had of being able to obtain his support should she decide to take the matter up.

The witness said she didn't see Farnum again until the New England trip, when she met him in Hartford. Mr. Shearn took her over the whole itinerary of that trip and learned that the only time she saw Farnum on that occasion was when she lunched with him at his hotel in Hartford.

An auto ride to Castle Gould, on the Sunday prior to the Vanderbilt Cup race in 1906, was the next occasion on which Mrs. Gould said she saw Farnum. This was the trip when the machine was in collision. She admitted that they called at a road house on the return journey and got a sandwich, as she had had no lunch, but denied that it was Flaherty's road house. When they got back to the St. Regis, Farnum joined her in her apartment, and this was the only occasion, she said, on which he was ever in her apartment there at night.

Never Called Farnum "Dearie."

Farnum's engagement at the Brooklyn Theatre in September, 1906, when Mrs. Gould is alleged to have seen him frequently there, was next inquired into. She admitted going over the bridge once, but said it was in furtherance of her plan to return to theatrical life.

Q.—Did you send Flynn, your chauffeur, down to the Hotel Somerset to bring Mr. Farnum up to your hotel? A.—I did not; I didn't know Mr. Farnum was at the Somerset.

Q.—Did you ever go to the door of your apartment at the St. Regis and say to Flynn, "Is that you, dearie"? A.—I did not.

Q.—Or say to Flynn, "Excuse me, John; I thought it was Mr. Farnum"? A.—I never called him John. It is a fake from beginning to end.

Q.—Did you ever call Mr. Farnum "dearie," or by any other term of endearment? A.—Never in my life.

Q.—Did that episode occur? A.—It did not.

The visit to the Bellevue-Stratford, at Philadelphia, and the Marlborough-Blenheim, at Atlantic City, was gone into fully by Mr. Shearn. Mrs. Gould insisted that every night she was away from New York Miss May Robson shared her room.

Q.—Miss Harrison, the floor clerk at the Bellevue-Stratford, testified that she saw Farnum coming out of your apartment one morning about 7:30 o'clock; was he ever in your room at any such time? A.—No, he was not—never.

Justice Dowling asked Mrs. Gould if she was awake at that hour. She said she was. This led up to a close questioning by the Court as to the location of the rooms and the persons who occupied them.

After a few more questions concerning Mrs. Gould's stay at the Carroll House, Lynchburg, when Farnum was also staying at the hotel, Mr. Shearn closed the examination by asking:

"Mrs. Gould, were you ever guilty of any misconduct with Mr. Farnum?"

"I was not," replied Mrs. Gould in a firm voice.

Farnum's Deposition.

Dustin Farnum, in his deposition, bore out Mrs. Gould's account of how they first met at a tea given by Mrs. Lounsbury, and also of their second meeting at luncheon at the St. Regis in August, 1906, when the question of Mrs. Gould returning to the stage was discussed. Mr. Farnum also told of the luncheon with Mrs. Gould at Hartford.

"On the following Sunday," he deposed, "I went down to Castle Gould with Mrs. Gould in her machine. On the return journey our French chauffeur hit a team with six Germans in it, just this side of Jamaica. It was our chauffeur's fault. For a time it looked as if we were going to have trouble. An angry crowd got around us, and the chauffeur was arrested. I had to see Mrs. Gould at the St. Regis that night about 11 o'clock to see about bailing the chauffeur out."

When Farnum was playing in Brooklyn, at the end of September, 1906, he deposed that Mrs. Gould went over there to see him and his manager, Mr. Palser, about her theatrical project.

"She talked about the chances of getting an engagement, and we had a bite to eat in the café."

The Philadelphia and Atlantic City trip was gone into fully. Farnum admitted supping with Mrs. Gould at both places in her room, but said on each occasion the other members of the party were present. Mr. Farnum denied the testimony of the colored waiter, Clarence Pullen, that he ate in Mrs. Gould's room frequently while at the Carroll House in Lynchburg. He had but one such meal, he said, and that was supper on Sunday night.

Q.—Have you ever been guilty of any impropriety with Mrs. Gould? A.—Never, in any way, shape, or manner.

Once, when Farnum's memory served him badly with regard to dates, he explained it by saying that all his dealings with Mrs. Gould were so "devilishly trivial."

He Never "Fathomed Her Eyes."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Watson, Farnum said the first time he ever saw Mrs. Gould was when he was a little boy. He was taken to a theatre where she was "starring" in "The Lady of Florence."

Mrs. Gould did not look any too well pleased while this part of Farnum's testimony was being read.

The actor was then asked what was the color of Mrs. Gould's eyes and hair. He replied:

"I don't know. I am rather a bashful young man, and I don't think it is very nice for a man to look right into a young lady's eyes when he is talking to her."

Farnum testified that he was six feet tall, and he thought Mrs. Gould was an inch or two shorter. He couldn't tell much about her figure except that he said he thought she was rather finely developed.

Asked about their theatrical talks, Farnum said that Mrs. Gould talked of the parts she was ambitious to appear in. She wanted to play Rosalind, he said, and she also mentioned fifteen or twenty other parts she would like to take, among them being, he thought, Parthenia, in "Ingomar."

Q.—What did you drink at that luncheon? A.—I never drink in the middle of the day.

It developed that while Farnum was meeting Mrs. Gould he was paying court to the woman who is now his wife. Farnum was asked whether, on the occasion when Mrs. Gould lunched with him at Hartford, he noticed her eyes.

"What do you mean," the actor asked, "a 'clash of souls' or something?"

Such an intention was disclaimed, and then Farnum replied that he had "not fathomed the lady's eyes."

During the reading of the deposition, it came out that Mr. Palser, Farnum's manager, had advised Mrs. Gould very strongly against taking up a theatrical career again.

Farnum was asked whether he had anything to do with the registering of the party either at the Bellevue-Stratford or the Marlborough-Blenheim. He said he hadn't, and that while that was being done, "I just stood around like a mutt."

DILLON CONTRADICTED.

Probber Boy's Shirt Shows Shot Was Not Fired at Close Range.

District Attorney Clarke had police witnesses on the rack yesterday in the trial of Policeman James F. Dillon for the murder of 19-year-old Louis Probber before Justice Maddox of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. He tried to get Sergt. Edward W. Gains to admit that there is a police organization which protects policemen when they get into trouble, such as engaging counsel for them. Gains tried to evade a direct answer to the question, but when pressed by the prosecutor, he replied:

"I cannot answer, because I don't know."

The District Attorney next turned his cross-examination to the origin of the cuts on his coat which Dillon said were made in a struggle with the Probber family while trying to arrest the father. The Probbers have insisted that Dillon's coat was cut in the patrol wagon on the way to the police station, so as to give the prisoner a chance to plead self-defense for shooting the boy.

On the witness stand yesterday Policeman Stapf admitted that it was he who called Dillon's attention to the cuts in his coat, but he denied that he had made them. He said he had left his knife home on that day, although he admitted that he had it in his pocket the day before and the day after the shooting.

Stapf said that he had been sent to the Probber store after the shooting when Dillon told him that Louis Probber had attacked him with a knife. He is the first witness to testify that Louis Probber attacked Dillon. Stapf returned to the grocery store later in the day to look for a knife, as he told the jury. He found a cheese knife and brought it back to the station with him. He admitted that he had not obtained an identification of the knife by Dillon.

Miss Jennie Altman of 108 Myrtle Avenue, a teacher in Public School 112, Manhattan, testified that she was in the grocery store when Stapf got the cheese knife. She declared that Stapf picked up the knife and said to Detective D. B. Christian, who was with him:

"This will account for the cuts in the coat. It serves them right. They won't keep open another Sunday."

Lieut. William A. Jones of the Homicide Bureau in Manhattan, called as an expert in the use of firearms, testified that he had made experiments of a pistol shot on laundered shirts of the same material as the one worn by Louis Probber when he was shot by Dillon. Shooting at distances from close range to five feet, he said, he found that all the shirts on which he experimented within four feet of the revolver showed powder marks. These garments as well as the shirt worn by young Probber were admitted as evidence.

The shirt worn by Probber was not powder-stained. This contradicts the statement made by Dillon that the boy was shot at close range while trying to grab the revolver from him.

The trial will be continued to-day.

ROBINSON GUILTY IN THE HEINZE CASE

Jury Quickly Returns a Verdict Against the Lawyer for Obstructing Justice.

A. P. HEINZE TRIAL BEGINS

Report That the Convicted Counsel for United Copper Will Testify Against Him.

A verdict of guilty was returned in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Ray yesterday against Sanford Robinson, who has been on trial for two days for obstructing justice in advising a prospective witness in the Heinze Grand Jury inquiry to evade the service of a subpoena.

Robinson was one of the attorneys for F. A. Heinze and the United Copper Company until the latter part of May, when the incident occurred that led to the indictment of F. A. Heinze, his brother Arthur, Robinson, Carlos Warfield, and a clerk named Geer on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice. Robinson and A. P. Heinze were indicted also on a direct charge of obstructing justice.

Immediately after the verdict was rendered, United States District Attorney Wise began the trial of the A. P. Heinze case, the understanding being that at 4 o'clock Robinson would be sentenced. When the afternoon adjournment was taken, however, Robinson, his attorney, Joseph Cotton, Jr., W. D. Guthrie, who had apparently come as special counsel for Robinson, Mr. Wise, and Assistant District Attorney Smith went into Judge Ray's chambers.

After a fifteen-minute conference Judge Ray admitted the newspaper men and announced that the sentence would not be imposed until after the A. P. Heinze trial.

The postponement of the Robinson sentence gave rise to a report that Robinson would become a material witness for the Government in the trial of A. P. Heinze to-day. When this report was put up to Mr. Wise and Mr. Cotton, both replied that Robinson was under subpoena to testify against A. P. Heinze even before his own case was called.

Following the break between Robinson and the Heinzes, Buckingham, on whose story to the Grand Jury both Robinson and the Heinzes were indicted, refused on constitutional grounds to give any testimony as to his talks with A. P. Heinze, but a moment later told of conversations with Robinson which materially strengthened the case against the lawyer. Buckingham will be called again to-day, but it is not believed that the Government expects to get very much out of him.

It took the jury less than ten miutes to return its verdict against Robinson. After the charge of Judge Ray there was little doubt in the minds of the onlookers as to what the verdict would be, for the charge swept aside the technical points raised by the defense and put it up to Robinson strongly.

Judge Ray's charge was important in view of the questions that have been raised by the defense as to the status of a Grand Jury inquiry and the status of a Deputy Marshal undertaking to serve a subpoena.

"I charge you," he said, "that the Grand Jury is a part of the court, and that delay and obstruction of the Grand Jury is an impediment of the administration of justice in the United States Circuit Court. I charge you that the subpoena issued for Buckingham was legal, correct, and proper, and it is for you to decide whether Robinson knew that the man who came for him was a Deputy Marshal."

After the verdict Robinson was paroled in the custody of his counsel until the time for sentence.

Little progress was made before adjournment in the trial of A. P. Heinze. Mr. Wise put on several witnesses, whose testimony was necessary to establish the issuance of the subpoena for Buckinbham and the attempt made to serve it, but William Rand, Jr., counsel for Heinze, fought so vigorously at every question that the afternoon wore by without reaching the vital part of the Government's case, which rests in the question whether A. P. Heinze had anything to do with advising Buckingham to avoid service or, as charged in the indictment, gave him $100 with which to go to Canada.

Incidentally it came out that the defense will raise as one of its points the claim that the investigation by the Federal Grand Jury, following the second indictment of F. A. Heinze, was inspired by a purpose to get evidence for the cases in which indictments had already been found.

The Wrong Mr. Levy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An error crept into this morning's account of the trial of Sanford Robinson I am not the Mr. Levy who is Mr. Rosenthal's partner, I am not counsel for Mr. Heinze, and I have never had any business relations with him whatever. My firm—the firm of Eugene Cohn & Julius Levy of 132 Nassau Street—was retained by Tracy S. Buckingham, whom I have known for many years, and we are not concerned with any of the litigation between the United States on the one side and Mr. Heinze and his associates and allies on the other, save only to protect the interests of Mr. Buckingham. I hope you will print this letter in order that a wrong impression as to the source of Mr. Buckingham's protection may be avoided.

$500 FOR HAIR DYE INJURIES.

Court Holds Man Who Sold It Was Guilty of Negligence.

The Municipal Court of the First District, 54 Lafayette Street, was filled with representatives of the manufacturers of hair dyes and restorers yesterday morning when the case of Kate J. Moeser against Charles H. Grimley was tried before Justice Lauer. The plaintiff alleged that she had purchased a bottle of hair dye from the defendant on Nov. 5, 1908, under the belief that it would restore gray hair to its original beauty and give to the middle aged the appearance of youth.

Instead of which, according to the evidence of the plaintiff's doctor, the dye poisoned Mrs. Moeser's scalp and caused a blindness which lasted several days. She had not entirely recovered from the effects of the dye yet, he said.

Against this evidence the defendant, Charles H. Grimley, produced one of his patrons, Marmaduke Dorian, who said that he owed all his happiness in life to the effects of the defendant's hair dye, and his wife could testify to the same thing if necessary. He offered to use the dye out of the same bottle the plaintiff had declared had injured her.

John N. Johnson, counsel for Mrs. Moeser, asked the witness if he had paid for his hair dye. Witness seemed surprised at the question, and replied: "Certainly not. My wife and I signed testimonials for the hair dye."

After listening to the evidence on both sides and getting expert opinions on hair dyes and their liability to turn green, magenta, or any other color if the user's scalp was not adapted to the dye, Justice Lauer gave a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500, which is the maximum in a municipal court.

In his opinion he said:

"I think it was negligence to put forth an article such as this upon the market, advertising it as harmless, without any knowledge of the character of the contents of that article."

NO DAMAGES FOR A BLOW.

McSweeney Disorderly When Ejected from a Car, Traction Co.'s Defense.

Austin McSweeney is not entitled to $5,000 damages, or any other amount, for a punch in the eye which he alleges he received at the hands of a conductor on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Road in June, 1908, the trouble arising over transfers—so a jury in Justice Goff's part of the Supreme Court decided yesterday.

The plaintiff is the son of ex-Sergt. John McSweeney, known as one of the "millionaire policemen" who were retired some time ago. He alleges that he was returning from an outing on this night, and that when he asked for a transfer it was refused. In the argument which followed it was contended that the conductor struck McSweeney.

Mrs. Lizzie Reid of 424 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn, one of McSweeney's witnesses, testified that her meeting with him on that night was the result of her answer to a personal in a newspaper. Under cross-examination Mrs. Reid fainted, and was revived by a physician who was in the room. She followed up the fainting spell with a fit of hysteria.

The defense to McSweeney's charge was that he was acting in a disorderly manner; that he had to be ejected from the car, and that in the scuffle he received the blow in the eye.

STEAMSHIP'S GHOST ONLY A STOWAWAY

Voice from the Depths of the Moncenisio Gave the Crew a Bad Scare in Italy.

DISAPPEARED AT PALERMO

Man Who Hid to Come to America Eluded the Police When They Came to Capture Him.

When the Italian steamship Moncenisio, which reached Jersey City yesterday, was in Naples a rumor spread, which reached this side ahead of the vessel, that a ghost had taken up his residence in her hold and was making life miserable for all on board.

Now, as one of the officers explained yesterday, it was not a ghost that caused all the trouble, but a stowaway. He came on the steamer unseen, and departed in the same way. All of him that was in evidence was a voice, and it was the voice that caused the trouble and led to the report that the vessel was haunted.

After having taken on a cargo of pumice stone the Moncenisio sailed from Lipari on May 22. She was well out of that port when some of the stokers first heard the voice. It came from somewhere in the dark interior of the steamer.

"Ho-o-o-ho-o-o!" came to them as they worked below decks.

It was repeated, and then one of the men reported it to an officer, and in that way it traveled to Capt. Ettore Zitelli, on the bridge. He ordered an officer to investigate. It was discovered that a man was stowed away in the hold and wanted to get out. While the men talked to the fellow below the hatches, some one supplied the information to him that the steamship was not heading for America direct, but was going to stop at Naples. After that there was no more heard of the stranger. It was then decided not to investigate until the Moncenisio reached that port.

She got in there early the next day. An officer then went down and searched among the cargo, but could not find the owner of the voice. The police were notified, but as it was Sunday they did not come to the vessel until late. In the meantime she had been lying with open hatches and most of the men ashore. When the police came they, too, searched, but could not find the stowaway. The Moncenisio sailed from Palermo on June 5.
